CITY GETS CASH TO PAY BONDS; AVERT DEFAULT

Bank Syndicate Aids Refinancing.

More Pay

County employes will receive pay checks today for the first half of last July, it was announced last night by County Treasurer McDonough. Funds for the pay roll, which totals $418,967, were made available from December fee collections in his office. Those on the mothers' pension rolls will share in the pay day, but the mothers' pension checks will not be mailed until early next week.

All doubt as to whether the city and school board will be able to meet $23,489,190 in bond and interest payments due Jan. 1 and Feb. 1 was swept away yesterday when City Controller Szymczak received and accepted bids of a syndicate of Chicago banks to buy the city's issue of refunding bonds at par and accrued interest.

At the same time plans went forward for a drive by the citizens' committee on public expenditures, of which Fred W. Sargent is chairman, to sell tax warrants to large taxpayers, obtaining funds to meet future pay rolls of the larger governments of Cook county. Mr. Sargent and Mr. Szymczak are to confer today on details of this plan, which probably will take a form similar to the $72,000,000 tax warrant trust which temporarily relieved the distress of local governments in 1930.

Bond Total $15,036,000.

The refunding bond issue which the banks will buy totals $15,036,000, the amount of the city's bond principal maturities. In addition the banks are to buy $1,700,000 in board of education bond and interest tax warrants.

That leaves an additional $6,753,190 which the city will pay out of its aggregate of funds.

While the banks are technically buying the refunding bonds they will advance most of the 15 millions required to the city for only a few days. In accordance with the plan worked out by the banks, the Sargent committee and public officials representatives of the banks have been in touch with the holders of the bonds for the last ten days, seeking to persuade them to accept the refunding bonds instead of cash for their maturing bonds.

Interest Rate Increased.

Since the larger proportion of the maturing bonds are held in large blocks by insurance and trust companies, it is believed that these refunding offers will be accepted. The banks will receive the bonds which are to be refunded, turn them in to the city treasury, and get back a large proportion of the money they have advanced.

To make the new bonds more attractive for refunding purposes, their interest rate was set at 6 per cent, whereas the interest on the maturing bonds ranges from 4 to 5 per cent. The bonds are for a five year period and are noncallable.

Added security was given them by placing behind them, in addition to the full faith and credit of the city, which will levy taxes for their redemption, a specially created trust fund. In this fund will be placed future collections from the city bond and interest levies for 1928, 1929 and 1930. There is about $16,000,000 still delinquent on these levies. While the bonds are not callable, the trustee of this fund will have authority to buy the bonds at par in the open market before the maturity date, out of the tax collections which he receives.

Sees Tribute to City's Credit.

"This is the first major bond offering of the city of Chicago since 1931," said Mr. Szymczak after he had opened the syndicate's bid, "and the ability of the city to negotiate the sale of such a large amount of bonds in the face of present economic conditions is a well merited tribute to its credit standing."

Mr. Szymczak pointed out that the last large offering of city bonds was by the preceding city administration, in April, 1931, a few days before it left office. In contrast to the bid of par received yesterday, the bid accepted at that time was 96.55.

The Sargent committee and public officials have been discussing tax warrant sales to obtain pay roll and operating funds for local governments for several days. Several plans have

W. C. T. U. HEAD LENDS HAND TO DRY IN DISTRESS

Wishes Now She'd Called His Wife.

The frailties of a prohibition press agent were a source of deep chagrin yesterday to Mrs. Beata Brucer, 2426 North Hamlin avenue, president of the Cook County chapter of the W. C. T. U.

First Mrs. Brucer appeared at the request of a social service worker in the chambers of Judge Joseph Graber of the Woman's court, who on Wednesday signed a warrant charging her with disorderly conduct. There she faced Mrs. Amelia Lynch, 1664 Farwell avenue, who accused her of trying to steal Mrs. Lynch's husband, Arthur J. Lynch, the press agent in question.

Mrs. Lynch is a French woman, an instructor in a Chicago private school. She addressed Mrs. Brucer in fiery tones, threatening to "crush her like a serpent." Mrs. Brucer signed a $500 peace bond, agreeing to have nothing more to do with Lynch.

Victim of Demon Rum.

Later, more in sorrow than in anger, Mrs. Brucer told how Lynch had fallen victim to their mutual antagonist, Demon Rum. They had been doing research work together on alcohol, but to her dismay, she said, she discovered on Christmas eve that Lynch's experiments had taken a personal turn. She labored far into the morning in the room which she had rented for him, she said, giving him black coffee and restraining his desire to get out of bed "and go places."

As she spoke Mrs. Brucer envisioned more difficulties in her path. She has to break the news to her husband. And she is going to resign her office in the W. C. T. U.

"O, we have a meeting Tuesday," she exclaimed. "How can I face those women? I'm going to resign."

"Perhaps they won't all turn on you," it was suggested.

"Well, a few of them won't," she replied. "But you don't know those women. I know a lot of good Christian women, and there's no Christianity in some of them. O, those women have loved me and looked up to me. I have kept harmony. I love my work and I hate to give it up, but I'm going to resign."

Wife Seeks a Warrant.

Mrs. Lynch visited Judge Graber on Tuesday and sought a warrant charging Mrs. Brucer with adultery. Judge Graber told her that such a warrant could not be issued without definite evidence. Mrs. Lynch returned on Wednesday. She charged that Mrs. Brucer had called her on the telephone, asserting that she was going to take Lynch away from her. According to Mrs. Lynch, Mrs. Brucer charged that she was not a fit person to have a man of the press agent's character for a husband, and that she mistreated him.

She also showed Judge Graber letters which she said her husband had received from Mrs. Brucer, in which the writer addressed him as "My Jimmy" and expressed sympathy for the conditions in his home. On this showing, Judge Graber said yesterday, he issued a warrant charging disorderly conduct.

The warrant, in accordance with the procedure which he has instituted in the Woman's court, was not served but a social service worker instructed Mrs. Brucer to appear yesterday.

She Denies Drinking Charge.

Mrs. Brucer, after Mrs. Lynch had made her accusations, which included the charge that her husband and the W. C. T. U. leader had come under the influence of intoxicants in a cabaret, admitted to Judge Graber that her friendship with Lynch was probably indiscreet, but denied the drinking charge and any unseemly acts. She signed the peace bond and the warrant was not served upon her.

"I first met Mr. Lynch at a joint luncheon of the W. C. T. U. and the Business Men's Prohibition foundation, for which he did publicity work," Mrs. Brucer said later. "He was so interested in our work and gave us so much help and so many good pointers on how to conduct our meetings that we became very good friends.

"He used to come over to my house frequently, where he met my husband and used to help me with my W. C. T. U. speeches. Then we have been doing some research work, on alcohol, you know. He had much more time than I for the research work, and it was very interesting.

Didn't Know He Drank.

"Of course, at that time I didn't know he was a drinking man. Why,

IRISH BEEKEEPERS ARE VERY ANGRY WITH LIFE MEMBER GEO. B. SHAW

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, Dec. 29.—Irish beekeepers are angry with George Bernard Shaw. Three years ago the dramatist, who is now on a world tour, paid $15 and became a life member of County Wexford Beekeepers' association and the beekeepers were proud of their distinguished colleague. But that was before the publication of his "Adventures of a Black Girl in Her Search for God." Now every sting in the beekeepers' association is being prepared for action.

Removal of "G. B. S." from the membership roll was proposed at the meeting at Enniscorthy today because of his "blasphemous statements regarding Christ and his apostles" in the book.

"Even though we are only a small country association we do not want to be associated with a man who makes observations that strike with sarcastic ridicule at the very foundations of Christianity," declared Dr. Greene, who proposed to expel Shaw.

Another member referred to the dramatist as "That infidel." A final decision was delayed until the annual meeting next month.

AN EVANSTON COP PUSHES A BUTTON AND GETS ACTION

A burglar alarm was installed at the home of George B. Dryden, 1314 Ridge avenue, Evanston, wealthy rubber manufacturer, after a burglary two years ago. It was connected directly with the Evanston police station.

The alarm rang yesterday. Three police squads dashed to the home. Guns drawn, they crept around the house to the back door and found Patrolman Robert Allen still pushing the button that set off the alarm.

"I was trying to get in and serve some subpoenas," he explained. The subpoenas, issued for an automobile accident case in which the Dryden car was involved, were served on Mrs. Dryden and the chauffeur. The squads went back to the station.

SECOND TWINS IN YEAR BORN TO CHICAGO COUPLE

Mrs. Marie Colson, 25 years old, of 1917 Lincoln avenue, yesterday presented her husband, Gilbert, with their second pair of twins within a year. The first twins, James and Jean, were born last Jan. 10. Yesterday's arrivals, born at the Chicago Memorial hospital, East 33d street and Lake Park avenue, also were a boy and a girl. The boy weighed three pounds 14½ ounces and the girl, 4 pounds 1½ ounces. The mother and children were reported "doing nicely." Mr. Colson is a clerk for an automobile insurance company.

France Votes to Lend Austria $14,000,000

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, Dec. 29.—In what seemed to many a spirit of contradiction and to others a perfectly logical step continuing a creative policy, the chamber of deputies, which two weeks ago had refused to pay $19,261,432 in war debt interest to the United States, consented today, by a vote of 352 to 188, to loan Austria $14,000,000 in fulfillment of a promise given at Lausanne.

Those who found a contradiction between the two actions were those like Louis Marin, the Nationalist, who had been most firmly opposed to paying the United States. It would be monstrous, said Marin, within a few days of having refused to pay the United States, to grant this favor to a former enemy country which would assist only the banks and be of no real use to Austria.

Calls It "Concession."

Former Finance Minister Pierre Etienne Flandin developed the same theme, insisting especially that this loan would serve only to refloat the Kredit Anstalt and thaw out some credits of other banks in Austria.

He regarded the whole operation as another "concession" by France, and advocated a different policy.

"Instead of throwing good money after bad," he said, "why should not France take over the Austrian customs and the tobacco monopoly in repayment of arrears on the 1922 loan?"

The acuteness of the division of opinion and policy between the two sides of the chamber in such international matters was shown when former Premier Edouard Herriot spoke. His answer to Flandin was that only last year he, who was now defending the so-called interest of the French investors, had loaned over $18,000,000 to Hungary without authorization of parliament.

Expresses Two Remedies.

There were only two remedies for the Austrian situation, he said:

"Either Austria must be incorporated into Germany or maintained as an independent unit in Europe organized under the protection of the league of nations."

Again Flandin interrupted to protest it was only new foreign credits that had permitted Austria to pay the interest on past loans.

This reasoning could also have been applied to Germany in the past, Herriot replied. She had paid reparations by borrowing. The alternative, he said, was to tell Austria that an economic union with Germany was the only good solution.

Premier Joseph Paul-Boncour, confident of his majority and of Socialist support, but convinced of the need to protect members who might be reproached in their constituencies with having given French money away, attached to the vote a question of confidence. Like Herriot, he saw no contradiction between this loan and the refusal to pay the American debt.

"They were separate questions," he said. "The chamber had refused to pay the United States. Would it also refuse to help Austria and permit that unfortunate country to be exposed to all kinds of temptations?"

EVEN A FORTUNE TELLER CAN'T SEE ALL THE FUTURE

Two gypsy women entered a poultry store at 6814 Stony Island avenue last evening and told the proprietor, Raymond Goldberg, they would like to tell his fortune. When Goldberg declared that he did not believe in such things one of the women drew a pistol from under her shawl and pointed it at him.

"You are going to lose some money," she said, after glancing at Goldberg's palms, which were high above his head.

Taking $9, the women fled in an automobile driven by a masculine gypsy. A little later the trio were arrested by Policemen Frank Butts and Henry Murphy of the Brighton Park station, who had heard of the robbery by radio. Mary Ephraim, 25 years old, one of the motorists, was identified by Goldberg as the gunwoman. With her were her husband, Steve, and Rose Miller, 37 years old. All said they lived at Whiting, Ind.

Crazed Negro Slain After Four Murders

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Fort Huachuca, Ariz., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Called to fill the gasoline tank of Capt. Joseph R. Wessely's car here today, Private James H. Abernathy, Negro, drew a pistol and killed the captain. He put the body out of the car, then drove to the captain's home on officers' row. There he killed the captain's wife.

Meanwhile, the alarm had been sounded, but Abernathy had time to drive to the home of Capt. David A. Palmer, where he killed that officer and Mrs. Palmer, while David, 12, hid his sister, Polly, 10, in a closet.

Lieut. Harvie Matthews tried to seize the Negro, but was wounded by a bullet. By that time Corporal Peter Hardley, post guard, had come up and killed Abernathy.

Believes Killer Insane.

Lieut. Col. Tomlinson, acting commandant of the post, declared that he believed Abernathy, a private of the Quartermaster corps, who formerly had a good record, had become suddenly insane. Others believed that in a sudden attack of madness he had intended to kill additional officers. He had been a sergeant, but had been demoted following an auto accident three years ago, in which a man was killed at Douglas, Ariz. Surrendered to the civil authorities, he first pleaded "not guilty" of manslaughter, then changed the plea to guilty and received a suspended sentence of 11 years.

Both of the slain captains had attained the temporary rank of major in the world war. Capt. Wessely had held that rank in the Quartermaster corps, and Capt. Palmer had come from a training camp and received a commission in the national army. The former had risen from the ranks of the regular army, enlisting in 1908. Mrs. Palmer was the former Mary Lowden of Dedham, Mass. Mrs. Wessely was from Cedar Rapids, Ia.

Following an investigation, Fort Commander Lieutenant Colonel M. C. Tomlinson's board issued this official statement:

"No motive for the crimes is known to the officers at Fort Huachuca, but Abernathy undoubtedly was suffering from temporary insanity."

Col. R. S. Knox, commanding officer of the 25th infantry, said:

"In so far as regiment is concerned there is no breach of discipline, but, on the other hand, great commendation for Corporal Peter Hardley, who pursued and killed murderer."

Members of the board said informally if Hardley had not acted they would "hesitate to say where Abernathy's killings among commissioned officers would have ended, since he was going from house to house in rotation."

Famous Cavalry Post.

This fort, a famous cavalry post since the frontier days, had been occupied recently by the Tenth United States cavalry, a famous regiment of Negro troopers. It now has most of the companies of the Twenty-fifth United States infantry, also Negroes. The officers killed were on duty with that regiment.

Their commanding officer, Col. R. S. Knox, was at Nogales at the time of the shooting. Informed of the affair by army radio, he left tonight and will conduct the inquiry here. His regiment has been concentrated here because of plans of the war department to abandon camps Stephen D. Little and Harry Jones, both in Arizona.

Sketch of Two Captains.

Capt. Palmer was born at Orleans, Mass., April 14, 1890. He was graduated from an officers' training camp at the outset of the war and appointed a captain as from Beverly, Mass. He was promoted to major in the national army during the war, but reverted to the rank of captain after peace was declared. He was graduated from the command and general staff school, the infantry school and was eligible to appointment to the general staff corps.

Capt. Wessely, born in Boerne, Tex., was 56 years old; he reverted to the rank of captain in 1920.

Also a native Texan, Lieut. Matthews, 33, was graduated with honors from the Texas Agricultural and Mechanical college at College Station, Tex. Attending the officers' training school during the war, he received his first regular commission in 1921 as from Chapel Hill, Tex., and became a first lieutenant in 1926.

Abernathy enlisted from Houston, Tex.

Santa Has Something to Answer for in Bellwood

The Santa Claus delivery of air rifles in Bellwood was heavy this year. Since Christmas their new owners have broken fifty of the village's street lights. At $6 a light the repair bill is $300. In the hope of halting the use of the illuminating system as a target the police have adopted the policy of taking the rifles from all boys found carrying them on the streets.

GOV. ROOSEVELT IS RECEPTIVE TO ECONOMY PLAN

Congress May Grant Him New Power.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—President Elect Roosevelt will be a taskmaster for government economy if the present congress gives him the authority, he made it plain today.

Political logrolling, long the bane of governmental economics, which leads congressmen to lend ears to pressure from certain home folk instead of to the pleas for public thrift, can be obviated, it was declared by Mr. Roosevelt's closest advisers, if congress will grant the President elect the powers described in dispatches emanating from Washington today.

The proposal, which was to attach a provision to the appropriation bill to be passed by the present congress, under which Mr. Roosevelt, after March 4, would be given broad powers to effect economies on his own initiative, received the enthusiastic approval of the President elect, it was learned upon high authority.

Favor Presidential Power.

According to the Washington dispatches, the Democratic congressional leaders are despairing of balancing the budget, either through the levying of new taxes or by effecting economies. The congressmen are said to feel that the broader slashings of federal expenditures must be done by the President—that he alone has the influence and political independence to put them over.

The Democratic leaders are loath to vest this power in President Hoover, feeling that it should be the incoming President, Mr. Roosevelt, who should reorganize the government, and therefore, according to the news from Washington, they are of the opinion that a provision of the pending appropriation bill should give Mr. Roosevelt the right, after his March 4 inauguration, to act, solely upon his executive authority, to consolidate or eliminate bureaus, and to banish other costly governmental activities, all in the interests of economy.

Sees Political Pressure.

Mr. Roosevelt in his discussions with his advisers today told them plainly that he would be "most happy" if such authority were given him. The President elect recognizes, it was made plain, that often the members of congress are under political pressure to vote for continuation of costly bureaus in which, perchance, some of their own pay-rollers may be ensconced.

Such political millstones do not hang around the President elect's neck, he declared, and if congress cannot undertake the job of using the ax freely he is quite eager to take it from them. He made it apparent, however, that he would not essay to play the part of a czar, and that he would recognize the right of congress to survey the work he has done.

Gov. Roosevelt feels, it was said, that his experience with the New York legislature, which led him to a dominating part in the New York state government without alienating him from the legislators and without surrendering their support, has fitted him to undertake a similar job in cutting the driftwood from the federal pay rolls.

He Expects Support.

The governor is convinced, he told his intimates, that he will receive the unanimous support of the thinking members of the congress in his efforts to restore the government to a sound fiscal basis.

There was some thought among the governor's staff that congress, by granting Mr. Roosevelt the right to slash expenses, might eliminate the need for the calling of a special session of the new congress after March 4, but the prevailing opinion was that other legislation, including farm relief and the beer bill, will not be satisfactorily settled in this congress and will necessitate a special session anyway.

The President elect will discuss these developments in New York City next week, when he is expected to meet Speaker John N. Garner, the Vice President elect, and other Democratic national leaders at his East 65th street house.

To Study U. S. Problems.

Mr. Roosevelt will remain in Albany until late Saturday, when he will attend the installation ceremonies for Governor Elect Herbert H. Lehman. He will spend Sunday at his home at Hyde Park, returning to Albany Monday for the formal Lehman inaugural. Then he will put the cares of the New York state government behind him and will devote all of his time to studying the problems of the federal government, and in formulating his program for lifting the country from the economic depression.

The governor's advisers said he was unperturbed by the assaults upon him initiated by Republican leaders who criticized his failure to lead the present congress into a comprehensive legislative program for balancing the budget. When he is really the President of the United States, it was said, Mr. Roosevelt will have no hesitancy in putting forth aggressive moves toward better times.

DELAY BUDGET ACTION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Democratic congressional discussions of the last few days crystallized today into a decision to pass the problem of balancing the budget on to the Roosevelt administration.

As a move in this direction, Democratic leaders today announced with a flourish that tentative agreement has been reached to push through legislation at this session giving President Elect Roosevelt the widest latitude within which to completely reorganize government departments.

Savings effected through eliminating overlapping and surplus bureaus plus cuts in general and permanent appropriations, it was said, would be counted upon to bring the 1934 budget close to a balance. The hope was expressed that the revenue derived from a beer tax passed at this session plus certain other revenue items would serve to bring receipts into balance with national expenditures as soon as Mr. Roosevelt has his reorganization scheme operating.

Calls for Beer Bill.

The Democratic program as outlined today calls for pushing through a beer bill at this session, the reduction of all appropriation bills below budget estimates and a house ways and means inquiry into the possibilities of raising new revenue through continuation of the gasoline tax and the addition of other excise or nuisance taxes. The sales tax has been tossed into the discard in deference to Mr. Roosevelt's wishes.

That the Democrats plan no serious move to balance the budget at this session was indicated in another quarter today when it was learned that up to date the treasury has not been asked to submit any tax recommendations to congress. It was reported that treasury officials have been quietly informed their advice on tax matters will not be needed.

Passage of the supply bills is expected to be about the only business the house will transact during the final twom onths of the session.

Byrns to Offer Plan.

The proposal to clothe the incoming President with broad powers to reorganize and consolidate the huge, unwieldy government departments is to be offered by Chairman Joseph W. Byrns [Dem., Tenn.] as an amendment to the second deficiency bill, which comes late in the present session. If the plan is given the support of President Elect Roosevelt it is possible the reorganization amendment will be offered at earlier date.

"The theory of the whole proposition," Speaker Garner said today, "is that if Mr. Roosevelt were given complete authority he could abolish some of the government agencies and thereby effect savings which would go a long way toward balancing the budget. I hope congress will see its way to granting him power to effect these reorganizations."

The speaker added that as a further effort toward economy it was possible congress might repeal all of the permanent appropriations, leaving only those intact which provide for payment of the public debt and sinking fund.

Majority Leader Henry T. Rainey [Dem., Ill.] and Chairman Byrns both took the position that in order to effect reorganization of the government very broad powers would have to be given the President. Chairman Byrns said his opinion was that congress could not effect reorganizations.

Mrs. Mary Mooney Fails to See Gov. Roosevelt

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 29.—(AP)—Mrs. Mary Mooney, 84 year old mother of Tom Mooney, serving a life sentence in San Quentin prison, California, failed today to see President Elect Franklin D. Roosevelt for the purpose of interceding for her son. Guernsey T. Cross, Gov. Roosevelt's secretary, told Mrs. Mooney he was not certain that the President elect would be able to see her at all this week.

SENATE UPKEEP COSTS TAXPAYER 4 MILLION A YEAR

Statesmen Draw $46,000 for Train Rides.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—It cost the taxpayers of the United States $4,116,455 to maintain the United States senate during the fiscal year which ended last June 30. This was the total shown in the annual report of the secretary of the senate made public today.

More interesting than the total, however, were some of the items which made it up.

For example, that ancient legislative prerogative, senatorial mileage—drawn whether used or not and regardless of the actual fare paid—set the taxpayers back $46,329.

Curtis' Chauffeur Gets $2,900.

The bill for the maintenance and repair of the Lincoln limousine furnished Vice President Curtis cost, including chauffeur's salary, $2,949.74.

The senate restaurant, which is often called on to prepare delicacies for teas given by senators' wives as well as to serve meals at the capitol, meant a $56,628 nick in the senate contingent fund.

One of the treats which the senators give themselves—at public expense—is to have several brands of mineral water always on hand in offices and committeerooms. The report contained, here and there, such items as these:

Mountain Valley water, $66.50; White Rock splits, $53.90; Kalak water, $87.58; Poland water, $52.50.

Free Shaves for Statesmen.

Another senatorial luxury is the senate barber shop, where the weary statesman can get a free shave, haircut, and massage. Massages evidently were popular—perhaps the social season was particularly strenuous—for one $113 payment for barber shop supplies included $21.60 for 36 pounds of Nacirema cream.

That life in the senate wing is not all mineral water splits and hair tonics, however, was proved by another expenditure—for 54 gallons of insecticide at $89.10.

Senate investigations took their usual toll. As usual, Senator Gerald P. Nye's special committee on campaign expenditures was up near the top of the list with an outlay of more than $16,000. His job, though, was not half so pleasant as the one to which Senators Frederick Walcott [Rep., Conn.] and Peter Norbeck [radical Rep., S. D.] devoted themselves in behalf of the committee on the preservation of wild life.

Two Senators on Inspection.

One bill paid as a part of the two senators' trip of inspection to Alaska called for $2,145.90. Another showed that it cost Senator Walcott $919.25 to get from Massachusetts to Seattle and back. And Morris Legendre, who went with them, is recorded as having paid $82.10 for "aeroplane service over Kenai peninsula inspecting moose and sheep country for Senators Walcott and Norbeck."

Senator Key Pittman [Dem., Nev.] was another to devote himself to his country as chairman of the subcommittee on foreign relations to investigate treaties and relations with China. During his trip from San Francisco to Shanghai and return the senator paid one Isaac Ezra $1,722 to serve as assistant and interpreter.

Roosevelt's Cabinet Making Like Forming of Ball Team

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—From what I hear of the current problems of Mr. Roosevelt I gather that he is in very much the same position that old Uncle Wilbert Robinson occupied during the years when he was manager of the Brooklyn baseball club and was coming year after year with a ball team composed of a lot of guys named Joe.

Uncle Wilbert had a way of reaching out and dusting off obscure athletes who had been around and around the leagues, especially the minor leagues, and going along with them. He didn't win many pennants, but he was always, as he said, up there or thereabouts at the end of the season. He did not have his pick of the talent as McGraw and Miller Huggins and Joe McCarthy had, but he always did all right or a little better.

May Affect Cabinet Making.

I hope you will not quote me, as they say in Washington, but it is my information that the pick of the Democratic talent will be otherwise engaged during the next few years and will not be able to help Mr. Roosevelt out with his work.

Two of the heavy hitting outfielders who probably are expected by the public to join his club will be very busily occupied with troubles of their own which never would have overtaken them if they had been half as smart as people thought they were.

A third one won't report because public life has lost its glamour for him and anyway his business—call it a poolroom, gasoline station, or bowling alley if you like—yields him a comfortable income.

Another one is in hock and has lost his independence. And so forth. The upshot of it all is, as I understand it, that the big drawing cards of this league are unavailable and that the Democratic party is leaving it up to Mr. Roosevelt to do what he can with a lot of guys named Joe and take the blame for everything that happens between now and then. So maybe his cruise to the Caribbean will be a scouting trip.

The national politics of this country is divided into two groups, roughly corresponding, for our purposes, to the National and American leagues of baseball. They are rivals for business, prestige, and power in their game, and once a man has allied himself to one league he shuts himself out of the other forever, although on close examination very little difference may be found between them.

Taboo Changes Only Slightly.

In the baseball business this taboo is not as rigorously observed as it used to be and there are nowadays many players who have seen service on both sides. In former years, however, the National league, which somehow seems to me to correspond to the Republican party, was the dominant league, and there were men who called themselves National leaguers with a feeling and ring of pride similar to that of a Republican declaring himself in the time of Coolidge and the fifty dollar fight ticket.

They recognized the existence of the American league, of course, but did not regard it as any fit field for their own activities nor any fit rival for the National. It was just the opposition, and, of course, every party needs opposition to keep it on its toes and moderately honest.

This feeling in baseball has softened, however, and on both sides it is now recognized that the players and their abilities and the game they play are interchangeable, so the boys switch from one to the other without inconvenience, embarrassment, or prejudice. This could be true of national politics, too, and the time may come when a President of one side may serve himself and the nation by drafting good men from the other side to help him out during his term, for the incidental good of his party, no doubt, but, more importantly, for the good of the game or the U. S. A., if you want to put it in Fourth of July language.

That time, however, is not yet, and so no hick prosecutor of Democratic faith may consider himself immune to appointment as attorney general until the warrants are made out on March 4. So, also, no foreman of rowboats on a park lagoon will be completely out of the danger of the navy job in the cabinet, and no change maker in a subway booth or all night lunch but may regard himself as a possible secretary of the treasury.

Anybody May Be Chosen.

I am allowed to infer that Mr. Roosevelt's cabinet will be largely composed of guys named Joe, selected from among the ordinary journeymen or old crocks of his party, and that, whatever qualifications they may have, they will not have big, drawing card names.

Well, that needn't discourage him altogether, because old Uncle Wilbert, when he was with the Robins in Brooklyn, was always picking up guys by the name of Joe whom every one else had either looked over and discarded or overlooked entirely, and winding up in first division with them, which is a great trick for Mr. Roosevelt to do under present conditions, if he can do it.

If Mr. Roosevelt can shy a rock into some bush down in some Alabama county seat and scare out a statesman for his cabinet who would correspond to Dazzy Vance, discovered in this manner by Uncle Wilbert, he will do better for himself and all concerned than he might have if he had had the pick of the party for his club.

Chance for the Obscure.

Some statesman who have been up there for a long time become heavy legged and dead armed long before they know it, and there may be guys named Joe way off nowhere who would do a better job for Mr. Roosevelt, although, of course, it takes luck and smart picking to find this kind. Dazzy Vance was just a guy named Joe, Babe Herman was a guy named Joe, and there were twenty others of the same dime a dozen kind who were brought up to Brooklyn when the old fat man was running the club and made good in a funny but generally effective way. They got their shoes on the wrong feet and they carried cigar butts, pet mice, and sneeze powder in their pockets, but they played him some amazingly good ball in streaks, and he could have taken his pick of the leagues and done a lot worse several seasons.

One thing I am sure of. For all the formal protestations of good will and hope from the opposition, nobody on the wrong side will wish Mr. Roosevelt anything but the worst of it during his four years as manager of the club. They will wish him well for publication, adding that they have the interests of the country at heart; but politicians thrive on the failures of their rivals, and the worse Mr. Roosevelt's administration flops, the better the Republicans' chances will be to move back in and take over the jobs and the power in 1936. Let us not be naive about this.

2 PROSECUTORS DISCUSS INQUIRY ON ILLINOIS LIFE

State's Attorney Courtney yesterday conferred with United States Attorney Dwight H. Green regarding the state and federal investigations of the Illinois Life Insurance company. Both prosecutors said their conference was limited to the matter of exchanging evidence uncovered by the agents of each office. The government's investigation has been under way for several weeks.

Members of the staff of Gen. Abel Davis, receiver of the company, said they hoped to complete their audit of the insurance company's books today, but that no report would be made to Judge James H. Wilkerson before Monday or Tuesday.

State Registration Dept. Cuts Cost of Investigating

Chief Investigator J. E. Edwards of the state department of registration and education yesterday made public his annual report. An increase in the number of investigations and a drop in the average cost of an investigation from $29 to $1.45 under the present administration, is shown. In the eighteen branches of the department 8,855 inspections were made from Jan. 1, 1923, to Jan. 1, 1929, the report shows. Since 1929, 54,795 inspections have been made. In the year ending last July 1 the department made 20,356 inspections and investigations.

PEACE APPEARS NEAR IN TEMPEST OVER 'COLUMBUS'

Art Board Objects Only to Statue's Pedestal.

The controversy over the proposed statue of Christopher Columbus, to be erected in Grant park, was reported to be approaching a peaceful conclusion last night. Thomas E. Tallmadge, chairman of the state board of art advisers and chief critic of the statue, conferred yesterday with Judge Francis Borrelli, president of the committee for the monument, and Giuseppe Castruccio, Italian consul.

"It was all a misunderstanding," Consul Castruccio announced after the conference. "Mr. Tallmadge has withdrawn his objection. He admitted that it was not the statue but the pedestal that he did not like. Clarence H. Johnston, St. Paul architect, who designed the pedestal, is coming to Chicago to discuss the matter with Mr. Tallmadge and the art board."

Art Report Starts Controversy.

Mr. Tallmadge could not be reached yesterday. The controversy was started by the art board's annual report to Gov. Emmerson. The report termed the statue "very bad" and said that it should not be placed on public land. It charged that the statue was approved by the south park board without the public knowing of the project.

The park board had failed to furnish models or pictures of the statue to the board of art advisers despite promises to do so, the report said.

George T. Donoghue, superintendent of the south park board, expressed indifference to the matter yesterday.

Foundation Is Built.

"There's nothing we can do about it now," he said. "Everything was taken into consideration when the site was granted. The foundation has been built and we don't propose to be mixed up in the controversy.

"We sent the photographers of the model and details of treatment to a number of prominent artists and accepted their approval. They were the same artists who passed on the Leif Ericson statue model. There were some complaints about the arms and legs not being proportionate and the complaints were referred to artists. We can only follow the judgment of those who know about such matters."

Sculptor in Italy.

The statute, the gift of Italian-American citizens of Chicago and Cook county, is to be placed at Columbus drive and Roosevelt road. It has been sent to Italy to be cast in bronze and will reach the United States on Jan. 15.

The statue was designed by Charles Brioschi of St. Paul, who is in Milan, Italy, superintending the casting work. Amerigo Brioschi, son of the sculptor, said yesterday in St. Paul that he could not understand the criticism.

Quirk, Accused of Slugging in Beer Fight, Is Acquitted

CRIMINAL COURT.

Edward Thompson and George Harvey, assault to rob, sentenced to 1 to 14 years each in the penitentiary by Judge Philip L. Sullivan.

After brief deliberation a jury in the Municipal court last evening found Martin (Sonny) Quirk, south side beer peddler, not guilty on a charge of assaulting Patrick Joyce, owner of a restaurant at 6440 Cottage Grove. Joyce alleged that Quirk and another man struck him with pistol butts when he refused to buy beer from them.

The case was given to the jury shortly after 5 p. m. and the verdict was ready in less than an hour and a half. It was not read until 7:15 p. m., Judge Robert J. Dunne not arriving to receive the report until that time.

View of Jury Foreman.

Paul H. Purnell, foreman of the jury, said that the first ballot was 10 to 2 for acquittal and that those for conviction were speedily won over. He added that the failure of two state witnesses to identify Quirk as one of the men who slugged Joyce was the most important element in the decision.

"The fact that Quirk was a bootlegger made no difference," he said. "Joyce was selling beer, too."

In his closing argument Assistant State's Attorney Charles Dougerty had pleaded for the jury to aid in halting the hoodlum rule of violence.

"Quirk acted as prosecutor, judge and jury in his own business," the prosecutor said. "He found Joyce guilty of buying some one else's beer. If that practice is to be tolerated we may as well tear down the county building and the city hall and turn the government over to hoodlums of the type of Quirk."

Quirk Gives His Alibi.

Detectives and hoodlums mingled in the crowded courtroom. Quirk was the star performer of the day's session. Attired in faultless gangster style, he took the witness stand and explained that he was in the Rubaiyat café, 657 St. Clair street, at the time of the assault on Joyce, which occurred about 9:45 o'clock on the night of Dec. 9.

Mary Hickey, 24 year old checkroom girl at the café, had preceded Quirk to the stand to prepare the way for the alibi. She said that on the night of the assault Quirk and his wife were in the club from 4:30 o'clock until midnight. The manager, Sam Semerman, also remembered seeing Quirk in the café.

Cross-examined by Prosecutor Dougherty, neither could remember other persons in the club on the same night—what the band played or what time the floor show started or ended.

Quirk explained from the witness stand that he is not working now, but had been a delivery boy and man of all work in the Schraeberg Fruit company, 27th street and Ashland avenue, until he lost his job last October.

Blames Race Bet Dispute.

The charge against him arose, Quirk said, through a misunderstanding with Joyce over a bet on a horse race.

"I had been in Joyce's place to bet—I never drink," Quirk testified. "One day I went to the place to bet $18, part of it for my friends. I had never bet that much before. The horse won and paid 17 to 2. Joyce said he was sorry he couldn't get the bets placed."

"Did you attempt to prevail on him to pay?" Defense Attorney James M. Burke asked.

"Yes," Quirk answered. "We had an argument, so I punched him on the jaw. The next time I saw him was at the detective bureau, when he had me arrested."

In the cross-examination by Prosecutor Dougherty, Quirk was asked why he had given Joyce the telephone number of a hotel to call instead of his home.

"Didn't Want Wife to Know."

The witness looked at his wife, who had attended the trial since its beginning, and lowered his voice.

"I didn't want my wife to know I had bet on the races," he said.

Fred Farley, who was arrested with Quirk on a charge of having taken part in the alleged assault on Joyce and who was granted a separate trial, followed Quirk to the stand. Asked if he was in the Joyce restaurant on the night of the assault, Farley said:

"No, I was playing bridge in a little club on Rush street. The club is run by two girls. I remember the night very well because it is the first time I ever won a prize. It was a pen and pencil set."

C. H. WEBER OPENS FIGHT TO UPSET SIMPSON VICTORY

County Commissioner Charles H. Weber opened his recount contest yesterday against James Simpson Jr., who was shown by the returns to have defeated him for congressman from the Tenth Illinois district in the election of Nov. 8.

The state canvassing board proclamation showed Simpson the winner by 1,223 votes. Weber sent to Washington by registered mail his petition to congress for a recount. He charged that fraud and error combined to rob him of many thousand votes in the north shore district.

The 27 page document recited specific violations of the election laws in more than 200 precincts, alleging that the trail of fraud ran not only through many Chicago precincts but through suburban Evanston and as far north as the religious community of Zion.

"Democratic leaders have encouraged me to bring the contest," said Commissioner Weber, "and I have reason to hope that a Democratic congress will substitute speedy action for dilatory tactics that have held up similar contests when the Republicans were in control."

FILIPINO LIBERTY BILL APPROVED; VETO IS HINTED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—It is now up to President Hoover to decide the future of the Philippines, where Dewey's guns, May 1, 1898, roared out the announcement that the United States had become a world power.

Congressional approval of a bill to free the islands was concluded late today when the house, without a roll call, voted 171 to 16 in favor of the measure.

By all previous indications the President will reject the bill, but of his action there is as yet no certainty. Should his decision be one of disapproval it will doubtless be on the three chief grounds which have been laid down by Secretary of War Hurley and Secretary of State Stimson—that now is no time to turn an infant nation loose in the disturbed arena of the orient; that the independence bill leaves the United States half in and half out for a dozen years with responsibility and little power, and that the Philippines are not yet economically fit for freedom.

10 Year Probationary Bill.

Under the terms of the bill, which provides a 10 year probationary period under a commonwealth government, preceded by a period of not longer than two years during which a commonwealth constitution would be drawn up, complete independence would be granted the islands probably between 1943 and 1945.

The congressional action concluded by today's house vote was in part the work of those intent on keeping the American pledge of freedom for the 13 million Filipinos in the islands, but the chief impulse that sent the bill across almost without opposition came from the American farm interests frantic to cut off the free imports of Philippine sugar, cocoanut oil, and rope fiber.

It was not the promise contained in the Jones act but the revelation that came to the farm organizations when the 1930 tariff act hearings were in progress that lay behind the bill. It was then that the farmers learned forcibly that no duty could be placed on Philippine imports so long as the present laws were in force.

Restrictions on Imports.

The bill, therefore, places drastic restrictions on Philippine sugar, cocoanut oil, and fiber imports; restricts immigration from the islands, and grants no final plebiscite at the end of the trial period, so that once embarked for freedom the Filipinos cannot turn back.

Only an hour was required for the final debate in the house. Though a quorum was lacking, parliamentary strategy forbade the bill's opponents from raising the question. Counting on a presidential veto, they hoped that members would vote to support it, but feared that if forced to a vote today they would vote favorably and so be bound to an affirmative stand.

The independence act, which received final approval at the hands of congress today, will not, even though signed by the President, go into force until the Philippine legislature or a convention called for the purpose so decides.

Once in effect, the act would provide for a constitutional convention to meet within a year to draft a constitution for the Commonwealth of the Philippine Islands. The constitution is required to be republican in form, contain a bill of rights, and include guarantees protecting the interests of the United States and of American citizens. It must be ready for submission to the President within two years of the going into effect of the act.

Free Entry Would Stop.

If the President approves, the constitution is to be submitted to a vote of the Philippine people and this vote is to be considered as an expression of the people concerning freedom. If the vote should be unfavorable, the progress toward independence halts and the present government continues. If it is favorable, officers of the commonwealth are elected and there begins the ten year probationary period. During this period the following laws with respect to Philippine imports into the United States apply:

Free entry would be done away with and regular tariff rates imposed on all Philippine sugar entering the United States in excess of 50,000 long tons of refined and 800,000 long tons of raw sugar a year; on all Philippine cocoanut oil in excess of 200,000 long tons a year, and on all Philippine cordage and fibers in excess of 3,000,000 pounds a year. Provision is made for allocating the duty free amounts of these commodities among Philippine producers.

On all duty free articles sent to the United States the Philippine government would levy an export tax beginning at the rate of 5 per cent in the six years following the inauguration of the new government and increasing to 25 per cent in the tenth year. The revenues from this tax would be used to service the obligations of the Philippine government and its subdivisions until those obligations are retired.

Make Treaty with U. S.

In addition to these restrictions the act provides sharp limitations on immigration. Immediately on the act's first approval by the insular legislature the islands would be considered a foreign country and given a quota of 50 a year.

On the Fourth of July following the expiration of the ten year period the President would proclaim the freedom of the Philippine islands and withdraw all American sovereignty except over American military reservations agreed upon, and provided that the constitution of the islands secured the acknowledgment and settlement of American property rights; that it continued in office the officials elected and serving under the commonwealth; that it assumed responsibility for its bonds and obligations; that it assumed all continuing obligations under the treaty of cession with Spain; and provided the Philippines shall make a treaty with the United States embodying these pledges.

The act requires the President to begin immediate negotiations for a treaty with foreign powers guaranteeing the neutrality of the Philippines.

Grieving over the death of Clement Studebaker Jr., whose devoted employé he had been for 29 years, and fearful of poverty for himself and family, Peter Peterson, 60 years old, shot and killed his wife and daughter, then ended his own life, in his flat at 715 Brompton place yesterday morning.

The three deaths followed within 24 hours the discovery in the Probate court that an old will of Mr. Studebaker, who was president of the North American Light and Power company, in which Peterson had been given $5,000, had been filed by mistake. A later will, in which Peterson was not mentioned, was substituted.

Explain Delay in Filing Will.

Attorneys for the family said that the Probate court incident could hardly have influenced Peterson, as all concerned knew about the new will and it had not been formally filed merely because of the mistake of a court clerk who stamped the wrong document.

The victims of Peterson's pistol were his daughter, Pauline, 20 year old honor student at Northwestern university, and his wife, Anna, 40 years old.

Peterson killed his wife and daughter as they lay asleep. Both were shot twice in the head. He then penned a note to Mrs. Carl Sautel, Villa Park, a niece, in which he declared his sorrow over Mr. Studebaker's death, which occurred Dec. 3, and said he had lost all his life's savings in the stock market.

Calls Studebaker Son's Home.

Picking up a telephone, he called Clement Studebaker III., son of his late employer, in the son's home at 442 Wellington street. Mrs. Studebaker answered the phone.

"I've just sent Pauline and Anna to join Mr. Studebaker," Peterson told her. "I'm going to join them in a few minutes."

Studebaker went to the telephone and attempted to dissuade Peterson, but the latter hung up. Peterson then called the police and notified them of the two murders, announced his intention of suicide, and hung up.

When the police and Studebaker arrived they found Peterson lying beside the body of his wife, a bullet in his head, and a revolver beside him.

Peterson was first a coachman and then a chauffeur for the Studebaker family, Mr. Studebaker said. He said that Peterson received a salary of $200 a month and was in no danger of losing his job.

Mr. Studebaker said that Peterson knew he would be taken care of by the Studebaker family. He had once promised Peterson to finance his daughter's education in case Peterson were unable to do so, Studebaker said.

Blames Father's Death.

"I am sure my dad's death is responsible for this," the son said. "Peterson went to pieces when dad died. My father treated him like a member of the family."

In the note to Mrs. Sautel, Peterson wrote: "I see nothing to live for since Mr. Studebaker died. I have not had any sleep for I do not know how long. I have nothing to look forward to but poverty and I am afraid of going insane."

The later will of Mr. Studebaker, filed Wednesday, left the $2,000,000 estate outright to the widow, Mrs. Alice Studebaker, 1500 Lake Shore drive. In the earlier document half the estate was given to the widow and half to the children, with several other small bequests, including the $5,000 donation to Peterson.

A coroner's jury after investigating the three deaths returned a verdict of murder and suicide.

Jury Recesses

Phoenix, Ariz., Dec. 29.—(AP)—The Maricopa county grand jury recessed late today until tomorrow without having returned any true bills in connection with Winnie Ruth Judd's appearance before it.

The blonde "trunk slayer" waited in her cell of the state prison at Florence, Ariz., for developments as a result of her testimony here yesterday. She was closeted with the grand jury four hours.

The grand jurymen, it was known, had conferred with Superior Judge Howard C. Speakman, who presided over Mrs. Judd's trial for the murder of Agnes Anne Leroi Oct. 16, 1931, which resulted in her conviction and sentence to death, and with John L. Brickerhoff, investigator of the county attorney's office.

There was no indication of the grand jury's intentions in regard to the story of Mrs. Judd, in which, it was reported, she had sought to absolve herself of portions of the crime.

RUSSIA FORBIDS HOUSEWIVES TO BUY BREAD, SUGAR

Extends "No Work, No Food" Policy.

MOSCOW, Dec. 29.—(AP)—Russian housewives, who now may purchase for themselves small rations of bread and sugar from the government stores, will lose that privilege after Jan. 1. Thereafter they will have to earn those commodities by working in the factories.

The government decreed today that after the first of the year all housewives under the age of 56 will be deprived of the cards which entitle them to purchase sugar and bread. In the category of housewives are included all healthy women not engaged in "socially useful" work. The wives of a number of high government officials are in this class.

Reflects Food Shortage.

The new order reflects the continuing food shortage and is an extension of the government's "no work-no food" policy. Its object, apparently is to bring more women into industrial occupations with a view to ultimate abolition of the home as the unit of family life.

At the end of 1931 a census of Moscow showed approximately 100,000 housewives. Eighteen per cent of them were over 60, but it was estimated that by the end of 1932 the number would have been reduced by half.

Work or Fast.

Under the present arrangement the housewife is entitled to 400 grams of bread and 800 grams of sugar a month from the regular government supply stores. After Jan. 1 she will have to leave her home for an industrial job or give up sugar and bread.

The only alternative will be to pay the exorbitant prices at the private market where 400 grams of bread cost about $3.50 as compared with 10 cents or less at the government bakery.

Chauncey McCormick's Car Stolen in Front of Hospital

Chauncey McCormick, 2450 Lake View avenue, reported to the police last night that a sedan which he had parked in front of St. Luke's hospital was stolen. Mr. McCormick had gone to the hospital to visit his son, Deering, who is to undergo a minor operation. The automobile was a sedan bearing the 1932 Illinois license number 161,966.

John Milewski, 68 years old, 3539 School street, a retired coal miner, died in his home yesterday of injuries which he suffered when he fell while getting into the bathtub.

A BRIGHT IDEA, CARRIED TOO FAR, LEADS TO JAIL

Woman Saves Justice from Defeat.

There was a time when Robert Seiders, "alky" merchant, considered himself a very bright man. Five minutes before facing a scowl judge he conceived a story that set him free, but overconfidence in his own cleverness proved his undoing. Justice took the form of a woman betrayed and Mr. Seiders is now in jail.

The woman stood in the crowded corridor of the federal building when Seiders went to court to become the first man to be tried by Judge George E. Q. Johnson. Just a glance at her was all Seiders needed to frame his defense. He pleaded guilty and was sentenced to sixty days.

"My wife is to become a mother in two or three weeks, judge," he then said. "I'd hate to be away from her at a time like that."

Plea Wins Leniency.

Seiders' countenance was doleful like that of a man experiencing the pangs of expectant fatherhood as he stood meekly before Judge Johnson. The judge, always a kindly man, smiled benignantly as he pondered the case of his first defendant. The late was Nov. 10 and a sixty day sentence would keep Seiders away from his wife not only at childbirth but during the holidays as well. He continued the case for investigation by the probation department.

Probation Officer Thomas Smith called Seiders to his office the next day. The defendant produced a certificate signed by Dr. Carl T. Stephan on the stationery of the free dispensary operated by Rush Medical college. It stated that he had examined Josephine Seiders and found her about to realize a happy event. Seiders was again taken before Judge Johnson and his sentence was suspended.

A few days later an indignant woman called on Assistant United States Attorney Eugene A. Tappy. She wanted Mr. Seiders locked up.

"He met me in the hall of the federal building and promised me five dollars to pose as his wife," she said. "I did my part. I went out to the clinic and let them examine me. Now he refuses to pay me. Can't you put him in jail?"

"Event" Is News to Wife.

Probation Officer Smith paid a visit to the Seiders home at 2502 Keystone avenue, North Riverside, and found Mrs. Seiders at home and well. No, they were not expecting any children. Since that day Mr. Seiders has been in the county jail. He made a full confession, stating that he conceived the story when he saw the woman in the corridor.

"I thought if I was clever enough to beat that sentence I'd be a chump to give that woman five dollars," he told Officer Smith.

There can be no proceeding against Seiders for perjury, for his statements to the court were not made under oath, but tomorrow Prosecutor Tappy will file a petition asking that the defendant be punished for contempt, in addition to the sixty day sentence he is now serving.

2 MORE CAPONE MEN CAPTURED BY MAYOR'S RAIDERS

Enter 6th Floor Loop Office Through Window.

Two Capone followers were arrested by Mayor Cermak's hoodlum squad yesterday afternoon in a raid on a sixth floor office in the Great Northern building at 20 West Jackson boulevard. While one member of the squad guarded the door two others climbed through a window from a fire escape and surprised the hoodlums.

The prisoners are Sylvester Agoglia, 37 years old, 2111 South Michigan avenue, said to be wanted in New York, and Michael Costello, 37 years old, 2132 South Michigan avenue, said to be the sugar supply man for the stills owned by the remnants of the Capone syndicate. Their arrest was part of the mayor's drive on gangsters.

Suspect in Kidnaping.

Agoglia was arrested early in 1930 at Miami with Capone. He was also arrested here Nov. 10, 1931, with Dago Lawrence Mangano, Capone gangster and public enemy, as a suspect in the kidnaping of Alexander Berg, wealthy St. Louis furrier. He won release after each arrest.

The raid was made by Detectives Thomas Shea, Theodore Tierney and Harry Miller, partner of Detective Harry Lang, who was wounded two weeks ago when he arrested Frank Nitti, business manager of the syndicate. Nitti was also wounded in the exchange of shots. The day after the Nitti shooting Detective Miller shot and killed an alleged hoodlum.

The prisoners were taken to the detective bureau.

In a second raid a short time later the hoodlum squad found records in room 904 at 179 West Washington street. Racing sheets and records of taxi dance hall receipts indicated, police said, that Mangano and his followers used the office, which was unoccupied at the time of the raid.

Sell Ads to Politicians.

Other seized records indicated that the hoodlums had done an extensive business in selling advertisements to politicians and business men to appear in programs of dances and banquets. Listed as purchasers of advertising space were the names of State Senator James Leonardi, former City Sealer Daniel A. Serritella, Ald. William V. Pacelli [20th], John Citro, restaurant owner, and Frank Pope, alleged gambling racketeer.

Many of the record sheets were in code. One entry was: "75761—Joe, $100." Police believe the code key is kept in some secret place, possibly a central office as yet undiscovered.

TELL OF ENDLESS WORLD, RACE OF SUPERIOR BEINGS

Scientists Also Rebuke Vanity of Jazz Age.

Atlantic City, N. J., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—An undying universe and an eventual race of superior beings were described today to the American Association for the Advancement of Science. But, lest the present civilization become conceited over its progress toward that superiority, there were a few scientific journeys into the not too distant past to curb its vanity.

A universe that has never been created at a finite time in the past and is not doomed to die in the future, and new races of beings to spring from man as the common ancestor were pictured by outstanding authorities in their fields.

Constructs Model New Universe.

The new universe, a mathematical model which combines the laws of thermodynamics with the theory of relativity was "constructed" by Prof. Richard C. Tolman of the California Institute of Technology, who delivered the tenth annual Josiah Willard Gibbs lecture before a distinguished gathering.

In this thermodynamic-relativistic universe gravitation plays a new cosmic rôle, as the force which keeps the universe from running itself down to an ultimate inevitable standstill, as is believed by Sir Arthur Edington and Sir James Jeans, modern British Jeremiahs, who prophesy the ultimate doom of the cosmos.

There are two cosmic forces in this new universe, both perfectly balanced: radiation on the one hand and gravitation on the other. Radiation causes the universe to run itself down, while gravitation at definite rates keeps winding it up. This process of winding up, running down, and winding up again goes on forever.

Man Represents New Class of Vertebrates.

Dr. William K. Gregory of the American Museum of Natural History, New York, said in his vice presidential lecture before the anthropology section of the association that man may well represent an early stage of differentiation. Of a virtually new class of vertebrates, and that the past shows that once a new class gets started it runs for hundreds of millions of years.

Dr. Gregory constructed for the scientists the most up-to-date evolutionary ladder of twenty-five rungs, from the lowest known type of "prefish" animals, ostracoderms, which swam around in ancient waters some 250,000,000 to 300,000,000 years ago, to homo sapiens, modern man. In between he sketched 23 other stages, ranging through fish, reptiles, mammal, ape ancestors, apes, and early man.

Evolution Theory 2,500 Years Ago in China

Two Chinese scholars, Dr. Amos Benkov Kuan Chin Penn of Johns Hopkins university and Dr. Pei Sung-tang of Harvard, reported that the doctrine of evolution attributed to Darwin and Huxley was an up and doing theory in China at least 2,500 years ago.

Tsou Tse and other philosophers of the sixth century B. C. propagated the evolution of species. Violent disagreement met their hypothesis—just as in the nineteenth century A. D. the fields of biology, philosophy, and religion were divided over the theoretical descent of man.

South American Indian Dentists 600 A. D.

Dentistry's contribution to the day's discussion was offered by Dr. Bernhard Wold Weinberger, New York dental surgeon, who told of inlays of gold, turquoise, and jadeite made successfully by the Indians as early as 600 A. D., and how dentistry itself, often considered a modern science, had been practiced by numerous ancient civilizations running back to 3,000 years B. C. in Egypt.

Not only, said Dr. Weinberger, did the pre-Columbian Indians in South America understand the technic of the inlay, they alone among ancients knew how to preserve teeth and they were able to transplant and implant teeth—"an art modern dentistry has lost."

He recalled that dentistry as a modern art arose in the early part of the 18th century with Fauchard as the "father of dentistry."

Anaesthetics Long Age Used by Chinese.

But in 3000 B. C., the court physician in Egypt also bore the title court dentist, and an archaeological find of a human lower jaw of about 2,500 B. C. shows indications of a "successful surgical operation on an abscess beneath the lower right first molar."

"The Etruscans, 1000-4000 B. C., far excelled the work of the Phoenicians, Greeks, and Romans," said Dr. Weinberger. "Wonderful examples of gold crowns and bridge work, which the former made, have been discovered which amply illustrate that they achieved great results and success in the dental art."

Proposes New Field for Science

Further shocks to the composure of scientists representing western civilization fell thick and fast. In the third century before Christ Chinese administered anaesthetics before surgical operations, whereas chloroform was not made use of in the west until after 1847 A. D., and the catheter, ascribed to Nelaton of Paris in 1850, was described in "the thousand golden remedies" in the seventh century A. D.

While the Chinese scholars opened the pages of ancient scientific works, "done in lacquer upon strips of bamboo or palm leaves," Dr. Roscoe R. Hyde, a colleague of Dr. Penn's at Johns Hopkins, suggested in a medical symposium the opening of a "new field of science."

Dr. Hyde, addressing a symposium on filterable viruses—particles so tiny they escape even filter paper, but regarded as the cause of a host of afflictions ranging from smallpox to warts—hinted, by implication, that they may be poised midway between life and inorganic matter.

"It may be," said Dr. Hyde, an immunologist, "that they are minute colloidal [gumlike] particles endowed with certain vital capacities but incapable of self-perpetuation unless brought into contact with certain vital units of the cells of a sensitive host."

Dr. Hyde opposed to this conception "the idea that there are free living ultramicroscopic viruses and that they span the gap between the inorganic world and the organized cell." He conceded that investigators have not yet proved "whether the virus produces the disease or the disease produces the virus." He proposed that the tracking down of the filterable viruses be related directly to studies into the causes of cancer.

Moon, Earth, Sun, and Milky Way All Same Size

Dr. Harlow Shapley, director of Harvard observatory, submitted his new theory that the moon, the earth, the sun, and the milky way may all be considered the same age, all of them formed during a common process of evolution.

Dr. Shapley virtually threw a bombshell into the world of astronomy by calling for a complete revision of all theories relating to the origin of the moon, the earth, the solar system, and the milky way. He said that the chief accomplishment of astronomical study during the last few years has been to reveal the inadequacy of all theories regarding the evolution of the universe and its component parts.

Dr. Shapley told his audience, "in the opinion of many astronomers we are now practically without any theory of evolution of the stars."

LEVI T. REGAN, EDUCATOR FOR 58 YEARS, 90 TODAY

Says Schools Stray from Fundamentals.

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

On the eve of his 90th birthday Levi T. Regan, who was an educator for fifty-eight years and a civil war veteran, took a look at modern education yesterday and promptly advised more emphasis on the three "R's" and fewer extra-curricular activities.

Mr. Regan and his wife, Margaret, 87 years old, live at 519 West 66th street in the house they have occupied for more than forty years. The birthday today will be celebrated with a special roast chicken dinner, ordered by Mr. Regan, and is to be attended by six of his seven grandchildren.

Quits Teaching at 83.

In his teaching career Mr. Regan spent thirty-six years as principal of Sherman school. He was retired in 1926 at the age of 83 years when the board of education placed a 75 year age restriction upon teachers. This later was changed to 70 years.

"One trouble with some of the schools is that they don't teach the children to study," Mr. Regan declared. "Children can't be taught to help themselves unless they learn how to study. If they haven't learned to persevere, they are unfit for life.

"The schools in my time were more thorough in the essentials than many are now. To me, many of the present day schools are shallow, but better care is taken of a child's health now."

Keeps Up with News.

Mr. Regan enjoys good health and eyesight and he keeps up with the news. For instance, he believes that there should be a compromise in the war debt question, but no cancellation.

One of the six surviving members of the George Meade post of the G. A. R., Mr. Regan is proud of his civil war record. He was in service three years with the 106 Illinois infantry volunteers, and was with Grant at the siege of Vicksburg.

Upon being mustered out in 1865 he enrolled in the Illinois State Normal at Normal, Ill., where he met his wife. Mr. Regan was born in Lincoln, Logan county, Ill.

There are three children: Ralph H. Regan of Chicago, vice president of the Hannifin Manufacturing company; Mrs. J. M. Oury of Wheaton and C. Marquis Regan, head of a New York advertising firm.

JUDGE MAY CITE HEAD OF B. G. A. FOR CONTEMPT

County Judge Jarecki suggested yesterday that he might summon E. J. Davis, superintendent of the Better Government association, before him for contempt of court.

"This matter is not ended," he said in reply to a demand by Attorney Cornelius J. Harrington that the contempt proceedings be instituted. "It is just started."

Davis, a professional reformer for many years, was mentioned as the author of an article in a weekly publication in which the impeachment of Judge Jarecki was urged because of alleged misconduct of election officials on Nov. 8.

The case before the County court involved the contest petitions of two candidates for the Municipal court, Samuel Heller, a Republican seeking reëlection, and Erwin J. Hasten, a Democrat. Attorney Harrington appeared for the latter, and after the court had demanded his presence former Judge Heller appeared, accompanied by Charles S. Deneen.

Judge Jarecki accused Heller of circulating copies of the article through a "contest headquarters" opened recently. Former Senator Deneen protested in vain against Judge Jarecki's ruling that the contest be sent to some other court.

PLAN TO EXEMPT IDLE LAND FROM TAX WINS PRAISE

Corn Grower Insists It's Practical Idea.

BY PAUL POTTER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Bloomington, Ill., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Downstate Illinois is giving serious consideration to the possibilities of solving the ills of agriculture and of recovering a market for city made products through a plan for curtailing crop acreage by exempting idle farm lands from taxation. Many farmers and business men close to the source of the nation's new wealth have pronounced it the best farm relief plan yet brought forward.

"THE TRIBUNE has hit the nail on the head," declared Eugene D. Funk, veteran corn grower and live stock feeder with large holdings of McLean county land. "The plan is being widely and favorably discussed, not only because it is practical but because it shows that the city people realize how imperative to their own welfare is the return to stability of agriculture.

Those Marginal Lands.

"The agricultural committee of the Bloomington Chamber of Commerce has indorsed just such a plan and many national leaders of my acquaintance have expressed themselves as in favor of readjusting the nation's agriculture by encouraging farmers to take marginal lands out of production. But for the pressure of taxes farmers could and would do it."

Mr. Funk and others interviewed this week have expressed the opinion that Illinois should take the lead in immediately putting the plan into effect. They declare that on the grounds that public interest and conservation of resources is involved assessors could be authorized to make the adjustments on taxes.

"Illinois has four million acres of hilly, eroded, or otherwise unproductive land which could be reforested along the lines advocated by the University of Illinois," Mr. Funk pointed out. "Thousands of acres of farm land also would be taken out of production if the tax burden were removed from them."

Sow Idle Land to Clover.

Rather than leave the land idle to produce a weed crop or to lie plowed and fallow many express the view that such land should be sown to clover, alfalfa, or other legume crop, thus building up the land's value as a later reward for its having been exempted.

A precedent for this was viewed today in Grundy, Logan and Sangamon counties, where 45,000 acres of land owned by the Scully estates have been practicing such a treatment for twelve years. Each of the 1,200 tenants is required by lease to leave one-fourth of the land in a legume crop which cannot be removed from the farm. Production thus has been kept within bounds while building up soil fertility and keeping down weeds or diseases and insect invasions.

With such a program over the middle west it was pointed out that taxes could be scaled down to a minimum on the idle lands and be made up by increasing the assessments on grain lands and grazed pastures, thus obviating loss of large revenues to local rural governments.

Farmers Comment Favorably.

"The plan to exempt land left idle or fallow through action of the states is the best offered yet and I have heard more favorable comment on it from farmers than for any other farm relief scheme," declared Manager Robins of the Cooperative Farmers' elevator at Dwight, Ill.

Fred Wilhelmi, Will county dairyman and head of the dairymen's organization around Joliet, declared that "I have heard much favorable comment on the plan among farmers in this locality. Farmers would welcome the chance to reduce their taxes in return for cutting down acreage in production during periods of low prices."

Ralph Mather, live stock farmer of Plainfield, stated that "the plan is good as far as it goes, but it needs perfecting before it is ready for farmers to take up. It needs some agreement to assure farmers they will be acting together by curtailing acreage, and in many cases it would be necessary to obtain permission from holders of mortgages as well as the farm operator."

Farm lands of the state are taxed at rates varying from $1.10 to $2.65 an acre, it was found.

Timber land in McLean county, for instance, is taxed at from $1.80 to $2.30 an acre, and many farmers pointed out that this expense had forced them to clear timber and bring new land into cultivation. Hundreds of Illinois farms were seen that were producing bumper crops this year in an effort on the part of their owners to produce enough for taxes and other fixed expenses.

Want U. S. to Take Hand.

Among many of the officers of county farm bureaus the idea prevails that the federal government must take a hand in solving the agrarian problems. Not a few of them express the hope that the domestic allotment plan and some form of credit revision will be of assistance.

WOODEN MONEY BUYS BANK THAT FAILED IN WESTERN TOWN

Tenino, Wash., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—The Tenino chamber of commerce has voted to purchase the building and equipment of the defunct Citizens' bank. The deal made with the state supervisor of banking fixed the price at $3,500. The funds to purchase the building have all resulted from the sale of wooden money to souvenir hunters and coin collectors.

A year ago the chamber embarked on the experiment of issuing script backed by assignments of deposits. The depositors exchanged their assignment of 25 per cent of their accounts in the bank for an equal amount of scrip, thus securing the use of the frozen assets several months in advance of the dividends and providing the community with another circulating medium.

When the demand taking the wooden money out of circulation became heavy, a redemption period of "before Jan. 1, 1933," was provided, and the signatures were printed. Only a small part of this issue of wooden scrip has been redeemed.

GOVERNORS O. K. FORCED CUT IN COTTON ACREAGE

Memphis, Tenn., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—A compulsory cut in acreage to effect a 50 per cent reduction of the 1933 cotton crop and thereby stabilize the price of the staple, patterned on acts passed last winter in Texas, Arkansas, and Mississippi contingent upon similar legislation by other cotton growing states, was approved tonight by the governors' south-wide conference on cotton control.

The conference also called upon the states to memorialize congress and the President "to provide federal loans to the owners of occupied farms for paying taxes for at least two years," and advocated the granting of a two year moratorium on the foreclosure of farm mortgages.

The majority report received the votes of Govs. Conner of Mississippi, Blackwood of South Carolina, and representatives of the governors of Louisiana, Alabama, Texas, Oklahoma, and South Carolina.

Dissenting minority reports were submitted by Charles T. Coleman, representing Gov. Parnell of Arkansas, and Tom Linder, representing Governor Elect Talmadge of Georgia.

RUSSIAN PLANE SHOT DOWN BY POLISH AIRMEN

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Dec. 29.—The Rumanian frontier post at Hotin, where Poland, Russia and Rumania meet, reported today that a Russian airplane was shot down this morning by three Polish planes after it had crossed from soviet union territory.

Three Russian airplanes hastened to the assistance of their comrade, the frontier post reported, but before they could return the Polish fire effectively the Russian plane was shot down and crashed.

TAX BOARD CUTS 19 ASSESSMENTS ON GOLD COAST

$294,116 Reduction Is Made in Day's Hearing.

Fred W. Brummel and George F. Nixon, members of the board of tax appeals, yesterday heard the first complaints of gold coast residents against the 1931 personal property assessment. At the end of the day the score for the gold coasters stood:

Complaints heard	30
Assessments reduced	19
Assessments sustained	1
Assessments increased	0

An examination of the appeal board's books disclosed that of assessments totaling $403,392 placed there by the assessor against the 20 complainants the board had left only $109,276 when the hearing closed. The reduction of $294,116 amounted to 72.7 per cent of the assessor's valuations.

Charge Arbitrary Increases.

Some of the protesting property owners appeared before the board in person, but the majority sent lawyers. In all cases, however, the plea made was the same. The objectors charged that Assessor J. L. Jacobs' deputies had arbitrarily increased values on property which had been scheduled at its actual worth.

When questioned about the board's action Brummel said: "The fortunes of the rich have shrunk during the last three years. These people come in here and show their losses and there is nothing for us to do but reduce their assessments.

"We must show them the same consideration we show to the man of moderate circumstances."

Some of Reductions Shown.

A table showing the names and addresses of some of the gold coast taxpayers, the assessed valuation as made by the assessor and the assessed valuation as fixed by the board of appeals follows:

	Assessor's valuation	Appeals valuation
John R. Winterbotham Jr., 1238 North State street	$13,875	$ 740
George W. Dixon, 1250 Lake Shore drive	9,250	1,118
H. T. Byford, 1400 Lake Shore drive	13,880	963
E. I. Cudahy, 1501 North State parkway	22,200	11,100
J. Stanley Joyce, 1540 Lake Shore drive	48,071	7,411
William J. Chalmers, 1100 Lake Shore drive	27,750	1,346
Edwin A. Seipp, 2340 Lincoln Park West	74,000	18,500
Dr. Arthur Dean Bevan, 1500 North State parkway	14,800	2,500
Frank Hibbard, 1301 Astor street	37,000	10,447
Mrs. J. R. Winterbotham, 6 Scott street	13,875	555
Mrs. J. H. Winterbotham, 1301 Astor street	*5,550	740
W. Scott Linn, 399 Fullerton parkway	*5,550	2,000
Mrs. William W. Dixon, 1515 N. State parkway	18,500	3,700
Frederic C. Bartlett, 1301 Astor street	*27,750	11,490
Mrs. B. A. Eckhart, 1530 Lake Shore drive	*27,750	4,873
Thomas J. Farrell, 1448 Lake Shore drive	3,700	370
Harold C. Stratz, 1250 Astor street	13,875	777
Arthur E. Tayler, 1540 Lake Shore drive	11,038	2,377
George B. Harrington, 232 East Walton place	14,800	2,248

The only assessment sustained at the assessor's valuation was that of H. L. Stuart, 999 Lake Shore drive. The board decided he had no evidence to show that his $26,038 assessment was too high.

been suggested, and there has been a definite decision on none to date.

Seek Tax Trust Fund.

City officials, however, are understood to favor a plan similar to that employed in 1930 when the Strawn citizens' committee came to the rescue of Chicago governments. They propose that large taxpayers, such as railroads, industrial and utility companies, be persuaded to deposit with a trustee an amount of cash equal to their annual tax bills. This would be possible, it was pointed out, since all large corporations set aside reserves for taxes in advance of the date of payment.

In return the corporations would receive certificates of participation in a taxpayers' warrant trust. Funds which they advanced would be used for purchase of tax warrants of the 1932 issue.

When the 1933 taxes become due, late next year, the warrant trustees would apply the tax warrants of the certificate holders on their 1932 tax bills.

BALANCE WAUKEGAN BUDGET.

At a special meeting of the Waukegan township board of education last night the trustees balanced the budget for the school year 1932-'33 at a figure representing a reduction of $109,797 under the total disbursements for last year. The new budget is $317,108. Total disbursements for 1931-32 were $426,816.

Revenue from taxes in 1933 is estimated by the trustees at $271,600 and total revenue at $328,600. Total liabilities for the year are estimated at $325,108.

In revising the budget the trustees decided to cut the school year short by one month. Teachers' salaries and wages of other employés were reduced, but the number of employés of all classes remains the same as last year. Clarence Diver, president of the board, presided.

149 SANITARY DISTRICT EMPLOYES DROPPED TO SAVE $336,816 A YEAR

Trustees of the sanitary district yesterday voted to discharge 149 employés at a total saving of $336,816 a year. The majority are laborers in the engineering department.

Ross A. Woodhull, chairman of the finance committee, said the cut was necessitated by the retrenchment program caused by a shortage in funds.

The sanitary district, Trustee Woodhull said, already has applied to the Reconstruction Finance corporation for funds and has been refused. He said the district is backing a bill in congress which would give the R. F. C. authority to grant loans to interests that are not self-liquidating.

VIRGINIA DAWES KEEPS STATUS OF ROMANCE SECRET

Mystery continued yesterday to shroud the status of the one time romance between Miss Virginia Dawes, daughter of the former Vice President, and Ensign John G. Tennent of the United States navy, who visited during the holidays at the Dawes home in Evanston.

In Washington, where he is the guest of his parents, young Tennent told inquirers that any news that the engagement, announced some time ago, was broken, would have to come from Evanston. In Evanston, where Miss Dawes remained, instead of carrying out her original intention to accompany Ensign Tennent to Washington for Christmas, members of the Dawes family insisted they had nothing to say.

Miss Dawes, however, continues to see Jimmie Martin, Northwestern university student and a friend since childhood days, whose fraternity pin she wore for a time.

TRADE BLIGHTED BY TAXES, SAYS COL. McCORMICK

Addresses Advertising Staff of Tribune.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.

A spacious and heartening lesson in how to meet adversity was learned by attentive listeners who were present last evening at the banquet of the twenty-fifth semi-annual convention of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S advertising department in the red lacquer room of the Palmer house.

One heard no groaning.

Assembled at the festive board were 250 TRIBUNE business getters from Chicago, New York, Boston, and Atlanta, where this newspaper has its own offices. The occasion was the finale of three days of discussion and planning by men who count the economic pulse beats of the country far more accurately than leisurely and honorary presidential commissions possibly can do, because it is their task to bring to Tribune Tower not speculations and prophecies but solid facts.

In Interest of Tribune Readers.

The spokesman for these practical men was Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor of THE TRIBUNE, and he, speaking more in the interest of readers whom trustworthy newspapers are obligated to serve than from the point of view of a newspaper publisher, said:

"It is the duty of the newspaper so to conduct its finances as not unduly to tax the reader. In other words, and in these times, it is our newspaper's duty to remain true to the two cent price."

Then came this sentence, significant in its bearing on a trustworthy newspaper's obligation to guard the most precious jewel in its crown—its freedom from entangling alliances:

"And its largest duty is not to indulge in such partnerships or debts as will hamper its freedom."

Freedom to Think.

Freedom, freedom, freedom—freedom to think and to state facts scrupulously—was the keynote of Col. McCormick's talk with his business staff.

"News," he said, "should be printed in strict accordance with its value as news. Never should there be recession from that Gibraltar. Let me say to you tonight that the newspaper which serves its readers best serves its advertisers best. That paraphrase I commend to you when you are dealing with an advertiser who may think otherwise."

The speaker divided advertising into two classes—necessity advertising and hope advertising.

"Necessity advertising," he said, "is the advertising of an institution with a large investment which must have purchasers in order to have a continuing business. Lighten their load by reducing their rates in a time which has laid heavy burdens upon them. It is the fair and manly thing to do.

Hopes for Results.

"The hope advertiser advertises in the hope of results—the hope of a job, the hope of the rental of an apartment, of a garage, of a store, of the sale of a stock of goods. Now, then, pile on to his uncertainties—the uncertainties of those hopes which spring eternal in the human breast but which do not always come to flower and fruit—pile on to those uncertainties, I say, a tax which the merchant must pay without hope of rebate in case of loss, or pile on a tax which the government, muscling in in case of gain, imposes on profits, and then what happens? Why, gentlemen, the calculated risk, which is the soul of business, becomes too uncertain, and all lines of business are paralyzed.

Affliction of Business Today.

"That is the condition from which we are suffering today. The designing of a successful automobile is the first step toward the fulfillment of hope. That hope animates a score of related industries. Tin mines, lead mines, zinc mines, cotton and glass factories, producers of nickel, paint and lacquers, all, all are animated by that hope, and they become active. But if the government steps in and takes the profits of the successful design which has been produced by the greatest and most modern of industries, then all those other industries—tin, lead, zinc, cotton, glass, paint and lacquers—which have contributed to the completion of the successful design are prostrated. Because they all interlock the general prostration is inevitable.

"I do not look forward to a resumption of prosperity until that system of blighting hope and of governmental muscling in has been repealed."

Quotes Joseph Medill.

The speaker quoted the advice which Joseph Medill, founder of this newspaper's greatness, gave forty years ago to a young publisher who sought the veteran's counsel. It was, "Print the news, just print the news." And to further insistence Mr. Medill replied, "No, that's all I can tell you—just print the news."

To that basic principle, the veteran's grandson said, the paper had been and is true, and he added:

"In the past year there have been two signal achievements along those lines. The mystery and horror of the Massie crime in Honolulu were not left by us to general news services or to local correspondents, but were covered by the incomparable Philip Kinsley of our own staff. And, having finished that assignment, he was sent on to Samoa, New Zealand, Australia, Sumatra, the Philippines, Singapore, India, and Japan, with the result that everybody who has read Mr. Kinsley's dispatches knows more of conditions in those regions than does any occidental statesman who has not read them.

Henning's Election Forecast.

"The second signal achievement was Arthur Henning's epochal forecast of the results of the presidential election—a forecast which again proves Henning to be the best informed political writer in America."

The spirit of this family party deserves a few words of record. The chiefs of every department of THE TRIBUNE, from production to photography, were present. Display advertising, classified advertising, editorial and news departments, business survey, copy and art departments—all were represented. The banquet closed three days of discussion and planning for the new year.

THREE CONFESS IN $5,000 THEFT FROM OPTICAL CO.

Two clerks employed by the American Optical company at 10 South Wabash avenue and two optometrists were arrested last night and taken to the detective bureau. There the clerks and one of the optometrists admitted that they were implicated in the theft of more than $5,000 worth of optical instruments and supplies.

Those held are John Fisher, 21 years old, 3134 Ainslie street; Robert Carter, 20 years old, 2457 Arthington street; Dr. Vincent Greene, 35 years old, 7016 North Clark street, and Dr. Walter Silge, 36 years old, 2001 Irving Park boulevard.

Dr. Greene confessed that he paid Fisher and Carter $5 a week each to supply him from the American Optical company stocks with goods he required. In his office a large part of the stolen property was recovered. Dr. Silge said that he was not involved in the thefts, and that Greene had sent him some optical supplies to cover a debt he owed.

Bandit with Two Guns and Bottle Shot in Holdup

Paul Green, 27 years old, 5928 South Carpenter street, was shot twice and critically injured yesterday by James T. Peacock when Green tried to hold up the meat market at 6751 South Halsted street. Peacock, who is part owner of the place, was shot in the right hand. Green escaped from the store, but was found in front of 6725 Emerald avenue, a block away, with a bullet in one lung and another in a kidney. Two pistols and a half emptied pint bottle of moonshine were in his pockets.

SUSPECT DRAWS GUN AND FLEES FROM BONDSMAN

John Molnar, alleged counterfeiter, yesterday escaped from his bondsman, to whose custody he had been released on Wednesday after the posting of $12,500 bail. Molnar drew a revolver and forced the bondsman, Louis Barnett, 2434 Burling street, to remain in a garage at 1812 North Wells street.

Barnett said Molnar desired his release on bond so he could remove the contents of two safe deposit boxes. The vault was closed when he was released late Wednesday and Barnett took the man to the North Park hotel, where they spent the night attended by a private detective.

They rented a car yesterday morning and went to the garage, where Molnar said some counterfeiting plates were concealed. His wife had visited him during the night and presumably had taken him the gun.

The government does not regard Molnar as a fugitive, as his case will not be called until Jan. 3.

Robber Shoots Victim for Failure to Have Money

Herman Willens, 23 years old, 1152 North Avers avenue, was shot in the right leg by a robber last evening in front of 2643 West Roosevelt road. Willens told the police he was waiting for his wife when the man commanded him to raise his hands. He complied, but told the man he had no money. The bandit remarked that he ought to carry some money and then fired and fled. Willens was taken to the Mount Sinai hospital.

EVANSTON SCRIP MONEY SYSTEM GAINS BACKERS

Delay Issuance to Enroll Merchants.

Issuance of the new certificate money in Evanston was delayed yesterday while promoters of the plan to restore prosperity and sell city tax warrants sought to get all the independent merchants in town to agree to receive the money, and while the security for the new dollars was being deposited in Evanston banks.

It is now planned to begin the circulation of the certificate dollars, backed by the Evanston Independent Retail Merchants' association, next Tuesday, when it is hoped to have $5,000 in the bank to guarantee the five thousand Eirma dollars printed.

Stamps to Retire Dollars.

Thirty-seven members of the association had signed agreements yesterday to support the plan and accept the money in trade, buying trade discount stamps with which to retire the Eirma dollars and purchase tax warrants.

City employés probably will be asked to accept one-third of their next two weeks' pay in the scrip money, and several of the aldermen have become subscribers to blocks of the money. Prof. Irving Fisher of Yale university, who has advocated some such scheme, has asked for details of the Evanston plan and its workings. This will not be observable for a week or more.

Jans Active Promoter.

Ald. Peter Jans is one of the busiest and most enthusiastic promoters of the Eirma plan, predicting that it will solve not only the problem of city finance, but also the school troubles Evanston has paid its bills in cash to date, according to Ald. George Paddock, and is chiefly interested in keeping its credit at 100 per cent. There are two hundred members of the Retail Merchants association, of which Peter G. Rapp is president. There are four divisions of the association, with four directors for each division. A campaign will be undertaken to acquaint housewives with the plan.

U.S. PROSECUTOR'S AID DIES; BLAME HEART DISEASE

Hugh P. Lutz, 63 years old, a veteran court reporter and special assistant United States district attorney, was found dead last evening in a garage in the rear of his home at 4720 North Sacramento avenue. The engine of his automobile was running, but the police and a physician who was summoned expressed the opinion that heart disease, from which Mr. Lutz had been suffering for months, was the cause of death.

Mr. Lutz began as court reporter in the federal building in 1912. In order to facilitate his work in federal grand jury rooms he was appointed as an assistant district attorney. He is survived by his widow, a son, and a daughter.

VERDICT ON WOMAN'S DEATH.

A coroner's jury yesterday decided that the death of Mrs. Alfreda Williamson, 40 years old, 2548 North Halsted street, was due to natural causes. Mrs. Williamson died on Jan. 16 in an alleged beer flat in North Halsted street.

IMPOSE FEDERAL SENTENCES OF TOTAL OF 916 YRS.

Penitentiary sentences totaling 916 years, 2 months and 8 days were imposed on 346 defendants during the last year in the Chicago federal courts, it was revealed yesterday in an annual report made public by United States Attorney Dwight H. Green. Jail sentences against 962 defendants totaled 257 years, 11 months and 14 days.

The report showed that fines of $1,007,601 were assessed, of which $204,373 was collected. A total of 3,746 cases were filed in civil and criminal branches from Jan. 1 to Dec. 1, 1932, and 3,179 cases were brought to a conclusion. Criminal cases filed totaled 1,897, of which 1,261 were against prohibition law violators. Convictions totaled 1,440 and included 341 prohibition cases.

DEDICATE NEW DEERING LIBRARY ON N. U. CAMPUS

3 Generations of Family Participate.

The new $1,250,000 Charles Deering library on the Evanston campus of Northwestern university was dedicated late yesterday. Several hundred persons attended the ceremony held in the main reading room on the second floor, and hundreds of others inspected the building, which is of modified Gothic architecture. Three generations of the Deering family took part in the ceremonies.

Two daughters of the late Charles Deering, Mrs. Chauncey McCormick, and Mrs. Richard E. Danielson of Boston, formally opened the building for use by cutting a ribbon before the entrance to the reading room.

Portraits Unveiled.

Dr. Ernest Fremont Tittle delivered the invocation and President Walter Dill Scott read a letter of presentation of the building from Mrs. McCormick and Mrs. Danielson. The building was constructed with funds bequeathed to the university by the late Charles Deering, and gifts from the widow, Mrs. Deering, Mrs. McCormick, Mrs. Danielson, and Roger Deering.

After keys were presented to John H. Hardin, president of the board of trustees of the university, by Mrs. McCormick and Mrs. Danielson, portraits of William Deering; his sons, Charles and James, and his daughter, Abby Deering Howe, were unveiled by the grandchildren of Charles Deering. The latter included Charles Deering McCormick, son of the Chauncey McCormicks, and James Deering Danielson, and Marion Danielson, son and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Danielson, both of whom were present.

William A. Dyche, veteran business manager of the university, spoke on "My Friends, William, Charles, and James Deering."

Fills Need of 20 Years.

An adequate library has been an outstanding need of the university for 20 years, said Librarian Theodore W. Koch in an address. He spoke of the seminar rooms and the main corridor, lined with exhibit cases, on the first floor, the additional seminar and reading rooms on the ground floor and the main reading room "with its great tall windows whose medallions symbolize the history of civilization."

A presentation of books then was made by Consul General René Weiler of France, Consul General Hugo S. Simon of Germany, and Consul General T. Zbyszewski of Poland. Mr. Hardin presented three books contributed by Mrs. Anders Zorn of Sweden from Mr. Zorn's library. The books were accepted by Dean Addison Hibbard of the college of liberal arts.

Grandchildren of Charles Deering and the widow, Mrs. Deering, then performed the ritual of placing books on the shelves for use.

Dr. Scott Issues First Books.

Dr. Scott then "issued" the first books. To Howard Packard, student, he delivered Darwin's "Origin of the Species," to symbolize service to the unknown student of the future; to Ald. John A. Massen of Chicago, Plato's "Republic," which he termed "the first book on social science," symbolizing service to the public; a grammar of the German language, to Prof. George O. Curme, of the university, symbolizing the function of the library to aid learned men, and a volume on the history of the Deering family written by Charles Deering, to Roger Deering McCormick. "The Art of Greece" he gave to Tom Talmadge, Evanston.

A dinner was given at the North Shore hotel after the dedication for 200 guests, given by the Northwestern University associates, in honor of the Deering family. Silas Strawn presided. The library was open to the public between 8 and 10 p. m.

160,000 FAMILIES ON RELIEF ROLLS IN COOK COUNTY

There were 160,000 families on the relief rolls of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission in Cook county during November, the commission announced yesterday. The average received in relief per family, exclusive of relief administration costs, was $17.87.

Joseph L. Moss, director of the county bureau of public welfare, announced that an effort to reduce the number of persons seeking relief is to be made. Vocational assistants stationed in the relief offices will confer with former employers of the idle in an effort to obtain at least part time work for them.

Is Fifth Victim

Oliver Peterson, a farmer living alone two miles north of Peotone, in Will county, was tortured yesterday by two robbers who bound him to his bed and applied a hot poker to his hands and bare feet in an effort to force him to disclose the hiding place of his money.

This was the fifth torture case reported near Peotone in the last few days. The robbers are believed to be Chicago Heights gangsters. Most of the crimes have been committed by two men, but occasionally three and sometimes four have appeared.

Peterson was robbed by two men who hid in his barn early in the morning and waited until he came to feed his horses. They taped Peterson's hands behind his back, fed the horses and took Peterson to his farmhouse. They wired his feet to the bed and pressed a red hot poker against them and against one of his hands, demanding his money. They also struck him on the head with a revolver butt, he said, and continued their torture for three hours. Peterson told them his money was in a bank and showed them a bank book.

FIND LIBRARIES HAVE REAL DUTY IN HARD TIMES

Help in Educating the Jobless.

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN.

"It is the idleness of the head—not the idleness of the hands—that is dangerous in these times," said George Locke of Toronto, past president of the American Library association, at the convention dinner for delegates last night at the Lake Shore Athletic club. Representatives from various parts of the country had voiced the same sentiment in different phraseology many times during sessions of the association that began Wednesday at the Drake hotel.

"When a man loses his job, he loses his friends, too," commented Dr. Locke. "If he is older, he probably sits around and broods. That's the man we want to help. We have treasures of books for him, books on travel, history, fiction—to keep his mind occupied and diverted from morbid reflections. When a younger fellow loses his job, he's full of energy that has to expend itself. Libraries protect society from that young chap's possible depredations by giving him good books to pursue the study of his profession or trade, making him more efficient when a job does materialize.

Library as a Job Reference.

"In Toronto we are having idle men register whenever they come in, and make a note of how long he stays, studying volumes on plumbing or farming or electricity or carpentering. When that man applies for a job, he can inform his employer that he has spent his days in the library studying, and give us as a reference, which helps him to get ahead."

Michael F. Gallagher, Chicago attorney and chairman of the trustees' section, had offered a different version of the same sentiment to an open meeting during the afternoon, declaring that "it seems self evident that the actual contribution of libraries to public welfare and morals at this critical time is so necessary and great that these institutions have an unquestioned claim to adequate revenues to meet the increasing needs of the people."

Plight of Public Finances.

"These institutions have in no way contributed to the present sad plight of public finances," he continued. "They have created none of the huge deficits by which our cities are now burdened. No extravagant appropriations of public money have been made in their behalf—a cogent argument for not singling them out during the depression for severe economy."

William L. Bailey, professor of sociology at Northwestern university, indorsed this viewpoint with the declaration that the main question before the gathering was, "Do libraries need deflation?" and the assertion that they do not. The libraries, he declared, should not be restricted now when they are serving more people and doing much to maintain morale. Culture in the sense that the libraries can furnish it, he added, is a most wholesome factor now in restoration of normalcy.

James Ingersoll Wyer, librarian of the New York state library, reported that unemployment conditions among library school graduates are worse now than they were a year ago, with fewer opportunities on record for placing them.

Salaries Uniformly Less.

Charles H. Compton, chairman of the committee on salaries, reported that salary schedules for library workers are shown by surveys to be almost uniformly less than those for other employés in public works, but that many reductions reported are designated as temporary. Their work has greatly increased during the depression, he added.

Approximately 30,000 librarians are or will become eligible to participate in a retirement plan announced at this convention, which the Metropolitan Life Insurance company will underwrite. Previously the only provision made for retirement was from individual savings. Sixty-five will be the age limit under the new plan. The minimum monthly payment by each employé will be $3.

Hammond, Ind., was listed at the top of a table of thirty-two cities that showed increases in the library circulation since 1929. The Indiana town reported a jump of 167 per cent as contrasted with only 12 per cent for Chicago.

Re-elect W. L. M'Menimen Head of Policemen's Fund

Walter L. McMenimen was re-elected president of the retirement board of the Policemen's Annuity and Benefit fund yesterday at a regular meeting of the board. Other officers, who were also reelected, are Police Captain Hugh T. McCarthy, vice president, and Patrolman Patrick E. Dwyer, secretary.

SPANISH POLICE NIP REVOLT PLOT BY EXTREMISTS

Army Officers Named in Plans.

BARCELONA, Spain, Dec. 29.—(AP)—Police announced today the discovery of a revolutionary extremist plot with nation-wide ramifications and implicating numerous army officers and men, which was scheduled to become effective some time in January on the signal of a general railroad strike.

The police said a quantity of bombs found this afternoon was connected with the plot. They described the planned revolt as an anarcho-syndicalist rebellion headed by Juan Matias Casero, who was arrested in his lodgings. The authorities reported finding there a large quantity of bombs, rifles, short arms, thousands of rounds of ammunition and a metal box containing documents with detailed plans for insurrection.

54 on Death List.

These documents, the authorities asserted, included a list of 54 army and police officials who were to be shot at the slightest signs of resistance. There also was a list of officials considered loyal to the revolt, it was said, as well as plans of the military barracks in Barcelona.

The revolutionaries were to receive arms and ammunition three hours before the outbreak, the authorities said.

Along with Casero the police arrested José Llagostera, Miguel Sans, Pablo Ruiz and Ventura Manzano, all known extremists, and asserted by the authorities to be the members of the revolutionary committee. Officials said they were in complete control of the situation.

Arrest 7 for Air Plot.

SEVILLE, Spain, Dec. 29.—(AP)—The police arrested aviation subaltern José Masero, three sergeants and three corporals at Tablada air field today, accusing them of preparing the airdrome for mutiny to aid railroad strikers who expected to walk out some time in January.

The authorities maintained closest secrecy, but it was learned several civilians also were arrested in connection with proposed joint action by the railroad men, some officials and various troops at the air field.

Couple Forced Into Car and Robbed on Gold Coast

Elsie Carlson, a maid in the house of Col. R. H. Morse, 1242 Lake Shore drive, and Edward Lundquist of 4226 North Hamlin avenue were seized by three men in front of the Morse residence late last night, forced into an automobile and robbed. Lundquist surrendered $4 and his watch and Miss Carlson gave up here purse. The couple were released after being driven for several miles through north side streets.

GRANTS ILLINOIS $7,255,000 LOAN FOR RELIEF FUND

R. F. C. Advance for Use in 27 Counties.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Illinois today obtained another $7,255,000 from the Reconstruction Finance corporation to carry emergency relief work in twenty-seven counties of the state through the month of January.

Of the total loan Cook county borrowed $6,770,000 and assumed direct responsibility for repayment of that amount. The remaining $485,000 was borrowed by the state for use in the other twenty-six counties. It is to be repaid through annual deductions from the state's federal highway aid allotments.

As collateral for the advance to Cook county the corporation accepted county relief bonds authorized by the state legislature in the amount borrowed. The corporation was advised that the bond failed to find a private market and the expected revenue from the issue, which was to have provided relief, had not been forthcoming.

Today's loan brought to $32,493,228 the total amount thus far borrowed by Illinois from the Reconstruction Finance corporation for relief purposes. Under the present law only 12 millions more can be obtained by the state, since the emergency relief act stipulates that no state may obtain relief advances in excess of forty-five million dollars.

Horner Indorse. Borrowing.

The loan was requested by Gov. Louis L. Emmerson with the indorsement of Governor Elect Henry Horner. Judge Horner, in a message to the corporation, declared:

"I heartily indorse the application presented in behalf of Illinois Emergency Relief commission. While I do not assume office until Jan. 9, before which time the new legislature will not be able to legislate upon the problem, we already have assurances from the leaders of both the Illinois senate and house that they will promptly act upon such measures as may be necessary to provide resources to meet our tremendous and unescapable problem.

"By granting the application to cover our necessities for January you will give the Illinois relief commission the opportunity to tide itself over until the January meeting of the legislature.

"In behalf of the dependent unemployed of our state and their families who but for emergency relief would be starving and unclad and shelterless, I appeal for your further coöperation, with my assurance that in the fullest good faith I will marshal every effort at my command to carry out Mr. Ryerson's representations and promises to you."

Local Relief Pledged.

The last two loans granted to the state have been predicated, according to officials of the finance corporation, on assurances that the state legislature meeting in January will take active steps to provide relief money locally. Such assurances have been made to directors of the corporation by various officials of the state legislature and other state leaders.

WITH THESE PUPS IT'S A QUESTION OF RELATIVITY

Mrs. Ernest Bossow, 1341 North Dearborn street, walked into the Hudson avenue police station yesterday and identified herself.

"I understand detectives have been at my home looking for me," she told Sergt. James Carney. "I am not at home during the day."

The desk sergeant explained that neighbors had called continuously for two days to complain that they had been bothered by the barking of dogs in the Bossow home.

"I don's see how that can be," Mrs. Bossow said. "I have four very young puppies. I hardly see how they could disturb any one."

"Probably spite work," the sympathetic sergeant agreed. "What kind of puppies are they?"

"Great danes," Mrs. Bossow told him.

She was allowed to leave the police station after she explained that she was going to move Sunday and take the dogs with her.

ITALY TO CLOSE PRISON ISLAND AS AMNESTY RESULT

ROME, Dec. 29.—(AP)—The prison island of Lipari will be abandoned on Jan. 10 as a place of confinement and the few remaining anti-Fascists living there will be moved elsewhere.

This is in consequence of Premier Mussolini's declaration of amnesty celebrating the tenth year of Fascism, by which 20,000 prisoners were released. Many of those released had been sent to "confino" for attacks upon or conspiracy against Fascism.

Less than 400 political prisoners are left on the various penal islands.

One Sure Way to End Coughs and Colds

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action: it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains in addition to creosote other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble, and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (Adv.)

New York, Dec. 29.—[Special.]—S. L. Rothafel, whose Radio City Music hall opened with an audience of 6,200 persons on Tuesday night, gave New York another thrill tonight. He opened the R.-K.-O. Roxy theater, in the Radio City part of the new Rockefeller center, before a capacity attendance of 3,700.

The new Roxy theater is described by its builder as "intimate." It has an astonishing illusion of being smaller than it really is. That is accomplished in the construction of the interior and in its lighting effects. The usual overhanging balconies have been replaced by three shallow mezzanines, staggered one above the other. The auditorium is oval; the walls are of mahogany panels 70 feet high.

The entertainment, which will run continuously from 10:30 a. m. to 1 a. m. daily, consisted of a mixed program of motion pictures and stage numbers of the kind made familiar by Roxy's previous theaters, except that the present style is somewhat more elaborate.

W. C. T. U. LEADER LENDS HAND TO DRY IN DISTRESS

Wishes Now She Had Called His Wife.

I had never seen a man drunk before Christmas eve. My own father never touched a drop. My husband never touched a drop. I have never touched a drop. O, how can I tell my husband this? I let my heart run away with me—only my sympathy, you know.

"I knew Mr. Lynch hadn't been getting along with his wife, and she wouldn't take care of him. On Nov. 30 he told me he had left her. I couldn't bring him to the house here. But I wanted to help him out. I felt justified in doing so, because I knew he would repay me. He had $177.46 coming from the Republican national committee for campaign publicity.

"So I paid $3.75 a week for a room for him in a Dearborn street roominghouse. Although my husband is not working we had lots of food at home. I went downtown every day and I would stop by and leave Mr. Lynch bread and meat. He was so helpless poor man. He appealed to my maternal sympathies.

"Of course, we had a lot of fun, but look at the mess I'm in now. I never was in love with him, and he never was in love with me. Why, I'm at least 10 years older than he. He was a very good friend of my son, Marshall.

Meeting on Christmas Eve.

"On Christmas eve my phone rang and some one told me that Mr. Lynch wanted to see me. I got to his room about 7 o'clock. I was carrying some Christmas bundles. The minute that I opened the door I knew what was wrong with him.

"I knew that he was intoxicated. On his bureau were two bottles of liquor. I took them and dumped them in the sink. He wanted me to go out with him. I said, 'Do you want to go out and make whoopee?' He said, 'Yes,' and I refused to go. I should have followed my first impulse, which was to call his wife. O, I wish I had! But I didn't do it.

"I took off his shoes and put him to bed, and then, of course, I didn't know what to do, because I had never seen a man that way before. But I had heard that they give them black coffee, so I made some and made him drink it. But he kept getting up and wanting to go places, and I would have to put him back in bed again."

"Did you have to stay there all night to take care of him?" Mrs. Brucer was asked.

"O, no," she replied, "not all night. O, it was late, I don't know exactly, but well past midnight when I left. O, I was so worried. I called back to see if he was all right, but he was gone. I haven't seen him since, and I don't intend to see him again."

ALLMAN ORDERS NEW DRIVE FOR TRAFFIC SAFETY

Cites Reductions in Fatal Auto Accidents.

Commissioner of Police Allman yesterday drafted a general order for a continuation of the traffic law enforcement drive that was inaugurated on Sept. 1, and selected six sections of the traffic code to which, he said, the police would be directed to give special attention after the first of the year. Important in the enforcement campaign is that against lack of tail lights.

The violations for which the police will be especially watchful, are speeding, driving on the wrong side of the street, not stopping ten feet behind the door of a street car that is discharging passengers, driving through safety zones, running past stop lights and driving past safety zones too fast for the safety of pedestrians.

The results of the safety drive have been satisfactory so far, according to Commissioner Allman. He said that in Chicago during September of this year there were 275 fewer automobile accidents, 241 fewer injuries due to automobile accidents, and 41 fewer automobile fatalities than in September, 1931.

"These figures prove," the commissioner said, "that the results obtained from the traffic enforcement drive justify a continuation of the traffic safety work."

The police also will continue to give attention to other violations such as failure to have proper lights, for which 5,154 summonses were issued during September. Besides two front lights the city code provides that a red light must be carried on the rear of vehicles from one hour after sunset until sunrise.

"It is dangerous to drive without a rear light," said Charles M. Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor club, "especially in dark thoroughfares and country highways. Our records show that approximately 4,000 automobile accidents are caused annually in the United States because of the failure of some motorists to provide rear lights."

Physician's Report Shows Jail Is a Health Center

Dr. F. J. McNamara, jail physician, reported yesterday that the county jail is a health center. During the last year only three deaths occurred in the jail.

AT THE FIRST SNEEZE USE THE MISTOL 2-WAY TREATMENT

NEW QUICK RELIEF FOR COLDS

The quickest way to break a cold is to start fighting it at once. With some people the warning sign is sneezing, with others it is a sore throat, and still others just feel depressed with a congested feeling in the head and throat. Whatever the sign, Mistol now offers you the 2-way treatment that will help you break these colds before more serious conditions result.

1 Drop Mistol in Your Nose Night and Morning

The first step in the Mistol 2-way treatment is to put a few drops of Mistol in your nose when you get up in the morning and before you go to bed at night, and if convenient, during the day. See how quickly the burning, tickling sensation disappears. The inflamed membranes respond at once to the healing oils in Mistol, and you can breathe freely. The handy dropper makes Mistol easy to use.

2 Put New Essence of Mistol on Your Handkerchief and Pillow

The second step is to use the new Essence of Mistol. Put a few drops on your handkerchief and breathe in its healing vapors all day long. At night put a few drops on your pillow and you will get the needed relief for restful sleep. Essence of Mistol contains the same healing ingredients as Mistol but in a form that enables you to obtain its full benefit while you work and while you sleep.

GANGS' END NEAR, LOESCH TELLS LAW SCHOOLS

Says Horner Will Clear Way for Drive.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

When Governor Elect Henry Horner takes office on Jan. 9, the way will be clear for a drive against gangland killings and the "reign of hoodlumism" that will unite all the machinery from the statehouse, through the city hall and Criminal court building and into the courts, Frank J. Loesch, president of the Chicago crime commission declared last night.

He added that when congress modifies the Volstead act and submits repeal or change of the 18th amendment, the fight against crime will be fortified by the loss of bootlegger revenue to the underworld.

New Canon in Legal Ethics.

Mr. Loesch spoke at the dinner of the Association of American Law Schools at the Stevens hotel. Dean Albert J. Harno of the University of Illinois College of Law, was toastmaster. As a feature of the meeting a new canon in legal ethics was read by Charles P. Megan, president of the Chicago Bar association, by which it already has been adopted.

The canon grew out of the sanitary district cases of the "whoopee" era which led to the recent disciplining of 36 lawyers, and it enunciates the ethical principle that a lawyer, when elected to the legislature or other public office, cannot with propriety be on the pay roll of any person, corporation or municipality which is interested in legislation or other matters in which he may have a voice. The new canon is being pressed for general adoption by the profession throughout the land.

Counts on Public's Aid.

After reviewing the campaign against crime in Chicago in the last five or six years, Mr. Loesch remarked:

"With Judge Horner installed as governor, with Mayor Cermak determined to clear Chicago of hoodlums, with a chief of police who is waging active war against the underworld, and with a Democratic state's attorney determined to follow up in the battle against gangland we shall have a lineup all the way down such as we've not known before. We've a lineup which will create a public sentiment which will clear Chicago of the criminals.

"Prohibition provides a tremendous fund for gangland. It is my belief that nine out of ten gang murders are the result of gangsters preying upon each other's territories in the beer and alcohol rackets. To put the bootlegger out of business we've got to amend the eighteenth amendment to take his profits away, and that will rid us of that kind of criminality which has been rising on us at so fast a rate."

Limits Lawyers' Jobholding.

The new canon in ethics of the bar was read by Mr. Megan, in substance, as follows:

"When a lawyer is elected to the legislature, or to an executive or other public office of any kind, or holds any public employment, by election or appointment, his duty as the holder of such office or employment requires him to represent the public with undivided fidelity.

"It is improper for him, as for any other lawyer, to represent conflicting interests, and therefore it is improper for him to act professionally for any person or corporation, including a municipal corporation, or for any other private or public body which is actively or specially interested in the promotion or defeat of legislation or other matters proposed or pending before the public body of which he is a member, or by which he is employed, or before him as the holder of a public office or employment.

"The principle is not that these interests do necessarily conflict, but that they may conflict. No lawyer, say the courts, having duties to perform of a fiduciary nature shall be allowed to enter into engagements in which he has, or can have a personal interest conflicting, or which may conflict, with the interests of those whom he is bound to protect."

Cites Duties of Laymen.

Treating of laymen, the new canon remarks upon duties which "are not peculiar to lawyers, but which apply equally to laymen in public office, such as the duty to preserve the legislative branch free and independent of control by the executive, an independence which can scarcely be maintained if a considerable number of the legislators are in receipt of salaries from employment in the gift of public offices or boards, local, state or federal."

The association will hold its closing sessions today.

REED OF DU PAGE COUNTY HEADS PROSECUTORS

State's Attorney Chauncey W. Reed of Du Page county was elected president of the Illinois State's Attorneys' association at the conclusion of the 36th annual convention of the organization in the Palmer house yesterday. He succeeds Wirt Herrick, prosecutor of De Witt county.

Other officers elected are E. V. Champion of Peoria county and Ben Townsend of Wabash county, vice presidents; Guy E. McGaughey of Lawrence county, secretary, and Joseph T. Skinner of Bureau county, treasurer.

At the concluding session of the convention Calvin H. Goddard explained the work of the crime detection laboratory of Northwestern university and T. P. Sullivan told of the work of the Illinois bureau of criminal information and investigation. State Senator Arthur Huebsch spoke of the proposed changes in terms of court drafted by the Illinois judiciary advisory council, which are to be presented at the next session of the legislature.

Car Misses Bridge, Leaps 75 Feet, Killing Driver

Omaha, Neb., Dec. 29.—(AP)—Chauncy Abbott Jr., 50, of Omaha, president of the Omaha Flour Mills company, was killed tonight when his car missed a 100 foot bridge just south of Fort Crook and crashed into the creek bed. The car leaped the 75 feet from one side of the creek bed to the other.

Seeks Court Ruling

CONSTANCE CUMMINGS.

Hollywood, Cal., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Constance Cummings, film leading woman, today filed a petition in Superior court seeking to have a court rule that her contract with the Columbia Pictures corporation has expired. She has been under contract to that company for $125 a week, but has been offered a big pay raise by other companies, and asserted that the Columbia studio allowed the option renewal period on her contract to lapse. She recently appeared with Harold Lloyd in "Movie Crazy" and in "The Criminal Code."

W. PARK BOARD FAILS TO TAKE FINANCE ACTION

Approves Paving Job and Adjourns.

The west park board was scheduled to meet at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. It was expected that there would be a discussion of the financial condition of the park system, which a citizens' committee has said is hopelessly insolvent.

Inasmuch as a new board of commissioners is expected to be appointed shortly after the inauguration of Henry Horner as governor, the outgoing members were understood to be winding up their affairs preparatory to turning the park board over to their successors. A taxpayer was seeking information regarding the taking up of outstanding tax anticipation warrants.

At 3 o'clock none of the commissioners was in the large and stately board room of the administration building in Garfield park. A dozen or so minor politicians lolled about the lobby waiting for the commissioners to finish their business.

In President's Office.

The board members were in the private office of President W. R. James. Employés said the business of the parks was usually transacted there in advance of board meetings, the public not being admitted.

At a few minutes before 4 o'clock the commissioners came from President James' office and took their seats around one end of the long, glass covered table. President James asked to be recorded as present and to be excused as he had an appointment with the citizens' committee on public expenditures. He was excused. A resolution was adopted authorizing a small pavement job. Another resolution was passed pledging the board's coöperation with the citizens' committee in keeping its budget within the estimated revenue. That was all. At 4 o'clock the meeting was over.

Call to Warrant Holders.

Questions to the commissioners brought the information that the board had advertised for holders of $63,000 worth of 1930 tax warrants in $25 and $50 denominations to come in and get their money. Another $50,000 outside that amount still is owed and awaits further tax collections before it can be paid. The anticipated revenue from 1931 taxes was given as $3,000,000, against which $1,000,000 worth of warrants was issued, none of which can be redeemed until 1931 taxes are paid. President James said he didn't have and therefore couldn't make public the last audit made of the board's finances.

"It won't be long till Jan. 9," said one of the commissioners on departing, having in mind the date of Horner's inauguration.

"PRINCE MIKE" TO BE DEPORTED ON U. S. ORDER

New York, Dec. 29.—[Special.]—"Prince Mike Romanoff" is going back to France. Washington dispatches this afternoon said that the department of labor has decided that his "previous activities" make him an undesirable alien, and has ordered him out of the country just as soon as investigators can find out what shipping line brought him over to these shores some ten days ago.

Meanwhile Mike—or Harry F. Gerguson, as he now prefers to be called since he has gone back to his real name—is behind barred windows on the second floor of the administration building on Ellis island. He will have to stay there until he is deported.

The shipping line that brought him over, even though it did so unwittingly and unwillingly as a stowaway, will have to carry him back to France free of charge both to Mike and to the American government. The only problem now is to find which ship Mike came in on.

CERMAK, HORNER SHORTEN MIAMI STAY; RETURNING

Mayor Denies Any Pacts on Appointments.

Advancing their plans 48 hours, Mayor Cermak and Governor Elect Horner left Miami last night to return to Chicago after a six day rest.

No reasons for shortening their stay at Miami Beach were given except the mayor said he had a number of important budget matters to take up with the city council as soon as possible and Judge Horner said he had almost completed his work on his inaugural message, the task for which he fled from the pressure of job seekers in Chicago.

Unless there is some unannounced stopover along the route northward the two will arrive in the city tomorrow afternoon and may hold a number of conferences in reference to legislative matters, including the assembly organization program, before the party caucuses of members are held at Springfield next Tuesday.

Deny Appointment Pacts.

During their last afternoon at Miami both the mayor and the governor elect denied emphatically that any agreements had been made as to Judge Horner's state appointments, the distribution of federal patronage or the indorsement of some candidate for speaker of the Illinois house of representatives.

"Judge Horner has not agreed on any one for speaker or approved any one for election to that office," said Mayor Cermak emphatically. "That is a matter entirely in the hands of the Democratic caucus to be held the night before the general assembly convenes.

"Nor have there been any appointments whatever decided upon here. In all such matters Judge Horner is considering all candidates carefully and when the time comes he will make his own selections."

Mayor Shows Irritation.

Mayor Cermak showed signs of irritation with a Miami newspaper man who told him that during his absence some one in Chicago had circulated a report that two of his sons-in-law, Floyd E. Kenlay and Dr. Frank Jirka, have been slated for appointments, the former on the attorney general's staff and the latter in the state department of public health.

"I say again there have been no appointments agreed upon," the mayor declared. "That is final. We don't wish to be disturbed with such questions. We have barred out all visitors so that we may work."

Discusses Lewis Visit.

Mayor Cermak also expressed doubt that Senator James Hamilton Lewis visited him at Miami Beach for a showdown on federal appointments. He said the general subject was not discussed during the senator's luncheon with him and Judge Horner.

"We have plenty of grief with our own problems in Chicago and Illinois," he said, "without taking up federal problems at this time."

But Senator Lewis indicated that he will be extremely active if there is verification of the report that the Democratic organization may leave him out of consideration in making recommendations for federal jobs in Illinois.

Senator Tells His Position.

"It is impossible," the senator said to a Miami correspondent, "for any outside power to prevent the senators from exercising their right to suggest to the President the appointees from their particular states, but it will be my duty to confer with our new senator elect, Congressman Dieterich, as to any appointment that will come to our state.

"It is impossible for any organization or persons in any state to take away a senator's privilege of confirming or rejecting any appointee to any position in the state represented by that senator."

BEGIN FILING PETITIONS FOR ALDERMAN TODAY

Today is the first day for filing aldermanic nominating petitions for the election on Feb. 28. Despite a strong movement for the postponement of that election until the judicial election of June 6—which would require new filings later—it is expected a number of petitions will be presented to City Clerk Peter J. Brady.

The remnants of the old Republican organization are said to be lining up against the postponement although its advocates contend that the delay will save several hundred thousand dollars to the taxpayers. Republican incumbents are saying they will file without waiting for the outcome of the economy move before the state legislature.

As the law now stands the last day for filing is Jan. 24.

RUSSIA MAY PUT CHINESE ARMY TO WORK ON LUMBER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Dec. 29.—Having fed and housed Gen. Su Ping-wen's Chinese rebel army of 3,000 for nearly a month, soviet Russian officials today let Chinese authorities know that something will have to be done about it.

The Russians, according to reports received here, took the stand that either the troops must be returned to China or they will be put to work in Siberian lumber camps.

Japanese troops chased the Chinese army across the Manchurian border into Siberia on Dec. 6. Japanese military authorities originally demanded that Gen. Su and his troops be handed over to the Japanese army as prisoners, but when H. M. Karakhan, assistant soviet commissar of foreign affairs, rejected the Japanese request they demanded permanent internment in Russia for the rebels. This has also been rejected.

Report Autonomy Move in Jehol.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Dec. 30 [Friday].—A steadily growing independence movement in Jehol province, west of Manchuria, was reported here today. The Mongolians are daily becoming more antagonistic to the Chinese governor. Tang Yu-lin, it was said, and establishment of a government similar to that of Manchukuo is expected shortly.

Japs Launch Offensive.

HARBIN, Manchuria, Dec. 30 [Friday].—(AP)—Twelve thousand Japanese troops are advancing eastward along the Chinese Eastern railway to wipe out an estimated army of 10,000 Chinese insurgents, most of whom are between Hailin and Pogranichnaya, where they are in control of the railway.

FARMER BEATEN BY ROBBERS.

CHAS. H. MORSES' DAUGHTER AND BARON TO WED

Romance Disclosed When They Get License.

Mrs. Martha Morse Stibolt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Morse of Lake Forest, and Baron Wolfgang Beck von Peccoz of Munich, Bavaria, a house guest at the Morse home, yesterday obtained a marriage license in Waukegan. They had not announced their intention to Mrs. Stibolt's parents, and no word of their marriage had reached the Morse home at a late hour last night.

Mr. Morse told a reporter that it was his opinion the young couple were not yet married. "If they are, though," he said, "it is perfectly all right with Mrs. Morse and myself. Baron von Peccoz is a fine young man and we have known his family for years."

Wins Divorce for Cruelty.

Mrs. Stibolt, who is 28, was granted a divorce from Carl B. Stibolt last June 8 by Judge Ralph J. Dady of the Lake county Circuit court. The charge was cruelty. The Stibolt Morse wedding, which took place July 25, 1926, was a society event. Since her divorce Mrs. Stibolt has been studying in Munich, where her parents have maintained a residence for many years. She returned recently to spend the holidays with her parents.

Appear at Courthouse.

The young couple appeared yesterday afternoon at the Lake county courthouse in Waukegan accompanied by another young man, who acted as interpreter for Von Peccoz, according to Deputy Clerk Joseph Stanczak, who issued the license. They inquired if a marriage ceremony could be performed immediately and then left.

When first informed of the license Mr. Morse, who is chairman of the board of Fairbanks, Morse & Co., machinery manufacturers, said, "I have nothing to say."

For many years the Morse family has spent a part of each year in Munich. Mrs. Morse studied in Dresden as a girl. Many of the art treasures in the private gallery of the Morse home in Lake Forest were collected by her in Bavaria.

MILLION DOLLAR GATES MANSION WILL BE RAZED

Minneapolis, Minn., Dec. 29.—(AP)—The million dollar Gates mansion, forty-seven rooms and two elevators, once the talk of the town, has outlived its usefulness.

Occupied only by a caretaker for a number of years, the three story pile of stone and iron, built as the home for the heir to the fortune of "Bet-You-a-Million John W. Gates" of Chicago, will be wrecked.

It was built in 1913 in one of Minneapolis' most restricted residential districts on Lake of the Isles boulevard by Charles G. Gates. His wife was Florence Hopwood of Minneapolis.

Gates died in Wyoming before the place was finished.

HOOVER'S BOAT GROUNDED, BUT REACHES PORT

Sailfish Club, Palm Beach, Fla., Dec. 29.—(AP)—After running aground and being stuck fast for more than an hour, the U. S. Sequoia carrying President Hoover and members of his party, dropped anchor in this quiet harbor shortly after 9 o'clock tonight, with a sailfishing expedition in prospect for all hands tomorrow.

The presidential party was delayed three hours after darkness fell in reaching Palm Beach. First one boat of the flotilla and then another would run aground while searching for the channel into the Lake Worth anchorage.

Neither Mr. Hoover nor any of his guests was in actual danger while their stuck fast in the mud banks, but there was considerable excitement on board the Sequoia, the Kilkenny and the three accompanying coast guard boats.

Guggenheim Sees President.

Harry S. Guggenheim, American ambassador to Cuba, boarded the Sequoia after the anchorage was reached. He went into immediate conference with the President, but told newspapermen, whose boat took him out to the presidential flagship that his visit had no significance so far as Cuban political affairs were concerned.

The chief executive and Mrs. Hoover and most of their guests plan to leave the Sequoia about 7 o'clock tomorrow morning on a sailfishing expedition.

Spend Night Aboard Vessel.

Mr. Hoover will have the guidance of Capt. Herman Gray, expert fisherman of Palm Beach, on board the 65 foot boat, Orca, from which he fished two years ago near Long Key. Others in the party will go aboard the slightly smaller motorboat Miss Sally.

The presidential party did not come ashore during the night, but stayed aboard the Sequoia. Word was relayed to them there, however, that two big sail fish, one nearly eight feet long, had been brought into the Sailfish club wharf during the afternoon and that a third had been turned back into the water.

Hotels and Cabarets Expect Capacity New Year Crowds

With 100,000 visitors in the city for the holiday period, according to railroad statistics, and reservations for New Year's Eve parties pouring in by the hundreds, hotel and café men yesterday seemingly predicted that Chicago would forget the depression tomorrow night and welcome 1933 with one of the merriest celebrations in its history.

One of the gayest of the large hotel celebrations will be at the Bismarck, where a festival dinner with souvenirs to the women guests, entertainment, and dancing to Art Kassel's orchestra music will be offered at $6 a cover.

Daniel Alexander of the Café de Alex and Casa de Alex, where the cover charges will be $6 and $5, respectively, announced that reservations already received will almost fill the two places to capacity.

In the loop hotels, where radical price cuts have been made in the cover charges in most instances, the reservations also were booming, a survey revealed. The Hotel Sherman, Stevens hotel, Morrison hotel, Hotel La Salle, and Congress reported that the reservations indicated sell out crowds on the big night.

Other hotels also reported many reservations. The Drake hotel expects that 1,600 will pay for a $6 cover charge to watch the floor show and listen to the music of Clyde McCoy. The Edgewater Beach will present two orchestras, Mark Fisher's and Jack Chapman's, and 2,000 guests at $6 a plate are expected. The Knickerbocker hotel, with a price of $5 cover, the Shoreland hotel on the south side, both reported reservations far in advance of last year.

In the cabarets, such as the Frolics, the Granada, Chez Paree, Vanity Fair, the Rubaiyat, the Playground, and many others standing room only will be the rule after midnight, it was announced.

The ordinary perfunctory survey of the wet spots will be made by prohibition agents, it was reported. The overwhelming sentiment against prohibition shown at the recent election is expected to make the drys unusually languid in the performance of their duties this year, it was said.

Most of the theaters in the loop have scheduled special New Year's eve performances beginning at midnight. They reported good ticket sales.

NEIGHBOR'S CHOICE OF TUNES BY RADIO CAUSES HER SUICIDE

New York, Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Finding the sound of her neighbor's radio unbearable, Mrs. Isabelle Dudley, 55, an invalid, wheeled her chair to a window of her apartment at West 178th street today and plunged six stories to her death. She had been a piano teacher.

"I am the wife of William C. Dudley of apartment 61," said a letter she left for the coroner, "whose business address is 512 Fifth avenue. I have been confined to my home for three years and to a wheelchair for nineteen months.

"The incessant radio playing increased my nervousness and made life unbearable.

"My husband knows where my money is hidden. ISABELLE.

"P. S.—I owe no bills."

Mrs. Dudley's husband, a jeweler, said she had a fall three years ago and injured her spine.

Mandel Brothers Eight-Page Section in the Tribune Produces the Biggest Day-After-Christmas Business in Their History.

LAST Monday, December 26th, Mandel Brothers placed eight full pages of advertising before the readers of the Chicago Tribune. The selling event which this advertising announced was store-wide in scope. Outstanding values were offered in all departments—from Subway Store to the eighth floor.

On Tuesday the readers of the Tribune responded. From the time the doors were opened in the morning until closing Mandel's was the scene of one of the greatest buying rushes in years. Tribune readers jammed the Subway Store, standing two and three deep around the counters and display racks. Tribune readers packed the aisles of the main floor store. In the upstairs departments it was the same—Tribune readers shopping, buying, spending.

"Our eight pages in the Tribune produced the biggest day-after-Christmas business in our history and 50% more business than the comparable day last year," states the management of Mandel Brothers.

Mandel's eight pages of advertising in the Tribune did the job alone. No other advertising was used—because no other advertising was needed. The Tribune's 52% coverage of Chicago and suburbs reaches practically 100% of the able-to-buy segment of the Chicago market.

ATTACK ON GIRL FOUND SLAIN IS CLEW TO MURDER

u Page county officials last night closed the probable motive of the lers of 19 year old Gertrude Modrow, whose body was found on Christmas morning near Addison, two miles st of the Cook county line.

Assistant State's Attorney Russell ney said that it had been established the girl was raped by two men eral weeks ago after a roadhouse y and that she had made threats prosecute the attackers. It is the f of the investigators that the sts or their friends killed Miss row to prevent her talking to the orities.

Three Men Released.

e is, however, no good clew to e identity of the men involved. Three witnesses who were questioned early yesterday in the sheriff's office at Wheaton convinced the investigators they had no testimony to give. They were released. They are Raymond Klasen, 27 years old, 701 South 2d avenue, Maywood; his brother, Joseph, and Elmer Stacey, part owner of a roadhouse north of Melrose Park.

The Klasens are railroad men, Raymond being a yardmaster in the Proviso yards of the Chicago and North Western, and Joseph a brakeman for the same road. That they were called for questioning was said to be "due to a mistake."

Attacked by Two Men.

The story of the events preceding the killing, as told by relatives and friends of the girl, who was a housemaid employed in the home of Mrs. C. O. Lejonstein of 1208 North Rossell avenue, Oak Park, was:

Shortly after Thanksgiving the girl went to a party in a roadhouse. There she was introduced to two men strangers, and it was suggested that they drive her home. She accepted the invitation, but instead of taking her to the Lejonstein residence the men took her to an apartment somewhere in Oak Park and attacked her.

The following day Miss Modrow told her sister, Mrs. Otto Dannenberg, what had happened. She also went, on Nov 29, to the office of Dr. Edmund G Brust, physician, who is also president of the Melrose Park village board. To Dr. Brust she disclosed that she had been attacked, but did not disclose the names of her assailants.

Visits Doctor Again.

She called again at the doctor's office on Dec. 23 and expressed relief when she learned there would be no physical consequences of her experience. She feared, she said, that if her troubles became public she would be put in an institution.

It had been noticed by the Lejonsteins that Miss Modrow of late had seemed to be afraid to go out at night. Her relatives said she had told them threats of death had been made by the rapists if she reported to the police.

State's Attorney Chauncey Reed of Du Page county, Mr. Keeney, Allen Myers, investigator for their office, and Arthur Bennett, chief deputy sheriff of Du Page county, all said they would continue the investigation today.

CREDITORS LOSE FIGHT TO SHARE AMES' INSURANCE

The $1,100,000 insurance trust created by the late Knowlton L. Ames, chairman of the board of the Booth Fisheries company and owner of the Chicago Journal of Commerce, cannot be considered as one of the assets of his estate and subject to creditors' claims, the judges of the Appellate court decided yesterday. The judges held that the insurance policies had been Ames' property and as such could be transferred into a trust. The opinion stated that the trust could not be broken even though Ames did reserve the right to revoke it at any time during his life.

Suit to break the trust was brought by Garnett & Co., Boston brokers, shortly after Mr. Ames ended his life on Dec. 31, 1931. The defendants were the Mutual Life Insurance company of New York and the Pennsylvania Mutual Life Insurance company, which had written Mr. Ames' policies. His estate later was disclosed as insolvent with assets of $50,000 and liabilities of more than $500,000. Of this amount the brokerage company claimed $324,361 as a result of market operations carried on for Mr. Ames. A suit for that sum was pending before Judge Steffen at the time of Mr. Ames' death. Last April Circuit Judge Thomas Taylor ruled against the brokerage concern and the appeal was taken.

Beneficiaries of the trust are Mr. Ames' widow, Mrs. Ada Howell Ames; his daughter, Emily, 5 years old, and John Dawes Ames, his son by a former marriage.

2 BOYS SEIZED IN STOLEN AUTO CONFESS HOLDUP

AUTOMOBILE THEFTS.

Automobiles stolen, 69; recovered, 60; stripped, 8 (from Chicago police records for the twenty-four hours ended at midnight Wednesday).

Automobile thieves in court: Robert McLeon, held to the grand jury for larceny, and Joseph Gwiazdowski, sentenced to 60 days in the Bridewell for larceny, by Judge Harold P. O'Connell; Michael Zow, held to the grand jury for larceny by Judge John Gutknecht.

Two youths riding in a stolen automobile were arrested yesterday by Detectives Breitenreiter and E. Miller of the detective bureau. At the bureau they confessed to Lieut. George Teeling that they had held up the owner, Dr. G. Steinfuehrer of 2834 Mildred avenue, and taken the car from him on Tuesday.

The prisoners are Edwin Lewandowski, 17 years old, 1723 North Francisco avenue, and James Ryan, 17, of 6456 South Union avenue. William Fritz, 19, of 8321 Oglesby avenue, was named by the others as a confederate, although he was not implicated in the actual stickup.

Rival Candidates for Speakership

Alabaman's Friends Act to Head Rainey.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Representative McDuffie of Alabama, supported by Speaker Garner as his successor, has 87 votes pledged to him, according to Representative Rayburn of Texas, who is directing his campaign. Mr. Rayburn insisted today that Mr. McDuffie had more sure votes than any other candidate for speaker, and that his election was assured along with a northern or western man as floor leader.

Refuse to Commit Themselves.

The McDuffie followers are expected to throw their support to a northern or western man as floor leader, hoping by such a move to break down the lead of Representative Rainey of Illinois, who has counted upon attaining 160 votes, 3 more than necessary to make him the Democratic caucus nominee for speaker.

The speakership contest has become so complicated because of the sectional issue that many northern Democrats, especially those from New York, have refused to commit themselves to the respective candidates. They say the Democratic caucus may become deadlocked and President Roosevelt may be called upon to use his influence to bring about harmony in the house.

29 Members from New York.

The next speaker will be selected by the caucus of the Democratic members of the next house. This caucus will be held a few days before the anticipated special session convenes. A majority vote of those present is necessary for designation. In case of a deadlock among the several candidates a bloc such as the Tammany representatives might determine the choice.

In 1909 a group of 22 Democrats, largely from New York, bolted the party leadership on the curtailment of the power of the speaker, and put through a compromise whereby the speaker's power was curtailed only slightly. New York will have 29 Democrats in the next house, of whom 23 come from New York City. If this bloc votes solidly it might determine the choice of the speaker.

INSULL PREDICTS HE WILL STAY IN GREECE LONGTIME

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ATHENS, Dec. 29.—Official government papers tonight declared that the decision of the Greek Court of Appeals which refused to extradite Samuel Insull to the United States is binding on the government and cannot be upset by new representations from the Cook county, Ill., state's attorney's offices. Meanwhile Insull called in newspaper men and issued a statement thanking his lawyers, his Greek friends, and Peter Vanech, his interpreter. The former Chicago utilities magnate revealed that his case had been prepared by the Chicago law firm of Isham, Lincoln & Beale.

"I hope to be able to enjoy my residence in Athens and contemplate living here a considerable time," Insull said. "Mrs. Insull will join me here later."

One Greek newspaper tonight said that Insull is planning to establish a "general Insull enterprise association" in Greece to exploit the country's undeveloped resources, especially water power and timber.

The court's decision on the extradition proceeding goes to the ministry of justice and then to the foreign office, which will officially advise the American legation. The legation will report to the state department, Leland B. Morris, chargé d'affaires, being assisted in preparation of the report by Assistant Prosecutor Andrew J. Vlachos of Chicago.

E. G. FOREMAN JR. IS FINED $40 FOR HITTING DRUGGIST

Edwin G. Foreman Jr., 976 Oak terrace, Glencoe, once a vice president of the former Foreman National bank, was fined $40 yesterday by Justice of the Peace James Corcoran of Evanston on a plea of guilty to charges of disorderly conduct and assault and battery.

On Christmas eve, the court was told, Foreman entered the drug store of Albert H. Baird at 701 Washington street, Evanston, produced a bottle, and demanded that the druggist mix a drink for him. When the druggist refused Foreman struck him, a witness said.

Attorney Allen Healy, representing Foreman, said that his client had apologized to the druggist and his wife, who was in the store. The attorney said that Foreman had suffered heavy financial losses and asked that the fine be light.

H.E.TAYLOR,KANKAKEE, KILLS HIMSELF IN AUTO; PARTNER ALSO SUICIDE

Kankakee, Ill., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—H. E. Taylor, president of the Kankakee Tile and Brick company, committed suicide today by shooting himself in his automobile, apparently while despondent over financial affairs. He was 65.

Last March 14 Taylor's partner, S. M. Hawks, shot himself and his mother to death while visiting her in the state asylum for the insane. Hawks also had been worried over business.

Mrs. Taylor told police today her husband had been brooding over his partner's death and had threatened to "push off like Hawks."

SUE 2 DIRECTORS OF CLOSED BANK FOR $2,000,000

Accuse Chicagoans in Hammond Crash.

Timothy W. Evans, managing vice president of the New York Central railroad, and Henry P. Conkey, president of the W. B. Conkey Printing company of Chicago and Hammond, were named defendants in a $2,000,000 suit filed yesterday in the United States District court by Horace S. French, receiver for the First Trust and Savings bank of Hammond. The suit was filed in federal court because both Evans and Conkey are Chicagoans.

The bill of complaint, filed by Attorney Franklin D. Trueblood, charges that the defendants, former directors of the bank, by illegal conduct, neglect and fraudulent manipulations dissipated the $2,000,000 assets of the institution. The bank was placed in receivership in February, 1931.

Charges Fraudulent Dividends.

The suit charges that the directors of the bank declared fraudulent dividends in 1928, 1929 and 1930. These dividends, the suit said, were paid from the cash reserve, in violation of the Indiana law, and were retained by the directors. At the time the bank closed the liabilities were $3,000,000 in excess of the assets.

The receiver has been able to realize only $200,000, or five per cent on the deposits, since the closing of the bank, according to the bill. The suits also charged that loans totaling $800,000 were made to dummy persons and corporations by the board of directors.

Names Meyn and Son.

The board of directors allowed the president, Peter W. Meyn, and his two sons, Walter and Julius, to dominate the bank and direct the policies, the petition alleged. After the bank closed Meyn and his son, Walter, were convicted of embezzlement and sentenced to the Indiana state penitentiary. Meyn obtained his freedom on parole, but his son died in the prison.

The suit seeks an injunction to restrain the defendants from disposing of money which, it is alleged, they obtained from the bank and asks an accounting of the bank assets.

EMIL WENTZLAFF IS ARRESTED ON THEFT CHARGE

Emil J. Wentzlaff, accused of embezzling $9,029 from the Boulevard State Savings bank at the time he was receiver for the institution, was arrested late yesterday in the lobby of the Morrison hotel. He was taken to the detective bureau, where, half an hour later, he was released on a $1,000 bond.

Wentzlaff was arrested by Sergts. Christopher Callaghan and Michael Shannon. A warrant was issued on Wednesday by Judge Frank M. Padden at the request of Robert J. Murphy, a state bank examiner, and a representative of the Continental Casualty company.

STALIN ASSAILS U. S. AUTHOR FOR 'TELLING TALES'

Writes Article Attacking Thomas Campbell.

MOSCOW, Dec. 29.—(AP)—Joseph V. Stalin, head of the communist party, has personally written a biting criticism of an American, Thomas Campbell, prominent agricultural engineer and author of a book recently published in the United States, with the title, "Russia, Market or Menace." The soviet dictator charges that the writer "invented" details and "told tales" regarding an interview he had with Stalin in Moscow in 1929.

The signed article will appear tomorrow in the All Union communist party's official fortnightly magazine, Bolshevik. Stalin, it is noted, employs the third person in referring to himself on all but three occasions in the article.

Claims Interview Invented.

"A book in the English language, written by a well known agricultural man, Mr. Campbell, recently appeared in America," Stalin writes. "In this book Mr. Campbell exposes, incidentally, the 'interview' with Stalin which took place in Moscow in January, 1929. The interview is remarkable because of the fact that each sentence is an invention or a sensational misrepresentation having the purpose to create advertising for the book and its author.

"Mr. Campbell is obviously using his fancy when he says that the conversation with Stalin, which started at 1 o'clock p. m., 'continued long after night until the dawn.' Indeed, the conversation lasted no more than two hours. Mr. Campbell's fancy is a real American one.

"Mr. Campbell evidently fabricates when he affirms that Stalin 'took my hand with his two hands and said, "We may become friends."'"

Says Campbell "Tells Tales."

"In reality nothing of the kind took place nor could have taken place. Mr. Campbell could not ignore that Stalin does not need 'friends' like Campbell.

"Mr. Campbell tells tales again when he says that, sending him the record of the interview, I appended a note: 'Keep this memento. It will become some time an important historical document.'

"In reality this record was sent to Mr. Campbell by the translator, Comrade Jarotzky, without any remark at all. Mr. Campbell evidently desires to speculate on Stalin."

POLICE OF BERLIN ORDER ALIEN REDS TO QUIT NATION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Dec. 29.—The Berlin police force has launched an intensive drive to combat communist agitation. Several foreign communists have been notified by police to leave Germany because of their propaganda here or because they lack means of support. The Reds have been warned that if they refuse to depart they will be deported.

The management of the Deutsche theater, which has been accused of spreading communist propaganda, today agreed to close the house at a conference with police officials. The play, "God, Emperor, and Peasant," by Julius Hay, had resulted in protests from religious quarters. Disturbances in the theater occurred there Tuesday and yesterday.

Store Owner Fights Gun Battle with Robber Pair

As two robbers ran from the Lawndale Grocery company, 4013 Ogden avenue, yesterday with $667, Benedict Fenci, president of the company, opened fire on them with a shotgun. The bandits, neither of whom was wounded, returned the fire as they jumped into a waiting automobile and sped away. A dozen customers and employés were in the store at the time of the robbery.

HUNGRY PUPILS' FUND MAKES NEW PLEA FOR GIFTS

Donations for Day Drop to $11.50.

The Hungry School Children's fund, which has been providing free lunches to needy pupils in the public schools, appealed for contributors yesterday, after the day's donations had been found to total only $11.50.

One of the day's gifts came from one of the most loyal friends on the fund's honor roll, the Book House for Children, which sends $7 every week or oftener. A group of children from the Greenwood Kindergarten, 4650 Greenwood avenue, sent $1.50. The other two gifts came from "A Friend" and "V. H."

In a few days many hungry youngsters will start back to school after the Christmas holidays, and they will be dependent to a large degree on the hot noon lunch provided by the fund.

The Hungry School Children's fund so far this year has raised a total of $18,090, but most of it has been spent for lunches since school opened last September. Last year the fund cared for 10,000 children in 209 public schools, at a cost of $48,000. The fund is lagging far behind this year.

Contributions of any amount will be welcomed. They may be sent to this fund in care of the cashier of The Tribune, Tribune Tower.

4 AUTO VICTIMS DIE; 1932 TOLL IS RAISED TO 1,107

There were four automobile fatalities in Cook county yesterday and the 1921 toll was increased to 1,107. The victims:

Patrick Haggerty, 43 years old, 5510 Fulton street, a street car conductor. Died at the county hospital. He was struck by an automobile last night in front of 2105 North Cicero avenue.

Usher Roitman, 73 years old, 1234 South Avers avenue. Died at the county hospital. He was injured at Crawford avenue and Grenshaw street Dec. 19.

Bernard McGarry, 55 years old, 2730 West 13th street, a bricklayer. Died at the county hospital. He was struck by a hit and run motorist at Roosevelt road and Paulina street, Dec. 24.

Miss May Small, 74 years old, 6202 Harper avenue. Died in Jackson Park hospital of injuries received yesterday when she was struck by a bus of the Shore Line Bus company of Hammond at 69th street and Stony Island avenue. George Thomas of Gary, driver of the bus, was held.

CHARITY IS GIVEN $71,000 IN WILL OF H. H. HITCHCOCK

The will of Howard H. Hitchcock, investment broker, was admitted to probate yesterday in Waukegan by Acting Probate Judge Theodore Forby of Lake county. A total of $71,000 was left to charity in the will. The petition for probate said that the estate consists of personal property in excess of $500,000. Mr. Hitchcock died on Nov. 30, in his home at 543 Waverly road, Highland Park. He was 74.

The charity bequests are: Highland Park hospital, $25,000; Moody Bible institute, $25,000; Y. M. C. A. of Chicago, 19 South La Salle street, $10,000; Chicago Home for the Friendless, 5059 Vincennes avenue, $5,000; Old People's Home of Chicago, 4724 Vincennes avenue, $5,000, and the Chicago Boy Scouts, $1,000. The remainder of the estate is to be divided by the family.

MINE HALF TON BLOCK OF ORE VALUED AT $40,000

VANCOUVER, B. C., Dec. 29.—A half ton block of ore, four feet by 18 inches by six inches, which was taken from the Pioneer gold mine, was estimated by assayers today to value $40,000. The ore caused considerable excitement here and gold issues advanced sharply on the exchanges.

REMOVE LAST OF 54 BODIES FROM WRECKED MINE

Moweaqua, Ill., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—The Shafer mine today delivered up the last of the 54 miners killed by an explosion last Saturday morning. The seven bodies found today in the north shaft, about 2,000 feet from the main bore, made the total complete.

The finding of the last group of bodies removed the lingering hope of the rescue workers, who have toiled almost unceasingly, with a few interruptions, for 130 hours, that some of the men might have had time to barricade themselves. The last group found today were those of Arthur Dove, James Roff, Thomas Birley, Edward Campbell, Charles McDonald, Mike Ragnils, and Mike Potsick. The last named was the father of sixteen children, the oldest of whom was also killed by the explosion, and Mrs. Potsick expects another child in a few months.

The position of the bodies, as with all the others, showed that death had been outright. The explosion struck the men down where they stood or as they walked and rode in mule carts to their work.

The fifty-fourth body was removed from the mine at 6 p. m. The bodies found today were those of Arthur Dove, James Roff, Thomas Birley, Edward Campbell, Charles McDonald, Mike Ragnils, and Mike Potsick. The last named was the father of sixteen children, the oldest of whom was also killed by the explosion, and Mrs. Potsick expects another child in a few months.

An inquest inquiring into the cause of the explosion will be held next Monday.

2 HARVARD STUDENTS KILLED WHEN PLANE CRASHES INTO WATER

Nahant, Mass., Dec. 29.—(AP)—Edward Mallinckrodt III., son of a St. Louis chemical manufacturer, and Donald McKay Frost Jr., of Dover and Boston, both Harvard freshmen, crashed to their deaths in an airplane into the waters of Lynn harbor late today. Their bodies were not immediately recovered.

The plane, piloted by Mallinckrodt, left the East Boston airport about a half hour before the crash on a pleasure cruise. Mallinckrodt had been flying about a month, airport attachés said.

The plane went into a tailspin when about half a mile off Bass rocks. It made six complete turns in the spin before striking the water.

THE VETO AND THE BEER BILL.

There is a growing feeling in Washington that President Hoover will veto the beer bill when it is laid before him. The assumption seems to rest upon what Mr. Hoover is reported to have said to close friends or what his political intimates say comes directly from him.

It would be difficult to reconcile such a veto to the proprieties of the situation. It would be an exercise of Mr. Hoover's privilege and still be a questionable act of executive judgment. The question presented by the bill can hardly be regarded as one in which the President, although at the end of his term, would feel it necessary for the good of the nation to put himself between an act of congress and the consequences of that act. There are, conceivably, occasions when a President's conviction as to right and wrong might require him to assert his own judgment up to the full limits of the power still remaining with him. No such occasion could be found with respect to this bill.

The proposed modification of the Volstead act pending the submission of the repeal of the 18th amendment has the full sanction of American political methods. It was proposed in the platform of the party which won the election. Mr. Hoover and his party were defeated in that election and this issue was one of the causes. The popular vote rejected what Mr. Hoover stood for, along with the whole course of his party in maintaining the position favored by him during his administration. The administration and both houses of the national legislature were taken from the Republican party and given to the Democrats. The Volstead law and the 18th amendment were deeply involved in this decision. It is true that the consequences of the election are not yet represented in full power in Washington. Nevertheless, the still existing congress so feels the force of the popular decision that the house of representatives has already passed a beer bill and the senate is expected to do so.

If this expectation is realized and a bill modifying the Volstead act reaches the President when he has, say, only sixty days remaining in office, it would seem that the proprieties require his acceptance of an act so supported by the authentic political processes of the country. Even his doubts, if he had any, as to the constitutionality of the act could not properly lead him to veto it. These doubts could hardly amount to convictions. As doubts they are properly for court determination. The congressmen who have voted or will vote for the bill are persuaded that prohibition as it now exists will permit the sale of such a malt beverage. If there is a legal issue it is one for the courts. A veto by the President would only be in the line of preventing such a decision and would resolve itself into the expressed determination of a man about to leave office to have his last word on this question and deny that anybody else could be right.

That is not a position which any President can afford to take. To do so would require that Mr. Hoover ignore the election returns and close his administrative record as a stubborn man, refusing to yield to forces which are intended to prevail in the United States when they have been revealed and expressed as in this connection.

HAWAIIAN FOOTBALL.

To some citizens coming down to earth Tuesday morning, to the return of the workaday world, the most astonishing piece of news which greeted them was on the sports page. It was from Honolulu and related that the Green Bay Packers, the professional football team which has just been nosed out of the championship it held for years and years, had barely managed a victory over a Hawaiian team of youngsters who were outweighed thirty pounds to the man. The Honolulu outfit was described as being composed of high school alumni representing the various races of the islands. The star performer for the Hawaiians, Danny Wise, seems to be still in high school. The Packers were unable to do anything with the light Hawaiian line and scored by forward passing, at which the Hawaiians also were adept and scored twice.

It is maintained that professional football in the United States is much superior to the college game for a number of reasons which seem logical. A star is sought for each position and stars are obtainable from the college game. The collegians have never been completely satisfied that the teams of graduates were better than their own, but the assumption has gained ground and credibility. There may have been too much Christmas in the Packers' approach to this Honolulu game, or the Hawaiians may be very good. McGuire, the great Wisconsin player, is a Hawaiian, and the islands have produced some notable athletes. Sport lovers were not quite prepared to find a distinguished professional team so nearly taken to a licking as the Packers apparently were when they met this Honolulu outfit. American coaches may be started looking out into the Pacific.

MR. SCOTT PLANS A STATE.

One thing can be said for technocracy. It appears in a fair way to be the biggest explosion which ever came out of Greenwich Village. That, comparatively, may be much or little, but it wasn't until the Village took to free thinking about machines that it began to really knock them dead in the first row. Naturally, not a little of its success can be attributed to the fact that it soon moved out of the Village and got itself desk room at Columbia university.

If any one should try to put the thing in its place by assuming that because Howard Scott was a Village celebrity before he became a world planner, that because of this he cannot create a new state, it must be remembered that Joseph Smith was a nonconsequential agriculturist roaming around the wooded fields of western New York when he found the tablets with which he founded a religion and tribe, a migrating and colonizing people, a nation, and gave the Union a new state.

Just because a man has been idling about and indulging in a great deal of aimless tall talk doesn't prove in our generation any more than it ever proved in any other that given the right time and place he can't start something with which the world will find itself dealing. The present, we'd say, is about such a time as might ripen any noteworthy enterprise. Public disturbances promote mental and spiritual ecstasies. Troubles always have caused men to see visions and plan plans. Any one looking back over the last few years will be more struck by the moderation of the seers of visions than by either their multiplicity, their convictions or their enthusiasm.

All told, we have been remarkably placid. A number of explanations could be advanced for this placidity. Probably one is found in Russia, where the comrades have put so many wild ideas into so much nightmare of experience. Another reason may be found in the new world of science, where miracles are so constantly popping they rather satisfy the natural human desire that miracles should pop. It has become increasingly difficult for anybody to produce a new giraffe.

The technocrats whom Mr. Scott has released to astonish the world seem, viewed superficially, to have made two mistakes. At least they appear as mistakes, although possibly without them so much attention would not have been attracted. One was in making too many claims for what machinery has done. The technocrats would have been safer in putting over their technical picture for the future. They could have made it the very near future and have gone the limit. When they say that such and such has happened they bring the fact finders down on them. Then, as what appears to be another mistake, they endeavor to find a substitute for money. The safer plan would have been to dismiss money entirely and make goods the rewards of work.

There arises, of course, the little difficulty of finding a base for the technological government which is to have control. That little difficulty, however, is not peculiar to any one plan. It is common to them all. There being inherent in the American people an objection to dictation and despotism, whether benevolent or not, every planner sooner or later comes face to face with a problem which he finds it more convenient to dodge than to solve. If the thing can be permanently dodged we might get somewhere. But the possibility of taking a clothespin in one hand and a new state in the other and of firmly suspending the state by the clothespin in the air above has never been convincing enough to persuade any one that the Utopia would stay where it had been put.

THREE REDS OUT.

One of the marked benefits of the recent Democratic landslide and preceding admonitory political action is the defeat of La Guardia of New York, Brookhart of Iowa, and Blaine of Wisconsin. Thus three radicals, having no respect for the party whose prestige and organization they have made use of, have been removed from office and from the opportunity of mischief making in this troubled time. That in itself is good for the party and for the country.

But the departure of these men has more than a personal significance. It is a reminder that the American people are a conservative people at bottom, even, and perhaps especially, at a time when widespread difficulties and suffering seem to offer opportunity to the agitator and destroyer. Thus far at least in our history they have kept their feet on the ground of common sense and fair play, and in crises have refused to follow false prophets and seize upon quack remedies. They have not forgotten the lessons of experience or the principles and policies which have made achievement possible. They have not been the dupes of the charlatan and reckless purveyors of novel and untried nostrums. This genius for practical affairs will save them in this emergency as it has in past ordeals.

Editorial of the Day

[New York Evening Post.]

From Germany there come every so often reports of the invention or the development of some type of locomotive which is going to revolutionize railroad transportation and constitute a final answer to the competition of buses and trucks. Last year it was the propeller-driven rail Zeppelin; today it is a new smokeless Diesel engine. This latter train has been tested on the run between Hamburg and Berlin and averaged a speed of nearly eighty miles an hour for 185 miles, running as fast as 106 miles an hour on stretches of straight track. In addition to being able to maintain so high a sustained speed the Diesel train has the further advantages of absolute cleanliness, increased comfort, and low cost. It sounds more practical than the propeller-driven Zeppelin, but in a primary matter like speed the competition which the railroads face today is not that of the motor bus but of the airplane. The time has unquestionably come when the railways of Germany or the United States must share their former traffic; they cannot hope to regain what was once their monopoly. A Diesel engine may increase their speed, new parlor car type coaches may increase their comfort, economies may cut down prevailing fares. All these things are necessary if travel by train is not to fall off even more than it has fallen, but none of them can constitute the "salvation" of the railroad, however enthusiastically the German experts may hail their most recent development.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

IT'S REALLY going to be quite comforting to make new year resolutions this time. It's about the only thing we don't have to pay some kind of tax on.

OF COURSE, we'd all like to swear off on synthetic beer. But the way things are going and the prospect of a veto and everything—perhaps we'd better wait.

—:—

AND COME each New Year, we always suggest that a very nice resolution to take would be to return every book that anybody has borrowed. But, after all, it's only the new year that's coming in, not the millennium.

—:—

NO SWEETER THING.

A little child the tale most loved on earth
And watch the wonder deepen in his eyes
The while you tell him of the Christ Child's birth;

The while you tell of shepherds and a song,
Of gentle drowsy beasts and fragrant hay
On which that starlit night in Bethlehem
God's tiny Son and His young mother lay.

Life holds no sweeter thing than this—to tell
A little child while Christmas candles glow
The story of a Babe whose humble birth

ADELAIDE LOVE.

THE PROPOSED STATUE of old Chris Columbo to be put in Grant park is under fire. The statue committee say it's a great work of art, while a committee of artists say that they can't tell just what it is, but that one thing is certain, it isn't art. But they're artists, too. The only artist that is ever pleased with a statue is the one who made it, just as the only artist who likes a picture is the one who painted it. Artists are like that. Anyhow, we're not worrying. Most of the statues in Chicago and the country over for that matter give us naught but a pain in the neck. Why must statues be put up?

AND THAT'S WHY we never cared to be famous. If we were a great man, as soon as we were dead they'd start school children giving a penny apiece to erect a statue to our sainted memory. And we know from what we've seen of other statues what ours would be like. And so for the next fifty years or so we'd be just turning over and over in our grave. By that time they'd move it to dig a sewer or make room for a gas station and we'd quiet down.

THE CRULLER WOMAN.

The old woman with the crullers
Comes down the little street.
She wears a brown shawl on her head,
And rubbers on her feet . . .
(For it's raining mist and raindrops Down the little crooked street.)
It's: "Crullers, boys! Fresh crullers here!
Hot crullers fried tonight!"
Her voice melts in the distance,
Her face blurs out of sight . . .
(For the sleet is crackling downward
On the little street tonight.)
Not a footprint, not a shadow,
Not a sound of shuffling feet.
The cruller woman passes on
As a sparrow through the wheat . . .
(And the white snowflakes are falling,
On the little crooked street.)

ROSA ZAGNONI MARINONI.

MR. F. ROOSEVELT'S expression of horror is creating great interest. What we want to know is did he, when the sales tax bill was suggested to him, say, "Oh, horror!" or simply moan "Horrible, horrible!" We would much rather that Franklin did not say "Oh, horror!" We'd even prefer he had said when told that congress was going to pass a sales tax bill, "Now do they think that's nice!" After all, there is a Roosevelt tradition, and we like to see it followed, after a fashion, anyhow.

—:—

ADD GOOD NEWS of Good Times. "Million Dollar Anti-Trust Suit Filed."—Headline. Think of it, somebody thinks there's a million dollars left. Well, they wouldn't sue for a million dollars unless they thought there was that much money in the world.

—:—

"Now that you is 5 months old an' have acquired the mental capacity of the average congressman, I guess it's time I let you know what's it's all about. Chicago is in a nice old place called America. America consists of 100,000,000 people, 10,000,000 of which is shouting 'The country must remain dry,' while the other 90,000,000 is howling 'We want beer!' Of the 10,000,000 drys, 8,000,000 has got liquor on their breath. Of the 90,000,000 who are squawkin' for beer, 50,000,000 ain't got enough jack to buy a stein if they got beer back tomorrow. If that ain't funny, Strangler Lewis is effeminate! America is headed by a guy called The President. A few years back, kids was told to be real good an' maybe they would be president some day. Right at present if any kid was asleep and dreamt he became president, he would wake up howlin' like hell, on account he would regard it as a nightmare. . . ."

THE WORST EVER.

THE chief delight of some people is to talk about operations they have had. This subject is far from being tabooed when two or more are gathered together. And such frank discussions, too! Organs are talked about without reservation.

Such conversations may do some harm in the first place, if a man has always boasted that he had the only operation of a certain kind, it must be a great shock for him to sit by and hear three or four other men tell about having had that kind of an operation. Or, if some good woman has always thought that her case was the worst that any surgeon had ever seen, she must collapse somewhat when she hears other ladies state, with an air of certitude, that theirs was the worst case ever known to be operated on and to live through the ordeal. They knew because the surgeon told each of them so. In some instances the same surgeon had told two or three of them that her case was the worst.

Among the surgical fraternity there is a tendency to tell such little white lies. Like other white lies they are reputed to be free from taint of sin because they stand the acid test of malice or harmful intent.

Nor have the physicians any right to assume a holier than thou attitude toward the knights of the scalpel. They have no right to throw stones. They have been known to say:

"Yours was the worst case that any person ever lived through.

"I never saw a worse case of pneumonia get well.

"You sent for the doctor just in time. Another hour and it would have been too late.

"Snatched out of the jaws of death. . . ."

The logic of the physician or surgeon who tells his patients and their friends is that these remarks do no harm and they make the affected party feel that he has something to boast about as an offset for all his illness cost him. And, so far as the ex-patient is concerned, this type of boastfulness is reasonably well tolerated. Perhaps the listeners are thinking: "If I am patient in hearing him through he will be willing to hear me tell about my very unusual case."

BATH ITCH.

C. B. writes: I have a prickly sensation, together with blue pimples over my body, after a bath lasting for several minutes. I have used all kinds of soap to no avail; water is always soft and lukewarm. I have had this trouble for years. What can it be and what do you suggest as a remedy?

REPLY.

This is one of the first chapters in the twenty-second or 1932-'33 edition of our serial on household itches.

BASKETBALL GIRL.

M. J. writes: Do you think that playing basketball is in any way dangerous for a high school girl? I have played for several years and I have been told by adults that it is harmful and that no girl should play. What do you think about it?

REPLY.

Probably you have been poorly advised, although something can be said against this and all other athletic contests. For an average normal girl the advantages outweigh the disadvantages.

FRIGHT TERROR.

L. D. H. writes: My friend has a 20 year old son with very good habits. About every three weeks he has violent nightmares in which he gets out of bed, cries out, and makes a lot of noise generally, and frightens the family immensely. He is attending accounting school three nights a week. Can you give any reason for this trouble? Is it anything to worry about?

REPLY.

Some substratum of fear is the larger part of the explanation of night terror. A study of his history and analysis of his personality might uncover the cause and point a way out. Freudians and other students of personality are of service in many of these cases. There is no reason to worry.

STREET CAR TRANSFERS.

Chicago, Dec. 20.—[Friend of the People.]—I wish to know if I am permitted to ride on the street cars as follows for one fare: Board a Chicago avenue eastbound car at Lavergne, thence to Crawford avenue and north on Crawford to Belmont avenue; west on Belmont to Central avenue bus line; then north on Central to Montrose avenue. R. C.

The contract ordinance under which the Surface Lines are operating with respect to the subject of transfers provides as follows: "The payment of a single fare shall not entitle a passenger to reverse his general direction of travel. If necessary to enable a passenger to reach his destination the conductor of the company shall issue without additional charge a transfer upon a transfer, the same as required upon the payment of a cash fare; the intention being that for a single fare the company shall carry any passenger for a single continuous ride over any of the said lines of the street railway as long as such ride is in the same general direction."

The route described is not in the same general direction, and it also requires a reversal of the general direction of travel. It follows, therefore, that this route cannot be used under the ordinance on the payment of a single fare. The proper, the most direct and convenient route in this instance would be Chicago avenue westbound to Central avenue and thence north to destination, and this trip can be made for a single fare.

CONTESTING WILL.

Chicago, Dec. 23.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—"A," an 80 year old woman, dies in New York. She has no family. One day prior to her death "A" makes a will naming "B," her sister, the sole beneficiary. "A's" brother, "C," who is a lawyer in New York City, protests the will. "D," the son of "E," who is a deceased sister of "A," gave his uncle "C" power of attorney in the protest.

1. Does the state of New York recognize a will made under these circumstances? 2. If there is no agreement, how much can "C" charge "D" for services? 3. If "A's" brothers, "X," "Y" and "Z," who have not concerned themselves with the will, become beneficiaries through "C's" efforts, are they responsible for their share of the court costs? E. B.

1. The question is whether she had sufficient mental capacity. Her age and the nearness of death would be material factors to be considered, but they would not be conclusive. The contestant would have the burden of proving undue influence or lack of testamentary capacity.

2. Depends on the extent and character of these services and on other facts that are not before us.

3. They would not have to pay the attorney's fee, if that is what you mean to ask.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

DECEMBER 30, 1916.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The Russian government has declined to negotiate a new commercial treaty with the United States to replace the treaty abrogated by the American congress under the Taft administration. Petrograd refuses even to discuss the question of a new treaty with David R. Francis, American ambassador to Russia, for these two reasons: Russia will never accede to the American proposal that she honor all American passports and thereby admit American Jews to her dominions. Russia feels that since she entered into the economic alliance with the other entente allies at the Paris conference she would prefer to consult Great Britain, France, Italy, and Japan before discussing a commercial treaty of any character with the United States.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The three Scandinavian nations—Norway, Sweden, and Denmark—through identical notes, the Norwegian copy of which was handed to the state department today by Minister Bryn, have expressed their interest in President Wilson's proposals "looking toward the establishment of a durable peace" and their "deepest sympathy" with all efforts to shorten the war. Unlike the Swiss government, which offered to help in any way, "no matter how modest," the Scandinavian countries make no direct offer of coöperation.

LONDON.—With some of Germany's finest fighting men shifted from the Somme front especially for the purpose, the crown prince made a desperate attack on the French positions northwest of Verdun. Striking on the left bank of the Meuse, opposite the scene of Gen. Nivelle's recent victory, the Germans hammered at the French lines between Dead Man's hill and Hill 304.

BERLIN.—The southern wing of the army commanded by Gen. Gerok, in coördination with movements in Great Wallachia, has advanced eastward in the mountains. German and Austro-Hungarian troops in the intersected highland terrain of the Transylvanian eastern front captured by storm and hand to hand fighting several positions lying one behind the other. Fourteen hundred Russians and Rumanians were made prisoners and eighteen machine guns and three cannon captured.

ROME.—On the Trentino front the artillery was especially active and small encounters in the neighborhood of Sano, in the Adige valley, resulted in Italian victories. In the Goritz area the enemy shelled the town and its suburbs without causing much damage. On the Carso Italian artillery continued to be active.

BERLIN.—The Finnish steamer Othonna, of 1,070 tons, with a regiment of Russian coast artillery from the Aland islands on board, struck a mine and sank in a few minutes, a dispatch to the Frankfurter Zeitung from Copenhagen says. All on board with the exception of fifty persons are said to have been drowned. The regiment consisted of 4,000 men. Two British steamers were sunk by submarines yesterday.

CHICAGO.—It was reformers' day at the Illinois Woman's Legislative congress yesterday. They were there from that ever ready foe of vice, Arthur Burrage Farwell, to Mrs. W. I. Thomas of the peace at any price school. In the band were Parker Sercombe, Ald. Robert M. Buck, Max Loeb, Mrs. Ignace Reis, Mrs. W. H. Hefferan, Miss Kate Adams, Dr. Lucy Waite, and Miss Lucy Hall of the Women's Church federation. A resolution was adopted for practically every phase of modern reform.

RUMORS.

Chicago, Dec. 22.—J. T. K.'s letter which appeared in your issue of the 19th insinuates that Mayor Cermak's cleanup order is only a bluff and will last only a few days.

The fact that the former administration was just the opposite of what it should have been does not justify us to have the same opinion of Mayor Cermak's administration. Of course, disappointed jobholders and tax eaters try to discredit the Democratic administration and I have heard dozens of stories about Mr. Cermak which, if true, would make him unfit for any place outside of jail, but not one of the men or women telling these stories could prove them. All got the information from "absolutely reliable inside sources," but when I asked them to go with me to the state's attorney or to a newspaper and prove the stories or give their "absolutely reliable source" they promptly and definitely declined.

I am no politician, never held a public office, nor applied for one, but I think every person should, as the law demands, be considered innocent until proven guilty, and every good citizen should object to even listening to the stories which are being told about officials unless the teller of the stories is willing and able to prove what he tells. Most men will live up to the name they have among the people and if we will consider our officials, including the police, honest and decent until proven otherwise, 90 per cent of them will be so, but if we consider and call them thieves and grafters we should blame ourselves if some of them want the game as well as the name. A CITIZEN.

CAPTIONS.

Riverside, Ill., Dec. 20.—A short while back I believe you printed an editorial dealing with the difficulties of caption writing over pictures, and the cogent dexterity of THE TRIBUNE caption writers.

The caption in this morning's TRIBUNE, "Capital Building Gets White Blanket of Snow," is indeed very subtle, and I am afraid the point will be missed by many who are not aware that Pegler has been hanging his hat in Washington recently, thereby making it quite necessary to assure the public that it was not green snow, or pink snow, or, more likely, black snow.

JOHN OWEN THOMAS.

IRISH.

Chicago, Dec. 21.—R. W., under date of Dec. 14, asks for the nationality of Dr. Sir Arthur Conan Doyle. On his first visit to Chicago in 1894 we had the honor of entertaining him. I asked him his nationality. His reply was, "I am Irish." JOHN MCKINLOCK.

HORSES AT 5 CENTS.

Oak Park, Ill., Dec. 22.—In THE TRIBUNE today you print on the front page an article headlined, "Horses Bring 5 Cents Each at Sheriff's Sale." The article is from Hagerstown, Md., and it further states that cows and calves sold for from 10 to 75 cents, and automobiles 60 cents.

This may be news, but why feature it, and if it must be printed, why not find out more of the circumstances and tell the whole story? There are thousands of people who will read this story and take it literally. It certainly will not tend to speed the return of good times. A thinking reader knows that while prices are at the low point of many years a dead horse should sell for more than 5 cents for grease, and any kind of a cow will produce more than 75 cents on the butcher's block.

The facts probably are that the holder of a mortgage has foreclosed and the tenant farmer has asked his friends attending the sale to help him buy back his property at as near nothing as possible. He gets his notes canceled, his property back, and the mortgagee gets some experience. The prices certainly do not set a true standard of values.

Let us face the facts, but not distort them. Help people keep up their courage and we will get out of the depression. The story in question is merely propaganda for bolshevism. J. H. K.

THE CULT OF SAVAGERY.

Elgin, Ill., Dec. 19.—If Mrs. Peabody, Bishop Cannon, and Scott McBride really are sincere and wish to better the conditions of their fellow men, why not do a little investigating of the Georgia chain gangs? Can you picture a lot of humans chained together like so many wild beasts and lashed with a blacksnake if they should so much as stop to mop the sweat on their brows? But these so-called reformers are too devoted to this damnable dry law; they have no time for anything else. Their motto is: "Enforce this law with rifle and machine gun if necessary." Human life doesn't mean a thing to these people.

A LAW TO RAISE PRICES.

Chicago, Dec. 27.—How many housewives struggling to meet a fat budget with a very lean purse realize that the farm relievers are about to put through the domestic allotment plan which will put a 100 per cent tax on bread, pork, and cotton goods? Of course, they can eat corn meal and beefsteak and wear silk or rayon if they have money enough.

Marie Antoinette recommended cake under somewhat similar conditions.

NEW YORK PAY CUTTING STARTS UNDER NEW LAW

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 29.—[Special.]—A pay cut schedule which will effect an estimated saving of $18,000,000 in the 1933 budget was adopted by the board of estimate in a special meeting today.

The schedule is modeled exactly after the cut prescribed by the state legislature for the board of education salaries. An additional saving of $2,000,000, to bring the total pay cuts to the $20,000,000 pledged by the city will be obtained through a similar action against salaries not officially in the budget. Such items include the pay of the board of transportation employés, whose salaries are provided by corporate stock issues. That also is the status of the board of water supply workers.

Total Cut Is $40,000,000.

The board of estimate also authorized the director of the budget, Charles L. Kohler, to report to the board immediately on ways and means of cutting other than personal service items up to $20,000,000, bringing the total budget slash to $40,000,000, in accordance with the city's promise to the bankers who gave financial aid.

With the adoption of the pay cut schedule Mr. Kohler is authorized to apply the reductions to the salary lists, through classification, and submit them to the board of estimate for final approval. This final step on the part of Mr. Kohler will indicate just how many salaries are affected and the exact saving entailed.

Must Act Before Jan. 15.

With that out of the way the schedule must then be approved by the board of aldermen and signed by the mayor to become effective. All of this must be accomplished before Jan. 15, when the next pay roll falls due, according to Mr. Kohler.

The new pay schedule is based on a general 6 per cent reduction, running up to 33.9 per cent of salaries over $15,000. The pay cuts will apply only to salaries over $2,000 a year.

Included in the estimated additions to the $18,000,000 already authorized to be put will be the voluntary contributions of the justices of the Supreme court, who offered 10 per cent, or $2,500, each of their salaries, the judges of General Sessions and other courts, who made proportionate contributions.

Before the final $40,000,000 budget slash can be effected the city must reopen the 1933 budget, as authorized by the state legislature.

State Sales Tax Likely.

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—The indications for a general state sales tax became stronger today as a direct result of President Elect Roosevelt's opposition to one being imposed by the federal government. The more forceful argument against a state sales tax in the past has been the belief that the federal government was planning to balance its budget by that means.

State officials, however, have about decided that the further increasing of present taxes is futile.

ROB WANATAH, INDIANA, BANK; LOOT IS $3,000

La Porte, Ind., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Three armed robbers took about $3,000 today from the Wanatah State bank, fifteen miles south of here. They forced Wilton Geiger and Anna Lawrence, employés, to lie on the floor while they looted the cash drawers and counters. The thieves entered the main banking room through the office of C. E. Osborn, an insurance agent and director of the bank, after forcing him into the banking room.

The three robbers escaped in a large sedan that had license plates stolen Nov. 27 from the auto owned by Edward Milgrim, Gary shoe merchant. Milgrim's auto was found ten days later in Chicago, but the Indiana plates had been removed and a bogus set of Illinois plates substituted.

The Wanatah bank is equipped with tear gas, but employés were taken so completely by surprise they were unable to release it.

Robber Scared Away.

Caldwater, Mich., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—A robber, about 25, armed with a revolver entered the First State bank of Tekonsha, near here, early this morning and handed a note to B. G. Doolittle, cashier.

The note said, "Hand over $900 cash and don't make a false move. If you do I'll watch the breath of life leave your body."

Doolittle asked if he might enter the vault to procure the cash. The gunman nodded his head. He became alarmed at Doolittle's delay in the vault and fled without any loot.

Altoona, Ia., Bank Robbed.

Altoona, Ia., Dec. 29.—(AP)—Two men today robbed the Shaffer bank here of between $1,300 and $1,400. Lewis Heller, vice president, was locked in the vault by the robbers.

WIFE WILL GET DIVORCE FROM LEON MANDEL II.

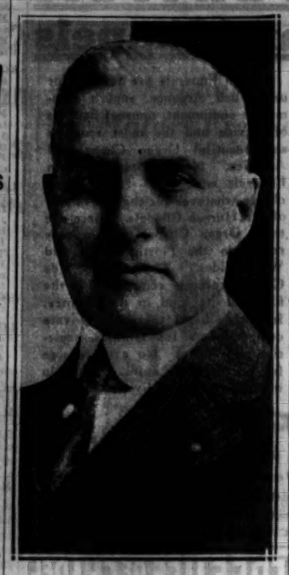
Mrs. Edna Horn Mandel of the Belmont hotel yesterday filed suit for divorce from Leon Mandel II., general manager of the department store which bears his name, and an hour later was promised her decree by Circuit Judge Philip J. Finnegan. Mrs. Mandel charged cruelty. She was awarded custody of her two children, Noel, 5 years old, and Leon III., 4 years old. An unrevealed settlement was accepted by Mrs. Mandel in lieu of alimony.

Immediately after the suit was filed Mandel issued a statement in which he said: "My wife and I have agreed in the matter of the children's custody. A satisfactory settlement has been amicably reached. I have the utmost regard for Mrs. Mandel, but we are temperamentally unsuited to each other."

HANGS HIMSELF IN HOME.

Michael Tolar, 75 years old, 2609 West 21st place, hanged himself yesterday in his home. His sister, Mrs. Mary Bidunik, was unable to tell the police why her brother took his life.

GETS JAIL TERM



BENJAMIN COOLIDGE.

Benjamin L. Coolidge, former receiver of a building at 3501 Montrose avenue, was sent to the county jail yesterday by Circuit Judge Harry M. Fisher to serve six months for contempt of court after he had admitted embezzling $1,089 in receivership funds. Coolidge was held to the grand jury two weeks ago by Judge Denis E. Sullivan in the Superior court on similar charges in another receivership case.

Coolidge was removed from his receivership and was sentenced on the petition of Louis Kahn, his successor as receiver. He appeared before Judge Fisher and confessed that he had taken the money and that he was unable to repay it, as Judge Fisher had ordered him to do on Dec. 14.

FEDERAL JUDGE DENIES PADLOCK ON CASINO DOORS

Dismisses Effort to Close Resort.

New York, Dec. 29.—[Special.]—The government of the United States failed in its attempt to put a padlock on the Central Park Casino today when federal Judge Robert P. Patterson from the bench dismissed its suit based on the charge that the gay and expensive resort was a nuisance where violation of the liquor laws was encouraged by the sale of set-ups.

The judge announced that he found that, while there was considerable drinking going on in the Casino, the management had given notice that they would not tolerate the sale of liquor. If he permitted the place to be padlocked, he ruled, it would mean that any one "conducting a public place where people come and go" and where any drinking was done could be closed.

Although at least 30 per cent of the patrons of the Central Park Casino carried liquor with them when they entered the resort, Rene L. Black, former service manager there, testified today, he never saw any one intoxicated in the place.

Mr. Black was the first of a series of defense witnesses who told about the operations of the Casino before both sides rested.

Drinking was discouraged, Mr. Black said, but having found it impossible to prevent it entirely the management requested that it be poured out discreetly. All the attachés were under orders from Sidney Solomon, the manager, not to admit persons under the influence of liquor or persons carrying liquor, he went on, but at least 30 per cent of the guests smuggled it in—men under their coats and women in their muffs.

ATTACK LICENSE OF BOND COMPANY IN NITTI CASE

Assistant State's Attorney Albert C. DeWitt, head of the state's attorney's office bond department, appeared yesterday and asked Chief Justice John Prystalski of the Criminal court to revoke the license of the Public Indemnity Company of New Jersey. He charged the company posted a $25,000 bond for Frank Nitti, director of the remnants of the Capone gang, while a judgment of $25,000 on a forfeited bond stood against it. The company is now under suspension in the federal court.

Mr. DeWitt also filed a motion asking Judge Prystalski to request Leo H. Lowe, director of the state department of trade and commerce, to revoke the company's license. The company was ordered to file an answer by Jan. 9.

Nitti was shot three times and seriously wounded by Detective Harry Lang, who also was wounded, in a raid on a downtown office of the gang. Nitti, released on bond from the Bridewell hospital, is now in the Jefferson Park hospital. The state has asked Judge Frank M. Padden to cancel Nitti's bond.

Harold McCormick on Way Home; Is "Feeling Fine"

Baltimore, Md., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Apparently in excellent health after seven weeks' stay at Johns Hopkins hospital, where he underwent an operation, Harold F. McCormick of Chicago today boarded a train for his home in Chicago.

Mr. McCormick said: "I feel fine and I will be at my office tomorrow. My physicians have told me to go ahead and lead a normal life."

Mr. McCormick was accompanied to Chicago by Alberto Balet, a Cuban now living in San Francisco, and by his nurse, Miss Mary West.

DE VALERA FOES CREATE PARTY TO END TRADE WAR

Launch Drive to Depose Irish President.

BY HUGH CURRAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, Dec. 29.—Organization of a new political party composed of all elements opposed to President Eamon de Valera's government was launched today. Leaders of the movement announced that their primary objective is to stop the economic war between the Free State and Great Britain.

The movement is the outcome of a public appeal recently launched by Senator Arthur Vincent for a united front to depose De Valera. The plea was followed up by today's secret meeting at the mansion house. Lord Mayor Alfred Byrne presided.

A resolution was adopted which calls for an immediate settlement of the dispute with Britain over the nonpayment of land annuities by the Irish government. It also advocates support of all provisions of the Anglo-Irish treaty subject to their alteration by legal methods.

Business Circles Represented.

Business and professional interests were represented at the meeting by about 130 delegates. The resolution will be forwarded to all members of the dail.

Meanwhile, the "boycott British" campaign reached new and somewhat ludicrous heights today when it was broadened to include a boycott of a British hangman. At Mountjoy prison a young farmer was executed for fratricide. As the Irish government has no official executioner, a British hangman was obtained.

Just before 8 o'clock tonight and while a crowd knelt in prayer outside the prison, a group of young men unfurled a banner bearing the inscription: "A British hangman hangs an Irishman. Is this justice? A British hangman destroys an Irishman. Abolish the system and abolish the crime!"

No Full Time Executioner.

The demand to extend the boycott to a British hangman caused considerable amusement because the Free State does not hope to need the services of a full time executioner and therefore does not support one.

Development of the boycott policy is causing grave concern to the De Valera government. Another serious problem arises from the declared determination of the Labor party to resist reductions in the salaries of civil service employés scheduled to become effective on New Year's day. A full meeting of the Labor party's executive committee will be held tomorrow to decide on formal action.

It is predicted that De Valera ultimately will comply with the Labor party's demands as his government cannot survive without the seven Labor votes in the dail.

RECORD BREVITY SESSION GRANTS DETROIT BONDS

Lansing, Mich., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Michigan's "lame duck" legislature concluded the shortest extra session in history at noon today after passing the Hull act which permits the city of Detroit to avoid default on maturing obligations by issuing 20 million dollars' worth of tax anticipation bonds.

Gov. Wilber M. Brucker, who called the session for the purpose, said he would sign the act as soon as it reached his desk.

Adjournment of the two day session followed by less than two hours passage of the bill, 26 to 3, by the senate. The house approved the measure, 76 to 19, last night and it was immediately transmitted to the senate judiciary committee, which reported it favorably this morning without change.

Before either house had considered the bill on the floor the house judiciary committee had amended it so as to limit its provisions exclusively to Detroit, Pontiac, and Hamtramck, the only cities qualifying for relief under its terms. The act allows extension of bond limits only if a city's obligations are in or are facing default and tax delinquency exceeds 30 per cent.

Adjournment found the senate committee on executive affairs deadlocked in regard to reporting back to the upper chamber on a list of appointments to various state boards and commissions.

SHOT DOWN BY TRIO; LAYS IT TO GAMBLERS

George Redston, 31 years old, 3816 Broadway, was shot and seriously wounded early today in an encounter with three men at Sheffield and Belmont avenues. A bullet struck him in the right hip. At the John B. Murphy hospital, where he was taken, Redston declared that his assailants were racketeers who had been in the handbook business.

"One of them is William Miller and another's name is Richards," he said. "They dragged me back into an alley behind 3214 Sheffield avenue and called me a stool pigeon. Miller said I had squealed about their racket and it had cost them a lot of money to square things. When I said I wasn't an informer Miller shot me. I turned and ran to the street and he fired several more shots, but missed."

Redston asserted he was formerly a cigar clerk, but had lost his job. The police said they had no record of Miller as a hoodlum.

Phenol 'Slug' Is Drifting Toward 4 Mile Intake Crib

Loran D. Gayton, acting city engineer, reported yesterday that the "slug" of phenol that has given a disagreeable taste to drinking water on the south side is drifting slowly toward the four mile crib which is the intake for the near south side's water supply. The "slug," which engineers say is at least eleven miles long, had extended at the time of observation to a point one mile north of the 68th street crib. The engineers have not been able to trace the phenol to a source more definite than the industrial area in the Calumet region.

HUNGARY OFFERS DISHES FOR U. S. COOKS TO COPY

They're Easy on Purse and Appetizing, Too.

BY NANCY STONE.

Hungarian cookery has much to offer to the American household which finds itself operating on a limited food budget.

For instance, there is the well known "goulash," which has extended its fame on merit alone across oceans and continents from the campfire of the Hungarian herdsman where the dish originated. Although it originated as a shepherd's dish, it is as appetizing as it is nourishing.

It's a National Dish.

It seems the goulash became a national dish naturally, as the Magyars are fond of foods seasoned with appetizers such as onions, chives, chopped parsley, and always paprika. They seldom fry vegetables, but serve them frequently with a sauce made from butter and flour mixed with a little of the vegetable water, with fresh or sour cream.

"They eat the same meats as we do here in the United States," food investigators report. "Beef is always the basis of the goulash, although it usually contains pork and mutton as well.

"Hogs in Hungary are carefully tended. A common ration is buttermilk and corn. Hams frequently are prepared by covering them an inch or so deep with bread dough and slowly baking in an oven for four or five hours. This dish is one of their greatest delicacies. The dough becomes impregnated with the flavor of the ham and also prevents the escape of any of the juices. But the ham must be baked very slowly or the dough will burn.

Favor Stews and Roasts.

"Pork chops are also popular. Hungarians, especially the peasants, eat much bacon. Lamb and mutton come in for their full share on the menus of the Hungarian household. They are partial to stews, cutlets, shoulder roasts, and roast leg of lamb. But they always use a little garlic with lamb and mutton, and in roast of lamb bacon strips are drawn through the meat in much the same manner as a roast of beef is larded.

"Goose is the Hungarian national bird, as the turkey is ours, although they also have turkey as well as chicken. Even the poorest peasant family has a flock of geese. The Hungarians have a practice of stuffing geese with noodles in order to fatten them, but not quite as extensively as the Strassburg geese are fattened to prepare their livers for 'pate de foie gras.'"

The Hungarians like butter without salt. They do not eat as many potatoes as Americans, but substitute for these noodles and dumplings.

Hungarians usually eat five meals a day. The first is simple and consists usually of coffee, rolls and butter. At 10 o'clock there is a midmorning breakfast, with dinner at noon, coffee with a bun or cake at 4 o'clock in the afternoon and supper at the end of the day.

WISCONSIN LEADS IN PRODUCTION OF EVAPORATED MILK

Wisconsin produces 37 per cent of the nation's output of evaporated whole milk, according to figures released by the state's crop reporting service. The 1931 manufacture in Wisconsin of all condensery products came to 698,909,000 pounds, almost three times the manufacture of the nearest competitor, California.

California in 1931 manufactured 266,877,000 pounds of all condensery products, while other important states were New York, 234,605,000 pounds; Michigan, 166,363,000 pounds; Illinois, 135,524,000 pounds, and Ohio, 125,947,000 pounds.

Condensery products in Wisconsin increased steadily from the beginning of this type of manufacture up to 1930 when the first decline was registered. The condensery output of last year showed a decline of 5 per cent from the year before and a drop of 8 per cent from the peak of 1929.

CRACKED WHEAT IS NUTRITIONAL, CHEAP TO SERVE

BY MARY MEADE.

Wheat, to most city dwellers, until recently has been thought of merely as the grain from which breads, pastries, and prepared breakfast cereals are made. Today, however, many city dwellers, as well as thousands of rural homemakers with limited incomes, have discovered that cracked wheat may be the means of outwitting the depression, in addition to bringing a new source of inexpensive food nutrients into the diet.

Some time ago THE TRIBUNE published mention of work being done in Oberlin, O., to supply unemployed citizens with wheat-meal. Since that time many requests have come in to us, asking for advice in grinding and making use of the whole grain wheat which the writers had secured. With the price of wheat ranging about 50 cents a bushel and a bushel of wheat supplying at least 600 servings when used alone and many more servings when used as a mild flavored "extender" for more expensive foods, it is apparent that wheat—this oldest and most valuable grain known to us—may this winter have a chance to prove even more emphatically than ever that it is verily the staff of life.

Used in Many Dishes.

Nutritionally, too, there are stars in the wheat crown. It is important as a good source of vitamin B, which aids in digestion, promotes good appetites, and protects against certain nutritional diseases. It contains some vitamin A, the anti-infective vitamin, and also supplies body, bone, and blood building materials. In addition, it can be used in a great number of tasty, economical dishes.

Since cracked grains cook more quickly than whole ones, crack your wheat by washing, drying in the oven, and passing three times through the finest blade of your meat chopper. If the grains are toasted in a hot (400 degree F.) oven for thirty minutes before cracking a pleasant nutty flavor will be developed. Overheating, however, will give a bitter tang which must be avoided.

Since most of the recipes I wish to give call for cooked, cracked wheat, here is the way the cooking is done.

COOKED WHEAT GRAINS.

2 cups cracked whole wheat grains
6 cups water, boiling
½ tablespoon salt

Boil the water and salt in the double boiler top placed over a flame. When boiling sift in slowly the cracked wheat grains. Stir occasionally, still over the flame, until the mixture again boils. Let boil five minutes. Now set the pan over the lower part of the double boiler which contains boiling water and continue cooking slowly for one hour. An additional hour of slow cooking will improve the flavor still more.

Good on Cold Mornings.

Cracked wheat cooked in this way makes pleasant eating on cold mornings. Serve it with cream and sugar or even brown sugar and butter. Dress it up with dates, raisins, figs, or prunes chopped small. Or for variety pack it in a baking pan, chill, slice, and fry it to be served with brown sugar sirup. To keep a quantity of the cereal, pack the hot cooked wheat into sterile cans, make a tight seal except for glass top jars, and process at ten pounds for one hour. For a hot water bath process three hours with two inches of water over the top of the jars.

And now for the possibilities. Briefly, cracked whole wheat may be used in chowder, meat casserole dishes, muffins, puddings, cookies, meat loaves, and pancakes. It may be added to vegetable or cream soups, to beef stews, to creamed salmon or chicken, and to egg and cheese dishes.

PRUNE-WHEAT PUDDING.

2-3 cup cooked chopped prunes
1 cup cooked cracked wheat
1 teaspoon vanilla
2½ cups milk
⅓ cup sugar
2 eggs

Beat the eggs slightly, add the remaining ingredients, and bake in a greased casserole in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for forty minutes. This pudding costs approximately 2 cents a serving.

CRACKED WHEAT MUFFINS.

2 tablespoons cooking butter
2 tablespoons lard
4 tablespoons sugar
½ teaspoon salt
1 egg, well beaten
1½ cups flour
4 level teaspoons baking powder
1 cup cooked cracked wheat
1 cup sweet milk

Beat the softened shortening with the sugar and egg. Add the sifted dry ingredients alternately with the milk. Stir in the cracked wheat last. Bake in greased muffin tins fifteen to twenty-five minutes in a hot oven (415 degrees F.).

SAVORY WHEAT-MEAT LOAF.

1¼ pounds hamburger
1 2-3 cups cracked cooked wheat
1 cup stale bread crumbs
1 egg
1 tablespoon minced onion
2 tablespoons fat drippings
½ chopped green pepper
3 tablespoons milk
2-3 teaspoon salt
Dash of pepper

Prepare the bread crumbs by soaking them fifteen minutes in cold water and then pressing out the moisture. Mix with them the remaining ingredients and bake in a casserole or pan in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for one hour.

PURDUE EXPERT HIGHLY RATES FATS AS FOOD

Lafayette, Ind., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—That satisfied feeling that follows a good meal is largely due to the fats which are either a part of the food or used for seasoning, according to Dorothea Muehl of Purdue university. It is fat, she says, that gives that staying power to food and makes it "stick to the ribs."

Butter is used to a greater extent than any other table fat and is now a remarkable bargain, the Purdue economist advises. When used as seasoning butter should be added just before serving because long heating destroys flavor.

Salad Oils Beneficial.

"Salad oils are another means of adding energy value, staying quality, and attractiveness to a meal," says Miss Muehl. "Cottonseed, corn, and olive oils are used in salad dressing and are relatively cheap. Meals that ordinarily lack fat fail to give the satisfied, well fed feeling."

Recipes which she suggests include spoon bread, Hollandaise sauce and parsley, or watercress butter for sandwich filling. The Hollandaise sauce is used largely for the enhancement of cooked vegetables.

These Provide Fats.

Here are some recipes that contain fats:

SPOON BREAD.

1 cup corn meal
2 cups cold water
2 teaspoons salt
1 cup milk
2 or 3 eggs
2 tbsp. melted fat

Mix the meal, water, and salt, and boil for five minutes, stirring constantly. Add the milk, well beaten eggs, and melted fat, and mix well. Pour in a well greased hot pan or baking dish and bake for 45 to 50 minutes in a hot oven (400 degrees F.). Serve from the pan in which baked.

HOLLANDAISE SAUCE.

4 egg yolks
2 tbsp. lemon juice
½ cup butter
½ teaspoon salt
Pepper
¼ cup boiling water

Divide the butter into three portions. Beat the egg yolks and lemon juice together, add one piece of butter, and cook in a double boiler, stirring constantly until the mixture begins to thicken. Remove from the stove, add a second piece of butter, and stir rapidly. Then add the remaining butter and continue to stir until the mixture is completely blended. Add the salt, pepper, and boiling water. Return to the double boiler and stir until the sauce thickens.

PARSLEY OR WATERCRESS BUTTER.
[For sandwich filling.]

½ cup butter
¾ cup finely ground parsley or watercress
¼ teaspoon salt
½ tablespoon lemon juice, if desired

Cream the butter, add the finely ground parsley or watercress, salt, and lemon juice, and stir until well blended. Use as a sandwich spread.

SCRAMBLED EGGS WITH MUSHROOMS.

4 eggs.
1 cup canned mushrooms.
6 tablespoons butter.
1 cup milk.
1 tablespoon flour.
Salt and pepper.

Melt the butter and mix the flour with it. Add the milk and stir to keep smooth. Sauté the mushrooms, add the sauce and season. Beat the egg into the sauce. Cook slowly and stir with a fork to distribute heat. This may be served plain or on toast.

NOW YOU CAN BUY PEACHES MINUS THE FUZZ

Now it's the blush on the peach that is interesting scientists. For persons who have mouths particularly sensitive to irritation have longed complained that the peach which blushed the most, and usually had the most fuzz on its cheeks, proved the most irritating when eaten, especially raw.

So growers in southern Illinois, in Michigan, Indiana, and Ohio began brushing off the fuzz before the peach crop was shipped to market. Science was called in consultation to determine whether this brushing had any effect on the shipping and keeping qualities of the fruit.

The decision from experiments at the college of agriculture of the University of Wisconsin is that brushing off the fuzz is a safe procedure.

Household Hints

Lemons yield more juice if they are placed in hot water for two or three minutes before squeezing.

REVERSE RULING GIVING LONGLEY WIDOW MILLION

Rehearing of Son's Plea by Jury Ordered.

The Appellate court yesterday reversed a ruling by Circuit Judge Michael Feinberg and ordered that a jury rehear the plea of George Adair Green Longley of Janesville, Wis., that he is the son of Albert W. Longley, Chicago hat manufacturer, who died in 1928, and as such entitled to a share in the one million dollar Longley estate. Judge Feinberg's ruling against George Longley's claim was set aside on the ground of error.

The Appellate court made no reference to a feature of the case which brought it wide attention when it was tried before Judge Feinberg early in 1931.

Law of Heredity Factor.

This was the citation of the Mendelian law of heredity in behalf of Mrs. Mary Caroline Longley, third wife of Albert Longley and sole beneficiary under his will, who opposed George Longley's claim to a share in the estate.

George Longley testified that he was born an illegitimate son of Albert by Alice Hall, and that he was legitimatized when Longley later took Alice Hall as his first wife. Citing the theories of heredity stated by Gregory Mendel, the scientist monk, the defense asserted that this could not have been true, since both Albert and Alice Hall Longley had blue eyes, while those of the claimant were brown.

According to the Mendelian law, the defense asserted, blue eyed parents could not have brown eyed offspring. Judge Feinberg, in his original ruling, cast aside this contention, but ruled against George Longley on other grounds.

Part of Evidence Barred.

Albert Longley executed his last will in June, 1925, three years before his death. George Longley asserted that Albert Longley was subject at the time to undue influence by his third wife, the beneficiary. He also charged that when his supposed father was dying letters which he wrote to him were kept from the older man and that when he went to Longley's Pasadena home he was excluded by police and denounced as an imposter. The defense attorneys objected to this evidence and Judge Feinberg refused to admit it.

The Appellate court held that Judge Feinberg erred in this respect in trying the case on the issue of paternity alone without considering the undue influence charged by George Longley and that he erred further in refusing Longley's request for a jury trial. In remanding the case the court directed that the new trial be heard by a jury.

YALE'S ATHLETIC DIRECTOR TALKS TO DADS AND SONS

More than 300 past and future Yale men were given the latest news on the athletic program of that university yesterday by Malcolm Farmer, Yale athletic director. He was the principal speaker at the annual holiday fathers' and sons' luncheon of the Yale club of Chicago in the Hotel La Salle. Mr. Farmer praised Reginald Root, Yale's new football coach.

"I am not much woried about what is going to happen to the Yale team next fall," Mr. Farmer said. "There is no basis for the talk that Yale will adopt a five game football schedule. For next year eight games have been scheduled already and the following year seven. There is no need for concern by the alumni about the future of intercollegiate athletics."

Despite the reorganization of its athletic system and the inauguration of competition between "houses" or colleges next fall, Yale will not do away with intercollegiate competition, the athletic director said.

"The Williams Alumni association of Chicago held its annual undergraduate luncheon yesterday at the University club. Carl B. Davis Jr. of Evanston, president of this year's junior class and captain elect of the 1933 football team, was a speaker.

MRS. J. L. STANTON DIES IN DETROIT AS GIRL IS BORN

Chicago friends of Mrs. Duane L. Stanton, who formerly lived on the south side here, learned yesterday of her death in Detroit on Christmas day, after she had given birth to a daughter. Mrs. Stanton's 27th birthday was on Dec. 25, and it was recalled that her own mother died the day she was born, on Christmas day, 1905. Mrs. Stanton was the adopted daughter of Mrs. Jean La John, 808 West 76th street. Mrs. Stanton's husband, J. L. Stanton, and a baby daughter, Carol, survive.

Student Congress Against War Meets at U. of C.

The National Students Congress Against War, meeting yesterday in Mandel hall at the University of Chicago, adopted a resolution advocating the abolition of the R. O. T. C., C. M. T. C., and all other military courses at colleges and universities, and demanding that the federal government turn over funds now spent on such training for the financial relief of students. The same resolution, ten pages long, advocated the recognition of Russia and declared that the capitalistic form of society must be replaced by Socialism before war can be abolished.

John P. Kindelin, Postal Employe 40 Years, Dies

John P. Kindelin, veteran mail carrier, died suddenly yesterday of a heart attack in his home at 5165 West Monroe street. He was 72 years old. A native Chicagoan, Mr. Kindelin had been a postoffice employe forty years. Funeral services will be held tomorrow from Resurrection church, Jackson boulevard and Leamington avenue. Burial will be at Calvary cemetery.

Brave Bear, Chief Who Fought Custer, Is Dead

Thomas, Okla., Dec. 29.—(AP)—Chief Brave Bear, last of the Southern Cheyenne Indians who fought at Powder River in Wyoming and against Gen. George Custer in Montana, is dead. He fell fatally stricken with paralysis while telling young tribesmen of the Power River battle, of which he had seldom spoken. He was believed to be about 90.

Samuel W. Gamble, Student of Hebrew Calendar, Dies

Long Beach, Cal., Dec. 29.—(AP)—Samuel Walter Gamble, 80, clergyman, internationally known for his reproduction of the lost Hebrew calendar, died today in Los Angeles. He entered the Methodist Episcopal ministry in 1881 and until his death lectured and wrote on religious subjects.

BANKER SACHS AND 2 CHILDREN GET WIFE'S ESTATE OF 5 MILLION

New York, Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Mrs. Alice Goldschmidt Sachs, wife of Arthur Sachs of the banking firm of Goldman, Sachs & Co., one of the few American women to be made a member of the Legion of Honor, the decoration coming for her help to French artists, writers and musicians, left an estate of $5,692,553 gross and $5,147,745 net, according to a tax appraisal filed today.

The valuation was as of the date of her death, April 10, 1930. The estate contained $5,144,688 in securities, $219,018 in personalty, $268,756 in interests in other estates. Debts were $328,592, and funeral and administration expenses, $88,473.

After a $100,000 bequest to charity, the residue goes to her husband and two children, James Henry Sachs and Nadine Sachs. The husband receives one-third outright, and life estates in the other thirds until the children are thirty years old. Each of them receives the principal of one-third on attaining that age, and meanwhile $10,000 a year, the three dividing the personalty equally.

Mrs. Sachs directed the executors, her husband and Henry F. Moses, to distribute $100,000 to charity as they saw fit.

JUDGE POMEROY.

Judge H. Sterling Pomeroy of Kewanee, who presided over the Kewanee City court but often sat in the Cook county and Circuit court here, died yesterday of pneumonia at a hospital in Freeport, where he had been visiting relatives. He was 65 years old. His widow, Mrs. Helen Pomeroy, was at his bedside.

Judge Pomeroy had sat on Cook county benches for 22 years. For many years he presided over the Juvenile court and had, at various times, sat in the Marriage court and the Court of Domestic Relations. He was elected to the Kewanee City court at its organization 23 years ago.

The judge had been visiting a niece in Freeport and became ill Monday night. He was taken to a hospital immediately but became steadily weaker.

Last night it was said Judge Pomeroy probably would be buried in Ohio, Ill., his birthplace, after services in Kewanee.

Memorial Mass Today for Rizal, Hero of Philippines

José Mercado Rizal, national hero of the Philippine islands, will be memorialized in a solemn mass this morning at 10 o'clock at old St. Mary's Catholic church, Wabash avenue and 9th street. This was announced by the Rev. Father John E. Burke, pastor of the church. The Rt. Rev. Msgr. Thomas V. Shannon will offer the mass and the Rev. Francis P. Lyons will preach the sermon. Rizal was executed by Spain in 1896 for his campaign against Spanish misrule. The United States government erected a $50,000 memorial to him in Manila. Today, being the anniversary of Rizal's death, is a national holiday in the Philippines.

Louise Fitz Randolph of Mount Holyoke Dies at 82

Toledo, O., Dec. 29.—(AP)—Louise Fitz Randolph, 82, professor emeritus of Mount Holyoke college, died in a hospital here today. Prof. Randolph came to Toledo from her home in faculty house, South Hadley, Mass., shortly before Thanksgiving to visit relatives. She observed the 60th anniversary of her graduation from Mount Holyoke last June. She first joined the Mount Holyoke faculty in 1891.

"MOIST THROAT" FOUND SECRET OF COUGH RELIEF

Your throat and bronchial cubes are lined with millions of pores like tiny bottles continually supplying moisture to the delicate tissues . . . until you "catch cold."

Then these "bottles" get plugged up, phlegm accumulates, affording dangerous germs a breeding place. Your throat feels hot and dry. Tickling, irritation and coughing set in.

Your cough will be cured only when the flow of the natural fluid is increased, loosening the phlegm so that it can be expelled. Many cough "remedies" contain numbing drugs which merely deaden the nerves . . . but don't get at the root of the trouble.

PERTUSSIN, a scientific remedy, which doctors have prescribed for many years, is the extract of a famous herb which opens the tiny glands, stimulates the flow of the throat's natural moisture and brings quick relief. It helps nature heal that cough from the inside out.

When you feel that warning dryness take a few spoons of PERTUSSIN. It's absolutely safe. Sold at all drugstores, 60¢.

Both Moderns, Ancients Offer Material.

"No Poems," by Robert Benchley. [Harpers.]

"Well Through the Ages," by George S. Chappell. [Stokes.]

THERE are very few people alive today who don't need a good strong dose of fun for the malady that afflicts them. Particularly at this time, after the festivities of Christmas are over, when the bills are due and the arrival of the dividend envelope is awaited in uncertainty and anxious hope. Robert Benchley, one of the foremost American humorists, is recommended unreservedly by us for all those who suffer from the glooms or any of the many varieties of ill temper so painfully apparent in America today. Robert Benchley's particular brand of humor combines the lusty, the extremely sophisticated, the shrewd and witty turn of mind, and, in its pure clowning, which contains as much sense as sensibility, would be the despair of our grandparents.

ROBERT BENCHLEY.

"No Poems," or [in the Benchley manner] "Around the World Backwards and Sideways" contains forty witty comments about various American customs and institutions. Child welfare, with its penchant for statistics and learned research papers [to Mr. Benchley these mean something like this: "The Ratio of Mouth-Thumbing in Children of Sub-School Age in Its Relation to Carpet Eating"], the search for the Tsk-Tsk midge, or a treatise upon scientific aims and purposes, football, spiritism, crime and the new psychology of crime motives [Mr. Benchley's theory being to catch the criminal when his viciousness is incipient and turn him into a deep sea diver or a lighthouse keeper], Vitamens [Mr. Vitamen X and Mrs. Vitamen Y announce the birth of Vitamen Z, who has no purpose in life, and so on], among other fancies and foibles too numerous and really too funny to mention, all get on Mr. Benchley's omnibus and are taken for a long and merry ride.

If you have the bad habit of staring at people who sit next to you in the dining car or who take the seat beside you on the train, if you are really underneath all your loud bravery just scared to death of thunderstorms and cooks who must by some devious method be isolated and tipped, if you pretend to know all about what Bach is doing and if you make a nuisance of yourself in tourists' bureaus; in other words, if you have any of the flaws and fissures of human beings, more particularly American human beings, you will see yourself and your ways drawn with painful accuracy and brilliance in "No Poems." Robert Benchley's humor is as modern as a skyscraper, as true an expression of the rhythms and patterns of the age as an air mail plane's night flight.

George S. Chappell, who wrote "Through the Alimentary Canal with Gun and Camera," now for the benefit of those starving for knowledge outlines indecency from its origin to its present manifestations in "Evil Through the Ages" [Stokes]. The author states pretty definitely that evil began when the "invertebrate and gelatinous blobs cast off their shells and began wabbling about in the nude."

Through Egypt, Greece, Rome, the middle ages, the Renaissance, the scandalous 17th century, the reformation, the Cromwellian era [which the author does some excellent sniffling at], the Puritan age in America and up to the present day [George Chappell has faith and hope in modern morals], "Well Through the Ages" rambles with seductive charm. Despite the frequency of horse laughs in the book, as well as more subtle smiles, George Chappell manages to get across an amazing amount of history and a fresh and penetrating point of view. You will catch yourself laughing unpreparedly at a passage, but go slow or you will be laughing on the other side of your mouth, as the saying goes.

Wilfred J. Funk, in a series of "Light Lines and Dears" [McBride], makes it clear to all his readers that he is very well satisfied with this much maligned age. His short poems are smart and sophisticated, with a whimsical touch. The book is a juicy morsel for those who have not yet despaired.

The famous comedian Sir Harry Lauder has collected some of his best stories in "Wee Drappies" [McBride]. The bits of wit and incy are typically Scotch, with a warmth and wisdom that make them something more than only rib tickiers.

"More Scotch," compiled by Angus J. MacTavish, edited by F. Gregory Hartswick (that should keep you quiet for a while), and published by MacSimon & MacSchuster, incloses a farthing in the cover of the book and thus intimates that the jokes inside are Scotch (if you couldn't have guessed it before). The funniest and the most characteristic Scotch jokes are made the most of.

"Laughing Through the Orient," by Bruce Bairnsfather [Viking], is a conducted hilarity tour through the fascinating countries of the east which our more serious travelers gasp and gape at. This is a good take-off on just about everything involved in foreign travel and travelers.

Pretty Design Will Minimize Mature Figure

WOMAN'S DRESS.

Here is a wonderfully attractive dress for the woman of heavier build. The neckline is the smart, slimming, crossed kind. The skirt is cut with a V shaped yoke at the front and back, and flares slightly from the circular lower part. Black rough silk crêpe with white crêpe for contrast, or a wool crêpe in a rich Burgundy shade with a violet silk crêpe collar are interesting suggestions.

The pattern, No. 3,236, comes in sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, and 48 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3¾ yards of 39 inch material, with ¾ yard of 39 inch contrasting.

Devises Scale as Measure of Wedded Bliss

Cincinnati, O., Dec. 29.—(AP)—Sociologists were told today of efforts to measure whether Mr. and Mrs. John J. Public are happy though married.

Jessie Bernard of Washington university told the American Sociological society of a method she has evolved of "sampling" the complex behavior patterns which make up the attitude of man to wife and wife to husband.

The result is a score somewhere between nothing and 100. Her conclusion was that shooting a score of 61 to 65 is skirting marital disaster.

She's tried it, she said, on 115 men and 137 women in St. Louis, Seattle and Los Angeles. Among her findings are:

That husbands are most satisfied when they are as old, or up to 10 years older, than their wives.

That wives like their husbands as old, or up to five years older, than themselves.

That family income has nothing to do with marital happiness. Neither does education.

In another paper Leonard S. Cottrell of the University of Chicago suggested the basis of happy marriage is laid in childhood. His idea is another demonstration of the old saw that "the child is father to the man."

Miss Bernard's measurements were obtained through a form of questionnaire as much like three ballots as anything.

On one paper the subject was asked to check 100 qualitative traits such as "abusive," "affectionate," and "broadminded," which he considered applied to his wife or which the wife thought applied to her husband. A double check indicated the trait was very characteristic and a triple check indicated the trait was most characteristic.

On the second sheet the same traits were checked, double checked and triple checked to indicate those considered necessary for success in marriage, while on the third sheet the traits were checked to show those considered harmful.

From correlation of her data the sociologist exhibited a series of graphs and charts indicating that on a basis of nothing to 100 the lowest possible score is about 20.

The charts, when compared with clinical data, show that 61 is the score which marks a successful marriage from the unsuccessful for women. Other studies, she said, indicate that 12 per cent of the women are dissatisfied with marriage, while 18 per cent of the men were dissatisfied.

Bright Clothes Will Welcome the New Year

Evening Gowns Are Gay and Youthful.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Fashionably speaking, the last day of this rather frayed year is going out in a blaze of glory, for most of the bustling shoppers this week have been buying party frocks and gowns. Most of the knowing shop windows are filled with alluring evening creations . . . resplendent displays of glittering and colorful evening clothes that will make a clothes hungry gal slap a last mortgage on the high hat penthouse that she may be arrayed in eye filling splendor for the change of years.

And, are they eye filling, breath taking, and almost sinfully seductive . . . It will take a strong mind and a greatly depleted cash supply to resist these stunning evening clothes. You will need quantities of smelling salts or aspirin when some tempting sales person drags out a few of the luscious new things. You will see lots of the newer crinkled crêpes or gowns of matelasse trimmed with fringe, trimmed with fur, trimmed with flowers, and some snooty untrimmed affairs that depend upon intricate hip lines and slim clinging draped silhouettes for perfect swank.

One gay youthful model made of this thick wrinkled creamy matelasse is quite the thinnest, slimmest dress you have ever gazed upon, and all this slimness is accentuated with two huge shoulder cups of ragged looking white crêpe silk flowers . . . it seems as though the gal who wears it had pushed her way through the exact center of two outsized prodigiously fashioned chrysanthemums, one for each arm or shoulder.

If you crave fringe you can find a startling gown of turquoise blue silk that simply drips with matching fringe . . . the edge of the long skirt is covered with wide silk fringe; fringe is sewed straight across the front and back of the high neckline and then runs down the sleeves . . . you'll probably remember the original this glamorous looking creation in a recent movie.

If you want to be quaint and a bit Edwardian try the ensemble of smoke gray chiffon gown made in long, full, simple lines with a deep back V, a flattering soft draped and high front neckline; over this cloud of silver smoke gray is worn an absurdly demure plaid silk jacket that has been shirred within an inch of its gay red, green, and blue existence. This jacket has narrow shoulders, a very simple but fitted silhouette, and long sleeves that have been pertly puckered in at the top are discreetly full to the elbow and then slim and distinctive to the wrist.

Another delightful charmer is made of soft brown silk crêpe in long clinging lines . . . the shoulder straps that form a deep V at the back are of ruffled white chiffon, dotted with big brown dots. The same contrasting dotted chiffon fashions the long floor length sash that ties little girl fashion in a full bow, with two long ends descending to the floor.

Glittering capes and short coats and longer jackets contrast both white and black evening gowns . . . and some spectacular models of white are particularly effective on sun tanned blondes or dusky brunettes because of the copper colored sequined capes that contrast the top.

Big flat cabbage roses of silk outline the edge of small shoulder capes . . . one yellow green dancing dress has such a cape in the same color. A white dress has a white cape, contrasted with deep magenta roses that whirl around the cape and march down over the chest to the waistline in front.

White gowns with huge butterfly shoulder bows of deep sapphire blue velvet are worn with slippers and gloves of the same shade of blue, crimson silk or velvet is used with purple accents, while the most spectacular color contrasts of the year are the gowns of glistening old gold, sashed with jade green or vermilion.

Third Generation of Chicago Families to Be at Hospital Fete

The third generation of several prominent Chicago families will be represented at a meeting at the Presbyterian hospital on Jan. 9 to commemorate the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the hospital. The meeting is sponsored by the woman's board of the hospital.

Mrs. Frederick T. Haskell and her sister, Mrs. Robert Metz of Lenox, Mass., third generation descendants of Dr. Joseph P. Ross, founder of the hospital, will be there and also Mrs. C. Frederick Childs, president of the woman's board and granddaughter of Daniel A. Jones, whose bequest made possible construction of the Jones building in the hospital group in 1888.

William A. Douglas, charter member of the board of managers, who has been secretary of the board throughout the entire half-century, Mrs. David W. Graham, charter member of the woman's board, and Dr. John A. Robinson, member of the original medical staff, will describe the early days of the institution at the meeting.

Dr. Frederick L. Schuman Is Awarded Fellowship

Dr. Frederick L. Schuman of the University of Chicago yesterday was awarded the $2,000 James Rowe fellowship of the American Academy of Political and Social Science. It was announced at the academy's headquarters in Philadelphia. Dr. Schuman will make a study of the development of the foreign policies of the German republic since its organization in 1918.

Benefit for Children.

The Chicago Maternity center will be one of three beneficiaries of a children's entertainment to be given by th Abbott dancers at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the Princess theater. Among those who will give children's parties are Mrs. Julius T. Benedict, Mrs. Morris Fishbein, Mrs. Cyrus Adler and Mrs. Leo Mann.

Harpsichords Heard Again at Symphony

More Music of Ancients Is Presented.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

In another program of music of the ancients Mr. Stock once again presented Philip Manuel and Gavin Williamson as soloists of the two harpsichords with the Chicago Symphony orchestra at Orchestra hall last night.

The program was entirely different from that of last Tuesday afternoon, yet much the same in character and atmosphere. There was the same sort of dignity in utterance, a dignity which at its best is entirely noble and at its less than best tends to go into ornamentation rather than inspiration. Possibly it is therefore a good thing to have had a hearing of the Mozart Concerto in F, just to prove that Mozart was not always at the peak of inspiration.

There was also the feeling that harpsichords are uncommonly interesting when played as skillfully as these two artists play them, also that they would be even more interesting when heard at closer range. In detail the program of the harpsichordists consisted of the Mozart work just mentioned, two pieces by Couperin, and a movement from the Bach Concerto in C minor.

The part pertaining to the orchestra was Handel's fine Concerto in F, the Rambeau Suite in G minor as orchestrated by Felix Mottl. Mr. Stock's magnificent transcription of the Bach Passacaglia and Fugue in C minor and, the single modern work which after all gestured toward the ancients, Ravel's "Le Tombeau de Couperin."

Janet Fairbank, one of the best trained and most popular of the younger Chicago sopranos, and Egon Petri, a pianist of quite extraordinary ability, assisted the cause of music yesterday morning by presenting a joint recital at the Blackstone hotel. Miss Fairbank, who combines studious musicianship with personal charm, sang two groups, the first of Christmas music, the second of works by American, French, and Austrian composers, all unhackneyed and several of unusual interest.

Mr. Petri played Bach in arrangements by Busoni and himself, the Franck Prelude, Choral, and Fugue, and a pair of Schubert-Tausig virtuosities with unfailingly mellow tone, remarkable technical ability, and mannerly musicianship. The audience was large and enthusiastic.

Rev. Henry Smith Accepts Call to Denver Church

The Rev. Dr. Henry G. Smith, pastor of the Temple Baptist church Humboldt boulevard and Cortland street, has announced his acceptance of a call to be pastor of the Calvary Baptist church, Denver, Colo. Dr. Smith has been the pastor of the Temple church for five years. His new congregation is the largest in Denver of the Baptist denomination. Dr. Smith has been a member of the board of trustees of the Chicago Church federation and a member of the board of the Chicago Baptist executive council. He came here from the Second Baptist church of Lincoln, Neb.

MINUTE MYSTERY CAN YOU SOLVE IT?

BY H. A. RIDLEY

(Copyright 1932 by The Chicago Tribune)

Dr. Fordney is professor of criminology at a famous university. His advice is often sought by the police of many cities when confronted with particularly baffling cases. This problem has been taken from his case-book covering hundreds of criminal investigations.

Try your wits on it! It takes but ONE MINUTE to read. Every fact and every clew necessary to its solution are in the story itself—and there is only one answer. How good a detective are you?

THE CORPSE SPEAKS.

The howling wind sweeping through the open window swayed the Thing hanging on the door of the high ceilinged room so that its heels, two feet from the floor, beat a slow tattoo against the woodwork. The Thing was a man!

The professor stood still while his eyes roved over the room. They caught an odd looking stand in the far corner. It was crude and of wrought iron. As he lifted off the grilled half of its bowl shaped top he saw the ashes of burned incense. That explained the faint odor he had noticed. The base of this odd looking piece was three cloven feet on each of which had been superimposed the head of a snake. That it had been hand wrought was apparent. But why, Fordney asked himself, would a man light incense, then hang himself?

He walked over and stood facing the corpse as if seeking the answer from that disfigured and mottled face with its tongue protruding through purple lips. With a low exclamation of surprise he picked up the overturned stool beneath the dead man's feet and walked over to compare it with the incense burner. Yes, the two had undoubtedly been made by the same hand. Half the height of the two foot stand, the stool was exact in design. Its three cloven feet bore the snake head and its top was grilled.

With a swing he turned the corpse with its face to the door. The slip-knot of the tightly drawn noose was back of the right ear.

Fordney wondered which of the four house guests would NOT be surprised to learn the man had been MURDERED!

HOW DID HE KNOW?

[See solution on page 25.]

Darcy, Singer, to Marry His Music Teacher Today

Emery Darcy, 25 years old, operetta baritone, and Mme. Lucie Lenox, 45 years old, his vocal instructor, yesterday obtained a license to marry. Both live at the De Witt hotel at 244 East Pearson street. Mme. Lenox said that the marriage ceremony would be performed at 5 o'clock this afternoon by the Rev. Harold Stewart of the Baptist church of Oak Park at the home of the bride's brother, Dr. Thomas E. Roberts, 320 North Euclid avenue, Oak Park.

Parents Worry About Strain of Debut Rush

Forecasts of Dull Season Prove False.

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE debutantes must now be feeling much the same as a little 6 year old girl who had been warned by her daddy and mommy that this was a lean year and that she mustn't expect as many Christmas presents as usual. Then on Christmas morning when she found a beautiful tree, a doll's house and apparently as many and as nice toys as she ever had had, she clapped her hands and said, "If this is being a poor child, I don't mind being poor."

All last summer and during the early part of the fall the girls who were "coming out" this winter were warned by every one that this would be a quiet and probably a very dull season and that they mustn't expect to have as gay a time as their elder sisters had had in their first seasons "out."

The girls heeded the warnings and so their surprise and delight at the way the winter has turned out is tremendous. For it has been a gay winter and the debutantes and their beaux couldn't have been busier, especially during the holidays. How the young men who are starting their business careers manage to dance until daylight and then go to business is a mystery, but they probably buoy themselves up by the thought of all the sleep they'll get next week when things will have quieted down and they'll have a chance to go to bed early. But will they do it? Probably not, in fact they undoubtedly will be wishing then that there were as many dances as there are now.

Parents Worry About Strain

The girls sleep every day until noon so they are better off than their working beaux—the college boys are able to sleep in the mornings, too, of course—but even so, the sweet young things are about "all in" and in spite of the grand time they are having I should think they would be a teeny bit glad that the hectic holidays are almost over.

Their mothers and fathers and grandparents will be more than a teeny bit glad, for most of them really are worried about the way their daughters are losing weight: one of

Ruth Elder Has a New Position at Air School

Rounds Up Students for Training in Flying.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Dec. 29.—Maybe she'll appear in another motion picture some time, and maybe she won't, but Ruth Elder is making a flying start on the new year by ending the old year in a new job here, that of helping to operate an aviation school.

The last movie appearance of the trans-Atlantic aviatrix, three years and two husbands back, was with Richard Dix in "Moran of the Marines." The black haired sky heroine smiled pleasantly from her new desk as vice president of the Pacific School of Aviation at Clover field, near here, today and said that at present she is engrossed in details of her new job which includes "a bit of bookkeeping, typing, flying, and rounding up aviation students."

Miss Elder says she isn't "exactly flat broke," but "can use a little money." She still wears the ring which was placed on her finger in August, 1929, by Walter Camp Jr., whom she recently divorced in Reno, and says, "the ring has never been off so why take it off; anyway it would be foolish to throw away a splendid ring, even though it may not mean anything any more."

Since the arrival of Gretchen Wilson, its a race on the Radio lot which girl—Gretchen or Katharine Hepburn—can wear the most unusual things in the way of hats. Katharine held the undisputed honors until this week, with her star shaped, smashed down felt hats, berets and stocking caps, but, O, boy, did Katharine's eyes tingle when she walked on the lot and saw Gretchen wearing an Egyptian fez effect?

Since then Gretchen has striven to maintain her laurels with something that looks like an adapted Salvation Army bonnet, and the milliners in the studio wardrobe have all got the jitters.

Universal has brought a couple of carloads of elephants, zebras and camels to join the lions, tigers and leopards assembled on the Universal City back lot for film material in Clyde Beatty's "The Big Cage." Originally three of the big studios kept their own permanent zoos for silent pictures, but none approaches this.

One or two bumps can't stop Mary Pickford. She was knocked out yesterday on the set of "Secrets" when one of the big lights fell and hit her neck and shoulder, but she was back at work today.

B. B. Kahane, president of Radio-RKO Film corporation, issued a statement on arriving here covering retention of David O. Selznick as executive vice president in charge of production in spite of Selznick's recent resignation. Kahane said a new contract was being drawn for Selznick and that the local studios of the corporation would continue production according to Selznick's plans.

Mme. Nazimova to Be Guest at Drama League Breakfast

Mme. Alla Nazimova and members of "The Good Earth" company will be guests of the Chicago Drama league at a breakfast at noon today at the Blackstone hotel. Mrs. Clarence Hough, president, will preside, and with her and Mme. Nazimova at the speakers' table will be eight members of "The Good Earth" cast and Mrs. Cecil Barnes.

Dinner Dance.

The annual dinner dance of the Abe Pearson auxiliary of the Chicago Consumptive Aid society will be held New Year's eve at the Sheridan Plaza hotel. Mrs. Mannier Wolf, 3308 Palmer street, is in charge.

Bright Sayings of the Children

Little Jean and her mother went visiting one afternoon. Before leaving mother said they might not be home to supper.

The time for the evening meal drew near, but little Jean heard no invitation to stay. Turning to her mother, she pointedly asked, "If we're going to stay to supper, why don't they start getting it ready?" O. F. L.

Helen and Mary Ann were quarreling, and Mary Ann, who is 6, said "Helen, if you don't be good, Santa Clause won't bring you any toys."

Parents Worry About Strain of Debut Rush

the most popular and feted young girls has lost 20 pounds since she made her debut in Lake Forest in the early autumn and most of them are finding that their lovely frocks that were bought early in the season need taking in now.

But it all comes under the head of pleasure and none of the debutantes of the season 1932-33 will remember in years to come that her BIG season was anything but as gay and full of good times as any season possibly could be. So hurrah for that indomitable spirit that makes us carry on; may it grow and grow and grow until there won't be any reason for next year's debutantes to be warned so dourly by well meaning persons that next year won't be as full of health, happiness, and prosperity as all of us hope it will be!

Two Important Parties Tonight

Tonight there are to be two of the most important of the winter's parties for debutantes, Miss Josephine Patterson's debut ball at the Blackstone hotel, and a dinner dance at the Casino given by Mr. and Mrs. Gustavus F. Swift and Mr. and Mrs. James E. Baum for their daughters, Miss Marie Swift and Miss Elizabeth Baum, both of whom made their formal bows to society at teas earlier in the season.

Miss Patterson is the youngest of the three daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Medill Patterson, and one of her older sisters, Alicia, and her husband, Joseph W. Brooks of New York, are here for the ball, but the other, Elinor, and her husband, Griffith Mark, were not able to come from the east for the affair.

Mr. and Mrs. Brooks are to entertain at dinner tonight at Mrs. Patterson's apartment, 209 Lake Shore drive, before the ball, and Mr. and Mrs. Graham Aldis and Mr. and Mrs. William K. Meyers will be among others giving dinners.

Two More Make Bows

The debutantes will all sleep late again this morning after having attended two parties last night. The first was the dinner dance at the Casino at which Miss Virginia Chapman, the third of the four daughters of Mr. and Mrs. John Adams Chapman to have been introduced to society at the Casino in three successive years, made her formal bow.

Against a background of festive Christmas decorations the debutante received her 250 guests with her mother. The latter wore a pink satin gown and an orchid corsage and Miss Chapman wore a frock of yellow crinkly crêpe with sable trimming.

From the Casino Miss Chapman and most of her guests went on to the Blackstone hotel for the debut ball that Mr. and Mrs. Thomas George Lee gave for their daughter, Miss Martha Lee. The Blackstone ballroom, which is transformed so often during every holiday season for debut balls, was effectively decorated for last night's occasion with small silvered balsam trees and twinkling blue lights.

The debutante wore a gown of silver mesh over ice blue taffeta and carried a bouquet of white orchids. Mrs. Lee was in black velvet with a corsage of gardenias. Her older daughter, Mrs William E. Graham (Jane Lee), wore a pale blue crêpe dress trimmed with black fur and a white orchid corsage.

Janet Fairbank Gives Recital

All the members of the Fairbank and Ayer clans and their friends were at the Blackstone hotel yesterday morning to applaud Miss Janet Fairbank when she sang at the Kinsolving musical and there were so many of them that the crystal ballroom was filled almost to overflowing.

It was an enthusiastic audience, for "Janet Jr." and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, are immensely popular. Egon Petri, that great artist, shared with Miss Fairbank the enthusiasm of the listeners. Miss Fairbank, who has great charm of manner, was becomingly gowned in black velvet, made simply with a high neck, slit backed bodice and long, tight sleeves, and a shoulder bouquet of lavender orchids.

Some of those in the audience were Miss Fairbank's parents and one of her two brothers, Benjamin Ayer, [Kellogg Jr. having been unable to leave his business long enough to attend]; her aunts, Mrs. Cecil Barnes, Mrs. Dexter Fairbank, Mrs. Livingston Fairbank, and Mrs. Benjamin Carpenter—there may have been others of them there, but those are all this reporter saw and Mrs. Laird Bell couldn't have been there for she is visiting Mr. Bell's family in Winona, Minn.—her cousins, Miss Lucy Fairbank, Miss Jane Boyce, Mrs. Frederick Hauck and Mrs. Chase Boyden; and Mrs. Arthur Meeker, who gave a charming short plea for members of the Chicago Friends of Music, Arthur Meeker Jr., looking tan and well after his long absence abroad, Mrs. John H. Winterbotham and her daughters Mrs. Shreve Badger and Mrs. Alfred P. Shaw, Mrs. Walter E. Paepcke, Mrs. Chauncey B. Blair, Mrs. Francis Johnson, Mrs. Milton Blair and her daughter, Jane, who is at home from Vassar for the holidays, Mrs. George Jaeger, Miss Edith Cummings, Miss Eleanor Holden, Miss Peggy Hambleton, Miss Alice Roullier, Mrs. Howard Shaw, Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, Mrs. Gorton Fauntleroy, Mrs. Thomas L. Marshall, Mrs. Frederic W. Upham and Mrs. Edward F. Swift, who was kept busy before and after the program receiving the congratulations of her friends upon the birth the day before of her first great-grandchild.

The baby's given name hasn't been decided yet but her surname is Kelley and she is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon F. Kelley [Hortense Henry], whose marriage took place early in January last winter. Mrs. Kelley is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Huntington B. Henry [Annie May Swift] and Mr. Kelley is the son of Mrs. William V. Kelley. The birth of this little daughter to the Kelleys makes Mr. and Mrs. Henry probably the youngest grandparents in society.

Reports from St. Luke's hospital say that Mrs. Kelley and the baby are "doing nicely."

Junior Fortnightly Dance Tonight

About 250 boys and girls of school age will attend the junior Fortnightly holiday dance tonight at the Fortnightly club. There will be several dinners beforehand, among them Mrs. Nelson Thomasson's dinner for her house guest, Miss Charlotte Bolgiano of Baltimore; Mrs. Edwin P. Dewes' dinner for her daughter, Elizabeth, who is at home from Dobbs Ferry; Mrs. Francis S. Rickcords' party for her daughter, Anne, and Mrs. Edward Clark Crossett's for her youngest daughter, Carolyn.

Mrs. Thomasson, Mrs. Rickcords, and Mrs. Bryan S. Reid are in charge of arrangements for the dance.

Another affair for the subdeb crowd tonight will be a dinner dance that Mrs. Julian Armstrong is to give at her Lake Forest residence for her daughter, Katharine, who is at home from Mount Vernon seminary for the holidays.

Mrs. Albert Chester Battelle of the Ambassador East made announcement yesterday of the engagement of her daughter, Emily Chester, to Douglas Seymour Offutt, son of Mrs. Ellwood Offutt of 33 East Elm street. Miss Battelle was graduated from Farmington and made her debut at a luncheon at the Blackstone hotel three seasons ago.

She is active in the Junior league and in the Chicago Lighthouse Volunteer aids. Mr. Offutt was graduated from the Gilman Country day school in Maryland and from the University of Virginia. His mother is the former Nanniene Thomasson, the daughter of Nelson Thomasson and sister of Nelson Thomasson Jr.

Ruth Graff Is Engaged

Mr. and Mrs. Walter A. Graff of 4523 Greenwood avenue announce the engagement of their daughter, Ruth Kimball, to John Greer MacKechnie, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew MacKechnie of Summit, N. J. Miss Graff attended Dana hall at Wellesley, Mass., and Wells college. Mr. MacKechnie is a graduate of Dartmouth and of the Harvard law school.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred M. Wolfe are to leave Chicago at 8 o'clock this morning with 13 friends who are to be their guests at a jolly New Year's eve house party at the Wolfes' country estate near Ephraim, Wis. The entire party is to go by motor, and those departing from town will meet the Lake Forest members of the group on their way north.

They plan to arrive in time for dinner before a blazing log fire and to devote the week-end to skating, skiing, and other winter sports. The guests will include Mr. and Mrs. John G. Curtis, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Blossom, and Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Hill of Lake Forest; Mr. and Mrs. Robert McDougal of Peoria; Miss Peggy Hambleton, Walter Frazier, Ned Platt, and Prince and Princess Rostislav.

On New Year's day Miss Kathryn Evans, debutante daughter of Mrs. Albert T. Evans, and her cousin, Miss Ruth McCullough of Wausau, Wis., are to be hostesses at a tea from 4 to 7 o'clock at the Evans apartment at 179 Lake Shore drive. Miss McCullough, who was in Chicago to assist at her cousin's debut reception in November, returned Wednesday to remain until after New Year's.

Juliet Earle Guest Here

Miss Juliet Earle of Baltimore, whose engagement to Arthur Dorman Welton Jr. was announced last September, is the house guest of her fiancé's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur D. Welton of 45 Bellevue place. She is to be here for about 10 days and no doubt plans will be made during her stay for her wedding next spring.

Miss Bettylee Rich and her mother, Mrs. Charles V. Rich, who arrived on Tuesday for a visit of 3 or 4 weeks with Miss Rich's fiancé, Robert E. Kenyon Jr., and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Kenyon of Lake Forest, found a full social calendar awaiting them.

Mrs. Kenyon gave a tea Wednesday afternoon for the visitors. Today Miss Peggy Glidden of Highland Park is to give a luncheon for Miss Rich, and Mrs. Percival N. Cutler of Kenilworth will be hostess at a tea. Mr. and Mrs. Kenyon are to give a buffet supper on New Year's eve, and next Monday Mrs. Kenyon will give a young people's dinner for Miss Rich.

The Chicago Wells College club will give a holiday tea this afternoon at the College club for alumnæ and Wells college girls.

The Chicago Friends of Music, Inc., will meet at 4 o'clock today in the foyer of Orchestra hall. Miss Jane Addams will be the speaker.

WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. David Wine of 2440 Lakeview avenue and Kewanee, Ill., announce the approaching marriage of their daughter, Laura, to Juel Edward Soboroff of the Belden Stratford hotel, to take place on Jan. 17. Miss Wine was graduated from Ferry Hall and attended Northwestern university. Mr. Soboroff attended Harvard university.

Young Matron Disgusted with Mate's Faults

Expected Reform After Marriage.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"I am a young married woman. During my courtship I noticed my husband had bad points, but I thought once we were married he would change. But to my disappointment they grew worse. I am sick over it—"

Well, "Louise," that was your mistake, not your husband's. He obviously was not trying to keep his faults hidden. And there's a question in my mind whether the faults have grown worse or if you're thinking hasn't made them so.

The question is, where do you want to go from here with your marriage? Interested in seeing it through? Or, are you going to be one of the weak sisters ready to walk out without a fair trial?

As said, you were the blunderer, expecting marriage to perform a miraculous operation on your man's character. He must have his good points, too, or you wouldn't have gone through with the thing.

We don't hold that marriage isn't reformatory. We've seen characters undergo touching changes for the better in marriage. But these changes haven't been accomplished overnight. Nor have they been accomplished on demand. There's a talent involved. Patience, too, and a certain humility about one's own faults are needed.

You obviously do not believe, "Louise," that you have any hand in the "broken dreams" of your marriage. You set out with a half-baked comprehension of what this marriage business actually is. You thought it was just going to be heaven for you, the man a perfect angel. You an angel, too. [You, the kind of angel that wants everything her way, probably.]

Well, marriage isn't like that. It's two more or less ornery beings getting in each other's way; breaking in on each other's privacy; bossing, ordering, demanding, thinking resentful thoughts if not expressing them aloud. Unfamiliar traits appearing or old ones exaggerated. Or, that's the way it is until you get looking at it differently.

Be a big girl, "Louise!" If you want your marriage to go, close your eyes to those faults. Seem to close them, but carry on a clever little battle with them on the side. Use your wits. And keep in mind while you are at it, that the man in your partnership may be thinking the same disillusioning things about you.

U. of Michigan Gets Marshall's Story of His Career on Bench

Ann Arbor, Mich., Dec. 29.—(AP)—Back in 1801, when John Jay declined the nomination to return to the United States Supreme court bench as chief justice, a moment of reflection of President John Adams led to the career of John Marshall as the great interpreter of the United States constitution.

How Chief Justice Marshall was appointed to the post was revealed today when the William L. Clements library of American history at the University of Michigan acquired his unpublished autobiography. The manuscript, in Marshall's own handwriting, would make about 60 pages in book form. It was written in 1827, eight years before the chief justice's death.

"On the resignation of Chief Justice Ellsworth," Marshall wrote in his autobiography, "I recommended Judge Patterson [associate justice] as his successor. The President objected to him and assigned as his ground of objection that the feelings of Judge Cushing [another associate justice] would be wounded by passing him and selecting a junior member of the bench. . . . The President himself mentioned Mr. Jay [John Jay] and he was nominated to the senate.

"When I waited on the President with Mr. Jay's letter declining the appointment he said thoughtfully 'Whom shall I appoint now?' I replied that I could not tell. . . . After a moment's hesitation he said, 'I believe I must appoint you.'"

Sure Way to Slenderness

Lie on one side with the head resting on the under arm and the arm forward for balance. Pull the upper knee up to the chest and stretch it down full length again. Repeat ten times. Repeat this exercise with the other leg. Then try both legs.

Redfern Trims Coat Minus Fur with Wool Rope

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—The fashion of having your fur separate from your coat, which has been so well established this winter, is going to be very useful in the spring. French couturiers are making loads of furless coats and capes over which one can put winter furs when the weather is sharp.

These furless wraps are treated to novel trimmings and Redfern has brought out a coat that he trims with rope. Naturally the rope isn't the industrial kind that is composed of manila hemp. It is a rope fashioned of the wool that makes the coat.

The way in which rope trimming is applied is shown in the sketch today. This Redfern coat is made of diagonal wool in dark red, the Rodier material that is woven with rabbit hair, and that has a film of white hairs over its surface. The line of the coat is simple, being straight, and slightly molded at the waistline. There is a rope belt and rope buckle from which a band of rope descends in front to border the big set-in pocket. The collar is made of two rope bands and has a self-material jabot in front. Spirals of rope are placed at the elbows of the sleeves.

The shoulder lines of this coat are widened and rounded by three bias bands of the goods, which begin at the under arm seam in front and extend almost to the waistline in back as shown on the small figure.

Slender Lines Well Worth the Daily Exercise

Do This One with Vim and Vigor.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

It's fine silhouette proportions we're after, and not so much the lean and hungry look. This is why we're after the bulging hipline, the protruding lower back, and the weighty thigh with a vengeance.

Yesterday's exercise, today's and tomorrow's—these three done twice a day for five minutes, in from six to eight weeks will make such a difference in the silhouette from the waist down its own mamma will hardly recognize it. But I mean DO THEM! Do them twice a day! Five minutes at each "rehearsal," or ten minutes at one.

Yesterday's in case you missed it is: Lie on the back on the floor, hands overhead and holding on to a table leg or bed footboard. Bring the knees up to the abdomen, then stretch the legs forward full length, but don't touch the floor. Bring the knees back toward the chest again and forward. Back, forward, a dozen times or more.

For the benefit from today's illustrated exercise, which is a grand hip flattener, thigh and buttock reducer, lie on your side with head on arm extended overhead. Let the other hand be in front of the body for balance. Now pull the knee up to the chest and stretch it down full length again. Do this ten times. Up, down, with a long pull and stretch. Quick action is best.

Try to raise the knee higher and higher on the chest. And KEEP the inactive side of the body on a long stretched line. Flop over on the other side and execute the same movement with the other leg.

When you get going good and strong increase the benefit of this exercise by bringing both knees up to the chest in unison, stretch them out in front and back down to position again. You won't need to call in the professional masseuse if you will practice this faithfully, and it will take inches off the lower parts of the body.

It Matters to a Child How You Take His Gift

Part of Himself Goes with the Present.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

"Did you or Aunt Nan give me my 'Peter Rabbit,' mommie?" asked a little boy one day.

And then one afternoon weeks later his mother heard him say, "Who gave me my windup engine, daddy—was it you, or grandpa?"

And at still another time when he was playing with his big gray velveteen elephant he said, "Anna [his nurse] gave me Jim, didn't she, mommie?"

From that time on his mother noticed that it seemed important to him to know who, of all those that loomed large in his life, had given him this or that much loved toy. The giver became part of the gift, it seemed.

It was a rather striking example of how much we can give of ourselves with our gifts. Children do this, especially if the gift is something they've saved for or made themselves. So when you receive a birthday present or a Christmas gift from them be sure you receive it in a way that satisfies the impulse which has made them give it to you.

Now, by that I don't mean profuse, gushing thanks, or "What a lovely little girl you are to give me a present!" But rather an appreciation of the thing itself, discussing its points of workmanship, or how much you needed it, or how long it must have taken to make it, or "How did you guess I needed just that very thing?"

You need only to look into the absorbed face, the shining eyes of the giver of the gift, to know that he has given something of himself with it. So, how you receive it becomes most important. The very way in which a small child will, for instance, ask you at intervals, "Do you like that pin I gave you, mother?" is an indication of how much he bestows himself with his gift and how much your pleasure in it means to him.

If a child loves you and wants to give you something and does so—and you accept it with appreciation, warmth, and understanding—why, then, you've completed the circle of niceness. To be able to receive graciously is quite as much an art as to be able to give graciously, and certainly with a child it means a great deal.

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Would Welcome Skates.

"I belong to a group of girls and we have planned to do a lot of ice skating this year. I have no skates and cannot afford to buy any, and I wonder if you could get me a pair of hockeys, size 4. I would be very thankful. K. H."

The skates you so seldom use would provide much pleasure and healthful sport for this girl during the coming winter. May she not have them?

BARTER AND SAIL

By HENRY C. ROWLAND

SYNOPSIS.

Capt. Hiram White sails his four master ship, the Abigail White, in search of a ship filled with pearl oysters, sunk by a French captain before the world war in a lagoon in a South Sea island. Arlette Mordecai, the French captain's granddaughter, has brought him complete instructions for finding the ship. Arlette is accompanied by an Anglish woman of style, known as Ladybird. In his crew are Adam Eden, an unemployed engineer as unemployed French chauffeur, named Raoul, Roberta Millhank, and Peter Cavan. Roberta's father died after his bank failed and Peter was his trusted employe. Benny, a cook, hires up for his keep. Henery Shepard, backer of the venture, fills the boat with a cargo of his own choosing, and plans to stop at certain ports to trade cargoes. Ladybird, who is a naval officer's daughter, is made mate. The ship is seized by four slow sways on the high seas. A warning comes in over the radio about four bank robbers being at large and the captain realizes he and his crew are in their hands. After several days the bandits are overpowered and set adrift. The ship reaches Cape Town, where Henery's cargo is traded at a large profit. Their next destination is Sydney, Australia. Peter finds the robbers' loot hidden on the boat. The captain turns it over to the U. S. consul at Sydney. The caren is discharged at Sydney and another picked up for delivery to Japan, where another profitable trade is made. The ship now sails to the island where the sunken treasure craft is located. Capt. Hiram, Adam, and Peter take turns diving for the oysters. They have them all aboard when they are beset by a ruffianly crew of a strange yacht, headed by Capt. Derring, who turns out to be Ladybird's husband and aware of the sunken treasure. He demands the oysters and the diving rig.

INSTALLMENT XXXV.

GREED AND JEALOUSY.

Deering turned as if to give an order, but in turning his eyes rested for a moment on Capt. Hiram. Then as something happens with a violent nature that while brilliant at moments is still unbalanced, an impulse of murderous rage possessed him. Perhaps it was no more than savage expediency, to have an end of futile argument. More probably a sudden gust of primitive jealousy. He may not have missed the tarnished gilt stripes of a mate on the sleeve of Ladybird's tunic and leapt to the conclusion that she must be the captain's mate in both senses of the word.

Whatever the cause it detonated the fulminating explosive of his uncertain nature. He held in his hand the heavy old fashioned navy revolver and now instead of firing he whirled it up to use merely for striking Capt. Hiram down.

But he had not reckoned on the quickness of thought and action that lay just beneath the Yankee skipper's calm exterior. Intuition had kept Capt. Hiram wary of the man. He was expecting some such overt act.

The raising of the weapon was, therefore, timed with a heavy blow that shot out propelled by muscles hardened and quickened by a lifetime of sailor duty. Capt. Hiram was deep of chest and broad of shoulders but he was active also and in his early prime. His fist landed squarely on Deering's pointed chin, which was bad for the fist as well as for the chin. But it knocked the man across the short space of deck and against the rail, where he slumped down unconscious into the scuppers.

Capt. Hiram had anticipated this and again his quickness saved a slaughter. Before the crew of the pearler could act Capt. Hiram's swift leap had secured one of Deering's big old time revolvers. He whirled about and trained it on the huddled group.

He felt at this moment that he could hold them from attack, that he could even coerce them into obeying his orders. But he did not believe that he could successfully disarm them. They would not submit to that. Some or even one of them, was sure to take a chance with a bullet rather than give up his weapon. Any resistance on their part was bound to prove fatal. Capt. Hiram knew that he could not shoot it out with them all.

He made the best of it and ordered them over the side. They sullenly obeyed. Peter waited until the last had clambered over the rail, then took Deering's other revolver.

"What'll we do with him, sir?" Peter asked.

"Pass him over on to his schooner."

Peter picked up the limp body that was not heavy and eased it over the rail. "Here," he said to the last man on the ladder, "take your skipper and shove off."

The big native clambered down with Deering over his shoulder. Adam and Henery threw off the schooner's lines.

Capt. Hiram said to Adam: "Jump inside and get my shotgun out of the long locker on the starboard side. The shells are there, too."

The pearler started her engine, backed away, then hauled off to the head of the lagoon and anchored. They would be waiting the recovery of their leader.

Old Benny was dissatisfied. He felt that the captain's action, while worthy so far as it went, had fallen lamentably short of thoroughness.

"Too bad you didn't chop him down when you had the chance," he said.

"The skipper's not a gangster, Benny," Ladybird said in her cool voice. "From what I know of Roger, though, I'd say this thing had only started."

"No ma'am," Henery disagreed. "That sort of scum ain't apt to come back lookin' for more."

"The trouble is their captain is scum only on top, Henery," Ladybird said. "There's no pure gold underneath but there's quite a bit of fighting blood in his kennel registry. He happens to be the third son of the Earl of . . . well, never mind."

Capt. Hiram somberly: "And you're married to him?"

"Yes, worse luck. Since during the war. He was pretty good at that. He might even have died a hero if some German ship could have shot a little straighter, off Jutland."

"Another reason for not killing him," Capt. Hiram muttered.

He said shortly: "Yes, and it might be yours if you weren't both under the same curse?"

"What curse? Money greed?"

Capt. Hiram turned away without answering. He said to Adam, "Heave the anchor awash."

"Heave the anchor awash, sir . . ." Adam ran forward. Peter followed him. Capt. Hiram said to Ladybird in his usual quiet tone, "We ought to be able to tow out with the launch that's overside before the tide stops going and the breeze comes."

"Yes," she agreed, "if let."

"You think he will fire on the man in the launch?"

"Of course, and on anybody else in sight. If I know anything about my greedy husband . . . and I ought to because as you've just said we're a lot alike."

"That was too hasty . . ."

"O no, all things considered," she said indifferently. "We're tarred with the same brush. It's going to take a lot more than a punch on the jaw to stop him when he thinks we've nicked the pearls. He believes now we've been scouring the bottom all this time."

"No help for that, once he sighted you," Capt. Hiram said.

"If he hadn't sighted me just when he did there'd have been no help for you, Skipper," she answered evenly. "He meant to do you in. He's entirely capable of doing all hands in. Roger is a useful devil in time of war but he never found out when it was time to stop killing people."

The captain nodded. "Natural born killer. Wouldn't matter much who it was or what about. Greed helps of course . . . and jealousy makes it still worse, if possible."

"Where's his claim to that last?" Ladybird asked.

"Nowhere, but he dosn't know that." Capt. Hiram looked at her squarely. "Couldn't blame any man for being jealous of a shipmate of yours." A hot flame of color showed through the tropic tan of his lean weathered face.

Vassar Styles of Other Days Go on Parade

A Bloomer Ensemble Is Prize Discovery.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

Mrs. George Yaeger Jr. has been modeling a daisy chain dress of the gay nineties and Mrs. Bruce Thorne has been wearing a gym ensemble of an even earlier vintage at the Wednesday teas at Vasser house.

For the sake of scholarship [that's the idea back of Vassar house] alumnae of the eastern college have been ransacking trunks the last several weeks and resurrecting some of the precious old models their mothers wore in the days when the school was called a female seminary. And now they're dressing up in them and recounting stories of square dances and croquet matches for the benefit of friends who stop Wednesday afternoons for a cup of tea.

The best that's come to light so far is a gray flannel bloomer ensemble with a Garibaldi waist, a brilliant red sash and long puffed sleeves. Picture twenty of these lined up in a row, the athletes boisterously swinging rods and dumbbells.

That was gym half a century ago. A vivid contrast to the romper suits young collegians take their exercise in today.

"For variety we used to have croquet in the spring," Mrs. Andrew MacLeish, a member of the class of '78 explained the other day when the costume was on parade. "It was during my time that baseball was introduced. In my senior year, when our team won the eastern championship, Harvard sent us a bat and ball."

All of Chicago's earlier Vassar alumnae—Mrs. MacLeish, Mrs. Thaddeus Stanwood, Mrs. Harlan Ward Cooley, and Mrs. Arthur Welton—are particularly enjoying these Victorian fashion parades, for they recall so many experiences of their own college days.

Several of them went into conference the other afternoon, however when a guest inquired about the beginnings of the famous daisy chain. She had noticed with interest the high collared white broadcloth dress that a fair sophomore of the nineties wore to carry the great yellow and white rope. But no one could tell her how Vassar happened to have a daisy chain.

"It started long after my time," Mrs. MacLeish reported. "And it started long before mine," Mrs. Welton explained.

"In fact, I had always assumed that it just began with the college," Mrs. Welton went on to tell Mrs. MacLeish. "I do remember that we couldn't take baths the night before class day because the freshmen filled all the tubs with daisies. This and the fact that I once had to impersonate Grover Cleveland in a black skirt because trousers were considered indecent seem to be the only two things that impressed me in my college career."

To settle the daisy chain origin, Mrs. MacLeish and Mrs. Welton navdug deep into the college archives and discovered that the rite goes back as far as class day, 1894. Fathers and mothers were filing out of the college chapel, seniors behind them, when a graduate looked up at the sophomores in the balcony, then at a wreath of daisies on the wall, and shouted "Come on down, Sophs, and carry the chain."

Two years later, when these second year students were seniors, the daisy chain was a Vassar ceremony the loveliest and fairest sophomores carrying the garland of daisies picked from the fields around about Poughkeepsie as colorful background for their graduating sisters.

PAUL WHIPS LA BARBA IN TEN ROUND BATTLE

DOWNERS GROVE AND LANE WIN IN PREP TOURNEY

To Clash Tonight in Semi-Final.

Tourney Facts

YESTERDAY'S RESULTS.

Roosevelt, 39; St. Charles, 25.
McKinley, 32; New Trier, 27.
Downers Grove, 24; Morton, 17.
Lane Tech, 15; Lake View, 14.

TODAY'S GAMES.

7 p. m.—Roosevelt vs. McKinley.
8 p. m.—U. of Chicago vs. Kentucky U.
9:30 p. m.—Downers Grove vs. Lane.

Three teams, Roosevelt, McKinley, and Lane, lightly regarded in the city league, and Downers Grove, a suburban favorite, advanced into the semi-finals of the Stagg interscholastic basketball tournament yesterday. The losers, who now join 24 other entrants on the sidelines, were St. Charles, New Trier, Morton and Lake View.

Roosevelt will face McKinley in the semi-finals tonight at 7 o'clock and Downers Grove will meet Lane at 9:30 o'clock. The Chicago-Kentucky varsity game is interposed at 8 o'clock. In yesterday's games Roosevelt beat St. Charles, 39 to 25; McKinley whipped New Trier, 32 to 27; Lane defeated Lake View, 15 to 14, and Downers Grove conquered Morton, 24 to 17.

A fourth quarter spurt decided each of yesterday's four games. The victors all were behind at one time or another in the last half. Today's games will determine which can spurt hardest and last.

Lightweights Are Stars.

McKinley and Roosevelt have depended heavily on players drafted from the lightweight squads. In McKinley's victories over Elgin, Senn and New Trier, two lightweights have dominated the play. They are Perky De Larme, who has scored 35 points in three games, and Bill Alton, who has accounted for 21 points. Roosevelt's pace setter has been Ted Weinhouse, who has accumulated 32 points in the course of victories over La Grange, Parker, and St. Charles.

Lane and Downers Grove have big, systematic teams, in which scoring honors have been divided equally. Lane triumphed last night with it's second one point victory in the tourney, it having beaten Calumet, 29 to 28, in the first round.

Free Throws Count.

Five free throws, its only points in the fourth quarter, gave Lane victory over the towering Lake View team. Lane, forced to yield the tip-off and most rebounds to Fred Troutewine, 6 foot 7 inch Lake View center, overcame this handicap with an air-tight defense. Each team scored only four baskets, but Lane had a 7 to 6 edge in free throws.

Troutewine sank a short shot in the first period and the scoring was over for the time when Ollie Danakas caged a long one and Fred Knez dropped a free throw.

In the second period Nick Polchanin and Steve Kocowsky tipped in goals for Lane, while Swanberg scored once from far out and again on a free throw and Buchanan converted two free throws for Lake View.

Troutewine gave Lake View a momentary edge with a short shot, but Polachanin came back with a goal from the side line. Tintara put Lake View ahead again, 12 to 10, with a basket and from there on the scoring was entirely on free throws, with Swanberg counting twice for Lake View and Duros, Bensinger, Knez, and Danakas scoring a total of 5 for Lane.

Morton Loses Lead.

Downers Grove, having nosed out Riverside in the final moments on Wednesday night's game, spurted again last night to defeat Morton, tournament and state champion last year. Morton led through more than three-quarters of the game until the big Downers Grove five began driving through to the basket.

Morton worked in Bondlow, Massett, Hermanek, and Fendrych for a series of short shots in the first half, to lead 11 to 8. Bondlow and Fendrych counted for Morton in the third quarter, and Harry Miller's step in shot and a trio of free throws for Downers Grove brought the score to 15 to 13.

Massett hooped a side shot for Morton to open the final period. Downers Grove immediately rallied and swept into an attack which netted 9 points and wiped out Morton's lead. Slanec and Jim Reninger sank two free throws and Clyde Rigsby another, and Reninger and Kayo Oestmann collaborated on a pair of field goals that settled the issue.

Roosevelt Rallies.

Roosevelt's last quarter spurt defeated St. Charles, 39 to 25, in the first quarter final game. Tied at the half, 14 to 14, ahead by one point at the end of the third quarter, 22 to 21, the City league team began to find the basket in the final period and scored 17 points to the suburbanites' 4.

St. Charles pulled out in front early in the game by some accurate shooting by Bill Nylen, lanky center. With the score 14 to 10 against them just before the half, Marvin Colen, Roosevelt guard, intercepted a pass and dribbled down the floor to score. Dick Darr sank a long one at the gun.

Free throws kept St. Charles in the game during the third quarter, but Roosevelt's shooting was too deadly in the last period. Eddie O'Connell followed up Ted Weinhouse's attempt at a free throw and Darr added

ROSE BOWL GAMES.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA and Pittsburgh meet in the annual Tournament of Roses football game Monday. If the Trojans win, as critics generally expect them to do, coast publicity still may state "an eastern team has not won a game in this series since 1920."

Now, doesn't that sound fine? It might be convincing of overwhelming Pacific coast football supremacy if one did not go a bit behind the statement, which is true in fact but leaves implication that coast teams have won or tied all these contests. Such is not the case.

It would be just as truthful to say that "Pacific coast elevens have won half the contests played against other opponents, except ties not figured in percentages." You see, games against middle western and southern elevens are not included in the original statement. The middle west has won one and lost one. The south has won three, tied one, and lost one.

Success of the south supports, in a way, our contention that elevens of this latitude undertake a tremendous handicap in the long train ride, but more particularly in keeping in training in this climate for six weeks after the regular season ends. Southern elevens, of course, have the train ride, but are better able to keep in training in a climate more nearly like that where the game is played.

The Wake does not wish to seem provincial. Nor do we belittle coast football prowess. One cannot do that. There are fine teams out there, composed of fine physical specimens who are well coached—in fact, three of the four coaches of the coast's so called "Big Four" are former Big Ten mentors. Only it seems to us that "east has not won a game since 1920" carries an inference not in accordance with the record.

If all games played in this series, not merely since 1920, are included, the home elevens have a majority of victories, but certainly not a greater majority than the advantage of home environment should give. In this record the date is of the year played, so the contending elevens are really of the fall before:

1901—Michigan, 49; Stanford, 0. (There may be objection to classifying this game in the regular series, as no other was played at Pasadena until 1916.)
1915—Washington State, 14; Brown, 0.
1917—Oregon, 14; Pennsylvania, 0.
1920—Harvard, 7; Oregon, 6.
1921—California, 28; Ohio State, 0.
1922—Washington-Jefferson, 0; California, 0.
1923—Southern California, 14; Penn State, 3.
1924—Navy, 14; Washington, 14.
1925—Notre Dame, 27; Stanford, 10.
1926—Alabama, 20; Washington, 19.
1927—Alabama, 7; Stanford, 7.
1928—Stanford, 7; Pittsburgh, 6.
1929—Georgia Tech, 8; California, 7.
1930—Southern California, 47; Pittsburgh, 14.
1931—Alabama, 24; Washington State, 0.
1932—Southern California, 21; Tulane, 12.

IOWA RULES TWO BASKETBALL MEN OUT OF ATHLETICS

Blackmer and Break Are Suspended.

Iowa City, Ia., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—The specter of ineligibility which has devastated every basketball team coached by Rollie Williams bobbed up again tonight when the Iowa athletic board blacklisted Ivan Blackmer, Iowa City, forward, and Edward Break, Chicago, guard.

The ruling was announced by Dean C. C. Williams, chairman of the athletic board and of the eligibility committee. Williams stated the committee found the two players ineligible under rule seven of the Western conference, which states, "A student who, after matriculation in any college, engages in athletic contest as a representative of any organization primarily athletic in character shall thereafter be ineligible to represent a conference institution."

Play with Amateurs.

Action by the Iowa committee came as the result of a protest filed with Maj. John L. Griffith, Big Ten commissioner, that the two men had played with the Alberts Cleaners' quintet of Cedar Rapids. The Cedar Rapids team is an amateur organization certified by the A. A. U., but admission was charged for the games.

Coach Rollie Williams was openly dissatisfied with the ruling. His statement said:

"I am greatly disappointed at the committee's action in declaring Blackmer and Break ineligible for further basketball competition at the University of Iowa, particularly since the decision comes scarcely more than a week before we open our conference campaign against Michigan.

"Had I not been permitted to count upon these two men during the season so far, I would have been much better prepared to meet the present situation. The fact concerning the men's activities with the Alberts Cleaners' team, a strictly amateur outfit, last year were known to me and to members of the eligibility committee last spring, and I see no reason why action, if it had to be taken, should have been delayed until this time.

Violations Are Technical.

"These violations are purely technical. Blackmer was not in school at the time he played and would be liable to no violation if it were not for the purely technical fact that he had 'previously attended the university.' Break was ineligible in the conference at the time and had no reason to think that he should obey conference rules.

"In previous cases when men have been reinstated in the conference, it has been assumed that all violations prior to the reinstatement were to be ignored. Why should not this precedent be followed in Break's case? Certainly the facts concerning his play at Cedar Rapids, which were widely printed, were known at least to the Iowa officials who have taken action against him.

"I am of the opinion that the conference, rather than the university, should have been the one to bring charges against these boys, if any were to be brought."

TRY AGAIN, TOMMY!

CHAMP EARNS DECISION WITH CLOSING RUSH

2 Vote for Tommy, One Says Draw.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Tommy Paul of Buffalo beat back one of his most dangerous rivals in his desperate struggle to hold the world's featherweight boxing championship when he whipped the old globe trotter, Fidel La Barba, in ten rounds at the Chicago Stadium last night.

Paul staged a sensational rally in the last two rounds which pulled victory out of the fire and made him stand out for the first time in the encounter as a fellow worthy of being called a champion. He came back so stoutly in the final minutes of fighting the crowd put on a demonstration when Referee Joe McNamara lifted his hand as a signal of victory.

The Boys Get Serious.

The bout had not been a tea party at any stage. Blood began to flow as early as the third round when La Barba smacked the young champion squarely on his nose. In the next round Paul opened a cut over La Barba's left eye.

A crowd of 5,926 paid $8,640.60 to see the battle. The fight seesawed first in La Barba's direction and later toward Paul, and the spectators were in the dark as to which was the winner until Referee McNamara grabbed Paul by the hand at the end of the tenth and lifted it far above his head.

La Barba Takes Early Lead.

La Barba had his left working like a machine in the first three rounds and every time he pushed it out Paul's head was snapped back. Only a game kid could have withstood the punishment and could have come back in the fourth round to battle his older and heavier opponent to a standstill. Paul sent punch after punch with his right and his left to his foe's chin, nose and eyes.

From the sixth on Paul carried the fight to La Barba. His punches were clean, they were delivered with great force, and La Barba, who he'd beaten him twice in previous encounters, was more amazed than any one else in the Stadium at the sudden turn of affairs.

Paul Strong in Tenth.

La Barba rallied gamely in the ninth and again the crowd began to yell for him. But the tenth and last round had no sooner started when Paul carried the fight right back to La Barba again. He was pounding and pushing Fidel all around the ring when the final tap of the gong ended it.

Paul's game stand completely upset the betting fraternity, which had made La Barba a 2 to 1 favorite a few minutes before the boys crawled through the ring. Yet the decision was almost unanimous. Referee McNamara and Judge Ed Klein both gave the fight to the champion by a comfortable margin. Judge Hintz called it a draw. Referee McNamara's score read 52 for Paul and 48 for La Barba. Judge Klein's score was 53 for Paul and 47 for La Barba. Hintz scored it 50-50.

Tommy Collects $1,000.

There wasn't anything that resembled a knockdown through the ten rounds, although they kept punching away at each other's chins all the way.

Paul got very little money for his big rally which shoved La Barba out of his way as a challenger for his title. He was working on percentage and his share of the spoils was only a little more than $1,000.

Freddy Miller, wild swinging southpaw from Cincinnati, gave Jackie Sharkey, Minneapolis featherweight, a sound thumping in the opening bout, which was at eight rounds. He had Sharkey in a bad way in the sixth round and again in the eighth. There were no knockdowns.

Martin Levandowski, Grand Rapids light heavyweight, scored a technical knockout over Bob Olin of New York, after 33 seconds of fighting in the fifth round. Olin battered Levandowski around in the first two rounds, then began to wilt under the latter's terrific punches. He was down twice in the fourth round and wasn't in good shape when the fifth started. After taking a right and a left to the jaw, he was out on his feet and Referee Tommy Gilmore interceded.

Max Rosenbloom slapped Billy Jones, Philadelphia Negro, into defeat in ten rounds. In the third round one of Rosenbloom's slaps opened a cut over Jones' left eye. It bothered Jones until the end, although Rosenbloom wasn't able to land anything that resembled a knockout punch.

Braves Buy Back Hogan from Giants

New York, Dec. 29.—(AP)—Francis J. Hogan of Somerville, Mass., the bulky catcher of the New York Giants, today went back to the Boston Braves, the club which traded him to the Giants four years ago.

The deal was announced as a straight cash transaction, but as they gave out the news the Giants dropped a few hints indicating further shifts which might bring one or more Boston players to New York before the matter is cleaned up.

Deal Was Expected.

It had been known for some time that Hogan was slated to go in Manager Bill Terry's general housecleaning, which has resulted in the disposal of eleven players since the disastrous end of the 1932 season. In the course of the trading Terry obtained Gus Mancuso from St. Louis to fill the post of first string catcher, with young Francis Healey available for relief duty.

Hogan, a local boy who made good after he left his home precincts, broke in with the Braves as an outfielder in 1925 and promptly was farmed out to the Albany, Worcester, and Lynn clubs. He was converted into a catcher at Lynn and caught for the Braves in 1927. During that winter he was traded to the Giants with Outfielder Jimmy Welsh for Rogers Hornsby.

Frank Knows His Job.

Since coming to the Giants Hogan has been one of the league's outstanding catchers, despite his bulk and his lack of speed on the base paths. His batting average fell to .287 in 1932, his worst season at the plate, but he continued his remarkable fielding record by compiling a .983 average while handling 522 chances, more than any other catcher in the league.

Appoint Ray Brubaker Manager of Oakland Club

Oakland, Cal., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Ray Brubaker today was appointed manager of the Oakland club of the Pacific Coast Baseball league. He succeeds Carl Zamloch. Brubaker, veteran utility man, came to Oakland from the St. Joseph Western league club in 1920.

Philip K. Wrigley Named Chairman of Cubs' Directors

Philip K. Wrigley yesterday was elected chairman of the board of directors and chairman of the executive committee at the annual meeting of the Chicago National League Baseball club. These offices formerly were held by the Wrigley Jr.

PHILIP K. WRIGLEY.

The board of directors, consisting of Mrs. William Wrigley Jr., W. M. Walker, R. A. Cavenaugh, A. B. Schuttler, A. D. Lasker, George Marcy, Charles McCulloch, and William L. Veeck, elected the following officers: William L. Veeck, president and treasurer; William Walker and John O. Seys, vice presidents, and Margaret Donahue, secretary.

"We are looking forward to a good season from both competitive and financial aspects," said Mr. Veeck. "The acquisition of Babe Herman is sure to help us."

Hecht Reaches 4th Round of Junior Indoor Tennis

New York, Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Marco Hecht, national junior indoor tennis champion for the last two years, advanced to the fourth round of the annual tournament today by defeating Philip Lautkin, New York. The scores were 6-0, 6-1. In another third round match Willard E. Ingalls Jr., Harvard university, won from Howard P. Kahn, University of Michigan, 2-6, 6-1, 8-6.

Princeton Eleven Plans to Meet Dartmouth in 1933

New York, Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Unless plans fail to materialize Princeton and Dartmouth will meet on the football field for the first time since 1916 next fall. Football relations between the schools started in 1897. Others on the Princeton 1933 schedule include Columbia, Brown, Navy and Yale.

BOSTROM LEAVES BLACKHAWKS TO MANAGE ST. PAUL

Helge Bostrom, for four years a member of the Blackhawks, and captain since the start of this season, will manage the St. Paul Greyhounds of the American association, the change becoming effective immediately, according to announcement yesterday. To replace Bostrom as a defense player the Hawks recalled Art Wiebe, 20 year old former amateur sensation who trained with the Chicago outfit at Duluth this fall.

Bosrom, before being taken off the Hawk roster, was the National league's oldest player. Helge, or Bulgy, is 39 years old. He was out of the game most of last season, due to a skate slash he suffered in a collision with Earl Seibert of the New York Rangers. As a result of this and other injuries Bostrom was known as "hockey's most hemstitched player." In his career he has submitted to 242 stitches.

BABE DIDRIKSON IN MOUNTAINS FOR SHORT REST

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., Dec. 29.—(AP)—Mildred Babe Didrikson, the one girl track team, has come to the mountains to rest before starting a career as a professional athlete.

Miss Didrikson last week announced her intention of turning professional after she had been suspended by the Amateur Athletic union. She was reinstated by the A. A. U. later, but the action failed to alter her decision.

Schmeling and Baer Fight to Open Fair, Plan

George Getz, chairman of the World's Fair sports committee, said last night that an invitation would be extended Jack Dempsey to present the 15 round bout between Max Schmeling and Max Baer at Soldiers' field on Memorial day.

Dempsey, who has not decided on a site for the match, plans to present it the first or second week in June. Mr. Getz will suggest Memorial day because it will mark the opening of the Century of Progress exposition. He has been in contact with railroad leaders concerning reduced round trip fare rates for the occasion.

Getz will go to New York Tuesday to confer with Dempsey. He has had no assurance that the former heavyweight champion is financially able to handle the match. Dempsey, it is reported, has felt out Getz in regard to serving as co-promoter as he did with the late Tex Rickard at the second Tunney-Dempsey battle. Getz has declined other invitations to serve in this capacity.

"I am interested in the Schmeling-Baer bout only from the viewpoint of the World's Fair," he said last night. "I think it would help the fair and stimulate interest in the match to put it on at the opening of the exposition."

Getz said he was optimistic over the chances of Chicago landing the 1933 Army-Navy football game.

Rudolph Wins Three Blocks from Greenleaf

New York, Dec. 29.—(AP)—Erwin Rudolph took three successive blocks from Ralph Greenleaf in their special 1,750 point pocket billiard exhibition today and gained a lead of 1,000 to 757. The Cleveland veteran won the sixth block, 125 to 41, in six innings; the seventh, 125 to 103 in 12 innings, and the eighth, 125 to 59 in five innings. His high run was 62.

Practice Injuries Fatal to Akron Prep Player

Akron, O., Dec. 29.—(AP)—Willis Walter, 17 years old, who for two years turned out for high school football practice but never "made the team," died today of spinal injuries suffered on the gridiron.

Talking it Over

BY ARCH WARD.

DR. D. A. PENICK, a professor at the University of Texas and president of the Southwest Athletic conference, said in an address before the convention of physical directors at New York the other day that unless present evils are eliminated intercollegiate athletics will give way to other forms of campus activities.

Intercollegiate athletics is practically a profession, he stated. "It furnishes a livelihood for coaches and trainers and, in many cases, for the players," he remarked.

His climactic argument was that it provides public entertainment for money, that it is commercialized by institutions and that its profits help in running the school financially.

Dr. Penick obviously is apprehensive over the future of intercollegiate football because of its popularity. Popularity usually involves commercialism and the alleged evils are said to be rooted in the financial angles of the game.

There is no reason to deny that football has become big business. Universities in organizations as well regulated as the Western conference arrange their schedules with an eye toward maximum receipts. But is this, after all, a practice to be viewed with alarm?

The University of Michigan, for example, made a profit of more than $3,000,000 in the Golden Twenties. What became of the money? It went back into a new stadium, a field house, a women's gymnasium, a golf course and other athletic equipment that will be available to Michigan students for years. Nearly all the other major schools could point to similar improvements made possible by the popularity of football.

There always are people who feel that we should condemn the things that are of absorbing interest. Football had few critics when games drew from 5,000 to 10,000 spectators. But some of our educators sat back and became frightened when they began to attract ten times that number.

A generation ago Americans were interested mainly in professional and semi-professional sports. Undergraduates frequently left the campus to attend events staged and supported by professional promoters. Nowadays high school and college athletics have equal appeal with the major professional sports. Undergraduates, alumni, and others remotely or with no connection with school or college life patronize games sponsored and presented by educational institutions. From our point of view the change seems all in favor of the undergraduates, the alumni, and others, even though a staff of trained coaches is given reasonable compensation to develop athletes who can give interesting exhibitions.

From time to time you hear that athletics makes too serious demands on a student's time. This, of course, is a matter of administration. In the Big Ten a limit has been placed on the number of games a team may play, and in football on the length of time that may be devoted per day to training and practice. At Notre Dame, where football is generally regarded as having reached its highest development, players never are on the field more than an hour and a half.

There are many who contend that it is impossible for people to manifest interest in athletics and scholarship at the same time. They overlook the fact that the athletes of classical Greece were given more adulation than the Newmans, the Berrys, and the Melinkovichs of today. The period that developed the greatest Greek scholars also developed the greatest athletes.

There was no correlation between low scholarship and superior athletics in those days, and there probably is none now. If the educators who attack intercollegiate sport would forget petty jealousies, they probably would admit it.

North Dakota State Defeats Millikin, 28-25

Decatur, Ill., Dec. 29.—(AP)—Two baskets by Olson late in the game gave North Dakota State of Fargo a 28 to 25 victory over Millikin in the third game of its six game holiday tour tonight. Millikin led, 14 to 11, at the half and was ahead several times in the second period.

JONES LIGHTENS TROJANS' DRILLS FOR PITT BATTLE

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 29.—(AP)—Coach Howard Jones of Southern California lightened the practice burden which rested today on the shoulders of the unbeaten Trojans. He sent the squad through a shortened workout with very little dummy scrimmage included in the preparatory exercises, which were open to newspapermen.

The semi-secret drill was a direct departure from other years when the gates of Bovard field were closed to all comers before important games such as the impending contest with Pittsburgh at Pasadena Monday.

Odds Favor Trojans.

Odds of 10 to 7 continue to favor the Trojans, who have won all of their three previous appearances in the Rose tournament game.

The ticket sale has gone along slowly, with no indication there will be anywhere near a capacity crowd of 84,000. Estimates were that less than 50,000 tickets had been sold.

PITT STARTS FINAL DRILL.

Tucson, Ariz., Dec. 29.—(AP)—The Pittsburgh Panthers launched the final phase of their training for the Southern California game at Pasadena Monday with a short light workout in their desert rendezvous near here today. The drill inaugurated what Coach Jock Sutherland termed the "tapering off process." It will be continued tomorrow and Saturday.

Warren Heller and Mike Sebastian, backfield stars, were reported in fine shape after minor injuries in scrimmages, and Paul Cuba, big tackle, carried from the field recently, was much improved. He will play against the Trojans.

Capt. Paul Reider, who has been suffering from a bad leg, is the only man who may not play.

EAST WHIPS RECRUITS

Stanford University, Cal., Dec. 29.—(AP)—The eastern football players entrenched here for their game against the pick of the west in San Francisco Monday swept over a recruit team led by Ernie Nevers, former Stanford star, here today for six touchdowns in a 45 minute scrimmage.

Bart Viviano, Cornell full back, made several long runs for the eastern team. The pass catching of Dick Fencl, Northwestern end, and running and passing of Pug Rentner, Northwestern half back, were other high spots.

The Nevers' recruits scored only once as Joe Zapustas, Fordham quarter back, misjudged a pass by Nevers. The ball landed in the arms of Joe Capitelli, Stanford freshman player, who ran 30 yards to a touchdown.

Viviano broke off tackle once for 25 yards, swerving past two opponents for a touchdown. Another time he broke through right guard for 40 yards and a touchdown.

Bob Smith, Colgate guard, and Jack Manders, Minnesota all around star, now playing half back, Joe Kurth of Notre Dame and Marshall Wells of Minnesota were outstanding as blockers.

Paul Signs for Defense of Crown

Tommy Paul, Buffalo, N. Y., National Boxing association featherweight champion, and Freddy Miller of Cincinnati, O., signed yesterday to meet in a title bout at Detroit on Jan. 20. This match was originally set for Dec. 30. Paul's time limit to defend the championship expires Jan. 26. The contest will be the fourth between Miller, who is rated sixth by the N. B. A. in the 126 pound division, and Paul. Miller won two decisions at Cincinnati and Tommy one at Buffalo.

Fidel La Barba will leave for Buffalo, N. Y., Monday, where he boxes Tony Sciolino Tuesday.

Les Kennedy, Butte, Mont., heavyweight, has returned from Alexandria, Va., where he whipped Bob Godwin Tuesday. Kennedy is matched to fight Dewey Kimery at Charlotte, N. C., Jan. 9.

Frankie O'Brien, Hartford, Conn., middleweight, will go to Milwaukee, Wis., today to face Tait Littman of Cudahy in a ten round bout Monday afternoon. Sammy Levine and Billy Gladstone, local boxers, appear in supporting matches. Levine meets Julius Cohen and Gladstone boxes Pete Pantaleo.

Dave Shade, New York 160 pounder, is reported recuperating from an attack of influenza and will resume workouts next week. Dave had agreed to battle Frankie Battaglia at the Chicago Stadium a month ago following his victory over Sammy (Kid) Slaughter. Battaglia is in Minneapolis, Minn., recovering from an injury to his arm. The next show at the Stadium will be presented on Jan. 13.

Pep Kerwin, former amateur promoter, said last night he will start promoting professional cards on the north side next month. Kerwin recently lost his amateur license when he testified that he had violated A. A. U. rules.

Harry Dublinsky, lightweight contender, intends to concentrate on punching in his 10 round bout with Prince Saunders at the Cicero stadium Monday afternoon. In the past, Dublinsky has relied on speed. Saunders is a hard right hand puncher. He lost to Dublinsky at St. Paul a year ago.

Levinsky and Loughran to Box in Philadelphia Jan. 10

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 29.—(AP)—Herman Taylor, sports promoter, said tonight he had signed Tommy Loughran of Philadelphia and King Levinsky of Chicago to fight in a ten round windup at the Philadelphia Convention hall Jan. 10.

COAST FIGHTERS HERE TOMORROW FOR C. Y. O. BOUTS

Officials Plan Reception for Visitors

Los Angeles and San Francisco amateur boxing teams will arrive in Chicago tomorrow morning for their bouts with C. Y. O. boxers at the Chicago Stadium Jan. 6. Plans for a civic reception for the invading fighters and their friends took definite form yesterday. They will arrive over the Golden State Limited of the Rock Island railroad at the La Salle Street station at 9:30 o'clock.

The train will be halted long enough at Joliet for Lieut. Gov. Elect Donovan to welcome the boys to Illinois. He and a group of Joliet citizens headed by Mayor Hennessey will accompany them to Chicago.

Quartered at I. A. C.

The visitors will be greeted at the La Salle Street station by Bishop B. J. Shall and a delegation of clergy, civic leaders, and city and county officials. They will be taken to the Illinois Athletic club where they will be quartered during their stay in Chicago.

Later in the morning the boxers will participate in a parade headed by mounted and motorcycle police and Greeter Gaw, who will escort them to the City hall. There they will be received by Corporation Counsel William H. Sexton, acting for Mayor Cermak, who is out of the city. Rufus C. Dawes, president of the Century of Progress, and State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney will participate in the welcoming ceremonies.

A program of entertainment has been arranged for the afternoon and evening, which will include a trip to Evanston for the Notre Dame-Northwestern basketball game.

Get Workouts on Train.

Willie Ritchie, former lightweight champion who is coaching the coast teams, is taking no chances on his boys growing stale on the trip to Chicago. Before leaving Los Angeles Wednesday he arranged for an extra club car to be attached to the train, and this serves as a gymnasium. He promises that the fighters will be in topnotch shape when they arrive in Chicago.

At a meeting of the C. Y. O. boxing board yesterday it was decided to leave the question of the weight of gloves to be used in the bouts up to the visiting fighters. Either 6 or 8 ounce gloves may be used. It will be also up to Ritchie and his boys as to whether the three round bouts at the Stadium will be of 2 or 3 minute duration. Members of the C. Y. O. board favors two minute rounds.

Hoppe, Kieckhefer Split Three Cushion Blocks

Augie Kieckhefer, world's three cushion billiard champion, and Willie Hoppe divided the seventh and eighth blocks of their exhibition match at Kieckhefer's recreation yesterday. Hoppe won the afternoon match, 50 to 39, in 46 innings, while Kieckhefer triumphed in the evening block, 57 to 40, in 44 innings. Hoppe now is leading, 400 to 314.

COLLEGE HOCKEY.

McGill, 12; Dartmouth, 3.

Fight Decisions

At Chicago—Tommy Paul beat Fidel La Barba [10]; Freddy Miller beat Jackie Sharkey [8]; Martin Levandowski stopped Bob Olin [5]; Max Rosenbloom beat Billy Jones [10].

At Philadelphia, Pa.—Walter Cobb beat George Godfrey [10]; Unknown Winston stopped Ted Sandwina [3]; Jimmy Maloney stopped Leo Mitchell [7].

METCALF GOES EAST IN HUNT FOR MAROON COACH

Field Narrows Down to a Mere 6 or 8.

New York, Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Thomas Nelson Metcalf, new director of athletics at the University of Chicago, has brought his search for a successor to A. A. Stagg as head football coach to the 27th annual convention of the National Collegiate Athletic association, which opens here tomorrow.

Apparently, however, Metcalf is no nearer a decision than he has been for weeks. He said today that he had talked with several coaches here for the convention, but was at liberty mention no names. "There are at least six or eight men under consideration," Metcalf explained, "but no choice has been made and none will be made for some time."

Jimmy Pixlee, athletic director of George Washington university in Washington, D. C., said that he had been approached with the question as to whether he would consider transferring to the Midway.

Phelan Is Mentioned.

Jimmy Phelan of the University of Washington has been mentioned for the Chicago vacancy, along with those at Fordham and Holy Cross. Jimmy Crowley of Michigan State, one of Notre Dame's "four horsemen," also has come in for discussion at Fordham, but has given no indication that he is willing to leave his present post.

Capt. Lawrence M. [Biff] Jones, head coach at Louisiana State and former West Point coach, came into the Fordham talk when it developed that he had been approached by Jack Coffey, Fordham's graduate manager.

Possibility of a change in the coaching personnel at Ohio State university became evident, L. W. St. John, athletic director of the Buckeyes, having asked Tuss McLaughry, Brown coach, as to his "availability," only to find that McLaughry is content with the Providence position.

Okeson to Succeed Hall?

It is considered likely by a majority of the delegates that the name of Walter Okeson of Lehigh university will be offered to the convention tomorrow as a successor to the late E. K. Hall as chairman of the national football rules committee.

Nominations for the position were discussed tonight at a closed executive session of the council. This reported swing to Okeson is a change from the previous idea that William S. Langford of Trinity, for many years secretary of the committee, would be named as chairman and that Okeson would become secretary.

Mention Griffith for Presidency.

The proposed election of Griffith is coupled with plans to hold the 1933 annual meeting of the association in Chicago. Griffith is a Chicagoan.

The general tone of today's informal session was struck by Kenneth Wilson, athletic director at Northwestern, who said, "It is no longer necessary to talk of giving the game back to the boys. They already have it." By this he meant that the shrinkage of funds had forced a cutting down of activity all through the athletic program, with the result that in a great many instances the students themselves were taking over the financing and management of their sports.

Agree on Economy.

The entire session agreed that drastic reduction of spending was necessary and unavoidable. The group also agreed the sport programs would be continued in full where possible and where curtailment was found unavoidable, it would be made reluctantly and as little as possible.

Dr. Fred W. Marvel of Brown struck this note in his talk when he declared it to be vitally important to continue sports. "The boy of today is beginning to learn better than ever in the past how to make the most complete use of his periods of recreation, and if this is important enough to make it essential we should devote every effort to maintaining the most complete athletic program," he said.

N. B. A. MAY BAR SINGER, MANAGER OF PAUL, NICHOLS

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—The license of Jack Singer, Buffalo, manager of Tommy Paul, National Boxing association featherweight champion, and George Nichols, dethroned N. B. A. light heavyweight titleholder, probably will be revoked, it was revealed by James M. Brown, president of the National Boxing association, today.

"Singer's handling of Paul in the recent bout with Johnny Mitchell in Toledo merits suspension," Brown said. "He did not show up until 6 o'clock the day of the fight. He and Paul made the trip by automobile—an all day ride that left the fighter in no shape to give his best efforts."

BOY CHAMPION GOES INTO TIE FOR CUE LEAD

New York, Dec. 29.—(AP)—Robert Moore of Grand Rapids, Mich., defending titleholder, gained a three way tie for first place in the national junior pocket billiard championship tonight when he defeated young Joseph Balsis of Philadelpia, 75 to 18, in 11 innings.

Nick Oliva of Chicago, Y. M. C. A. champion, and Arthur Judice of Brooklyn, eastern sectional winner, are the other leaders, each with three successive victories. Oliva scored his third victory, 75 to 18, in 14 innings at the expense of John Wright of Brooklyn this afternoon.

Southern California Whips California Puck Team, 7-1

Yosemite, Cal., Dec. 29.—(AP)—The University of Southern California retained possession of the President Hoover trophy by defeating the University of California hockey team, 7 to 1, today in the final and deciding event of the Pacific coast intercollegiate winter games here.

Maroons Face Kentucky Five; Hope for Best

Chicago's basketball team will encounter its most able opposition of the practice season tonight when the University of Kentucky team comes to the Midway fieldhouse for a game that will be played at 8 o'clock, between games of the semi-finals of the interscholastic tournament.

Kentucky, which has made an impressive record in its games this year, was tied for the Southern conference championship by Maryland last season, when illness of three regulars caused the loss of the final game by one point. Four members of the Kentucky squad were on the Ashland team which competed in the University of Chicago national interscholastic in 1929. Two of the four Colonels, Ellis Johnson and Darrow Darby, also played on the 1928 Ashland team which won the national title in the Stagg tournament.

Although the addition of Chiz Evans, regular forward, has added some scoring power to the Maroon team, it still lacks a consistent offense. Coach Nels Nelson will be compelled to do some more experimenting in tonight's game, particularly at forward and center. Considerable improvement has been accomplished in the Chicago defensive play during the last ten days, and Norgren hopes that a tight guarding game will enable his team to offset its lack of shooting ability.

BADGERS VS. SPARTANS

Madison, Wis., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—An improved Wisconsin basketball team will meet Michigan State college here tomorrow night.

After dropping close games to Carleton and Marquette, the Badgers last week defeated the University of Maryland, and in doing so showed enough improvement to justify some of the praises sung about the material at the start of the season.

Wisconsin has a green team this year, including three sophomores and two reserves of other years. Their lack of experience was conspicuous in their first two starts. Against Maryland, the defense was much better.

Shooting Is Wild.

The Badgers' chief weakness seems to be wild shooting. They work the ball into position for comparatively easy shots, only to blow their chances by hurried heaves in the general direction of the basket.

Coach Van Alstyne of the Spartans started the season with seven letter men from the 1931-1932 team and has developed them into a fast, clever, well balanced outfit. The forwards are Co-Capt. McCaslin and Patchette. McCaslin is a long shot artist and a hard man to cover. Patchette is considered the best point gatherer on the team. Nick Vander Roest, center, is the pivot in all the Spartans' plays.

The real stars, however, are the guards, Co-Capt. Al Kircher and William Vondette, who are playing their third varsity season together. Vondette is known for his fast break, his skill in passing, and his ability to dash in—apparently from nowhere—for close-in shots.

Reduce Ticket Prices.

In an attempt to increase attendance, the Badger athletic management has reduced the price of tickets for this game to a lower figure than for any major Wisconsin basketball game since the world war days. Side seats, except the first six rows in the balcony, will be 75 cents; end seats, 40c; children not over 14 years, 10 cents.

The probable lineups:

WISCONSIN.		MICHIGAN STATE.
Smith	F	McCaslin
Wichmann	F	Patchette
McDonald	C	Vander Roest
Hamann	G	Kircher
Miller	G	Vondette

ILLINI VS. NORTH DAKOTA

Champaign, Ill., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—University of Illinois basketball players will resume their preliminary campaign tomorrow afternoon, engaging North Dakota State, champion of the North Central conference, which is coached by Leonard T. Saalwaechter, Illinois graduate.

More than 2,000 high school basketball players will be guests. The probable starting lineups:

ILLINOIS.		N. DAKOTA STATE.
Bennett	L. F.	Arthur
Froschauer	R. F.	Marquardt
Hellmich	C.	Weir
Beyton	R. G.	A. Michelson
Theobald	L. G.	McKay

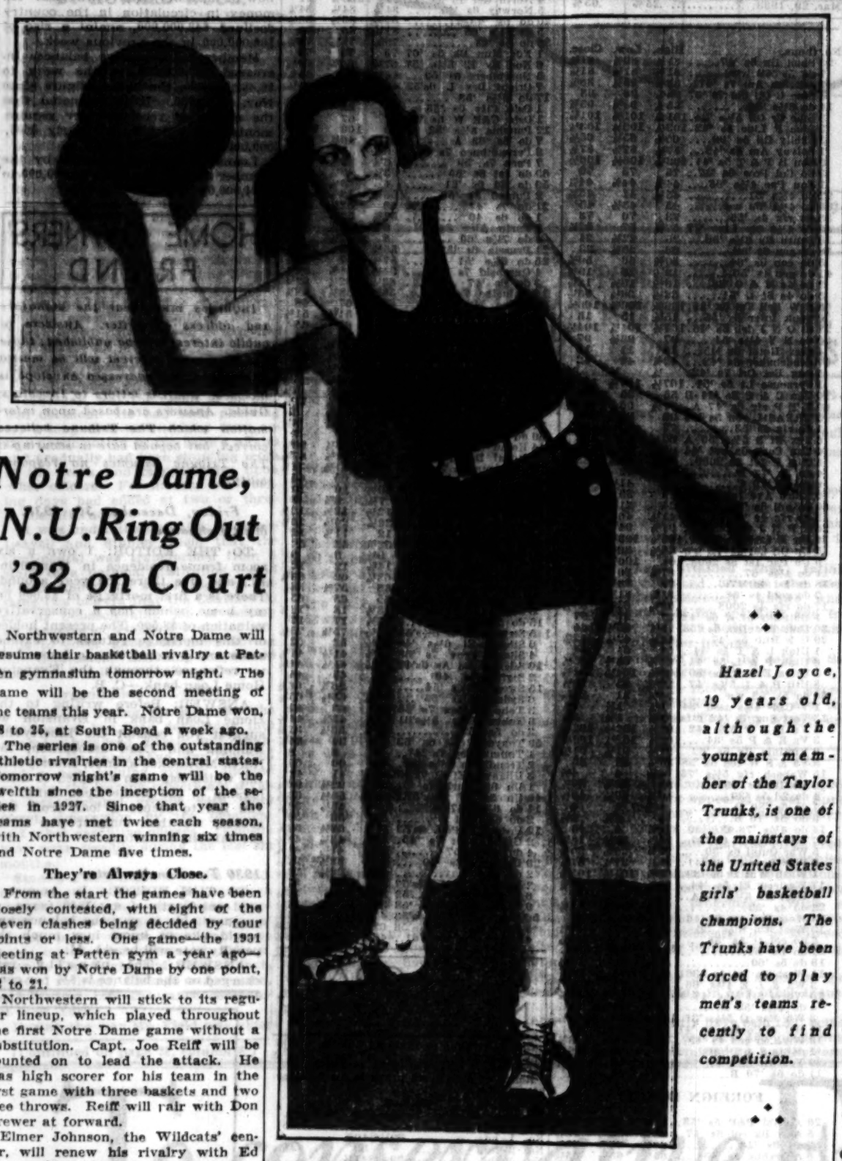
Friel, St. Louis Browns' Business Manager, Quits

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—William E. Friel, business manager of the St. Louis Browns, has resigned, it was announced today. The resignation, effective Dec. 31, was accepted by Phil Ball, president of the American league club. Friel refused to give any reason for his resignation. He played with the Browns as infielder and outfielder in 1902 and 1903.

Spencer Coals Girls Off Today for Cage Series

The Spencer Coals Girls' basketball team will leave Chicago today for Warren, O., where they will meet the Leavittsburg Athletic club girls' squad, eastern champions, in a two game series tomorrow and Monday. The winner of the series will play the Edmonton Grads next month.

THE YOUNGEST OF THE TRUNKS



Hazel Joyce, 19 years old, although the youngest member of the Taylor Trunks, is one of the mainstays of the United States girls' basketball champions. The Trunks have been forced to play men's teams recently to find competition.

Notre Dame, N.U. Ring Out '32 on Court

Northwestern and Notre Dame will resume their basketball rivalry at Patten gymnasium tomorrow night. The game will be the second meeting of the teams this year. Notre Dame won, 28 to 25, at South Bend a week ago.

The series is one of the outstanding athletic rivalries in the central states. Tomorrow night's game will be the twelfth since the inception of the series in 1927. Since that year the teams have met twice each season, with Northwestern winning six times and Notre Dame five times.

They're Always Close.

From the start the games have been closely contested, with eight of the eleven clashes being decided by four points or less. One game—the 1931 meeting at Patten gym a year ago—was won by Notre Dame by one point, 22 to 21.

Northwestern will stick to its regular lineup, which played throughout the first Notre Dame game without a substitution. Capt. Joe Reiff will be counted on to lead the attack. He was high scorer for his team in the first game with three baskets and two free throws. Reiff will pair with Don Brewer at forward.

Elmer Johnson, the Wildcats' center, will renew his rivalry with Ed Krause, Notre Dame's star pivot man. In the last two games Krause has been the scoring ace for the Irish. Last week his five baskets decided the contest.

Culver, Moonshower at Guards.

Patten gym is expected to be filled for the game. For the last several years the contest has been played on New Year's Eve and always attracts a large crowd of enthusiasti- rooters, many of whom come in formal attire. The basketball game serves as a start for the business of celebrating the advent of the new year.

GOLFERS START PRO-AMATEUR MATCHES TODAY

Favorites include Al Espinosa, Akron, O., pro, and Robert Sweeney, London amateur; Abe Espinosa and John Dawson, Chicago pro and amateur; Craig Wood of Deal, N. J., and Fred Gordon of Los Angeles; George von Elm and Stanley Turner, both of Los Angeles; Olin Dutra, national P. G. A. champion, and Charles Ward, both of Santa Monica; Fred Morrison, Agua Caliente open champion, and Dr. Paul Hunter, both of Pasadena.

The field will be split, with half playing a round tomorrow and the remainder competing Saturday. Part of the prize money will be distributed to the leaders each day, with the low best ball score for the two days bringing the professional the top prize and his amateur teammate the first place trophy.

Tichy Leads Harrison to 35-22 Victory at Pontiac

Pontiac, Ill., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Harrison Technical High school of Chicago, winner of the 1930 Pontiac holiday basketball tournament, won its first game in this year's meet this afternoon by trouncing the Fairbury quintet, 35 to 22. Tichy, veteran forward of the west side Chicago school, led his mates with seven field goals and one free throw.

The game was a free scoring battle, but Harrison held a safe lead after the first quarter, which ended 13 to 6.

Meets Benton Today.

Harrison will meet Benton tomorrow morning in the second round. Benton is the defending champion and the boys from Egypt started this afternoon by overwhelming Peoria Central, 41 to 13. Wallace and Henry, with five baskets each, led in the attack which smothered Central, 19 to 6, at the half.

Benton is seeking to duplicate the record of University high school, Bloomington, Ill., which is the only team to win the tournament twice. University high won the first and third meets. This is the seventh of the holiday series.

University high was eliminated by Kankakee, 22 to 15, in one of the best games of the first round. Neither team had been defeated and by its victory Kankakee now looms as one of the contenders for the title. Kankakee will meet Springfield in the morning. Springfield today won from Kewanee, 22 to 14, stalling through the last quarter after piling up a 22 to 8 advantage.

Losing Teams in Consolation.

The losing teams in the first round will start a consolation tournament tomorrow and the finals of the championship and consolation brackets are scheduled Saturday night.

Pontiac, host to the tournament, won its first round game with a fourth period rally which defeated Mattoon, 15 to 14. It was the first close game of the meet. Pontiac finished the first quarter on even terms, 4 to 4, but trailed, 12 to 9, with eight minutes to play. Cushing and Vicars scored all five field goals for Pontiac.

The final game of the night, which ended the first round, saw a team of fighting youngsters from Dwight duplicate Pontiac's rally. Dwight came from behind to whip Decatur, 17 to 16, after being behind 10 to 7 at the end of the third period.

Pekin and West Frankfort had no difficulty in advancing to the second round. Pekin whipped Odell, 37 to 20, and West Frankfort ran away from Forrest, 49 to 10.

Harrison Tech vs. Benton.
Springfield vs. Kankakee.
West Frankfort vs. Pekin.
Pontiac vs. Dwight.

HINSDALE IS VICTOR.

East Aurora, West Chicago, Geneva, and Hinsdale advanced to the semi-finals of the annual Naperville High school basketball tournament at the North Central college gymnasium by triumphing in the quarter-final round last night. West Chicago will meet Geneva at 8 o'clock, while East Aurora is pitted against Hinsdale at 9 o'clock tonight.

Trailing at the end of the first half, 15 to 6, Geneva rallied in the final quarter to defeat Batavia, 25 to 21. East Aurora scored a 25 to 19 victory over Plano; Hinsdale eliminated Naperville, 29 to 20, and West Chicago won from West Aurora, 26 to 17.

The semi-finals in the consolation round also will be played tonight. Plano will meet Naperville, while West Aurora will play Kaneaville, which was eliminated Wednesday night.

SYCAMORE IN ROMP.

De Kalb, Ill., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Sycamore routed Sheridan, 43 to 1, in the quarter-final round of the annual De Kalb High school basketball tournament at the De Kalb Teachers college gymnasium tonight. Others entering the semi-finals were De Kalb, Waterman and Sterling.

De Kalb, which will meet Sycamore tomorrow, defeated Shabbona, 33 to 18. Waterman and Sterling were the victors in the afternoon games, the former winning from Earlville, 43 to 18, and Sterling triumphing over Rock Falls, 18 to 15. Waterman will meet Sterling in the first semi-final game tomorrow afternoon.

OVERTIMES AT GARY.

Gary, Ind., Dec. 29. — [Special.] — Wallace High school of Gary scored in an overtime period to defeat Hammond, 28 to 26, in the annual Gary invitational basketball tournament tonight. Hobart triumphed over Roosevelt of East Chicago, 21 to 20, in another overtime period. Other scores:

Froebel [Gary], 33; Hammond Tech, 16.
Emerson [Gary], 25; Horace Mann [Gary], 12.

New York Rangers, 4; Ottawa, 2.

New York, Dec. 29.—(AP)—The New York Rangers again took first place in the American division of the National Hockey league tonight, passing the idle Boston Bruins as they defeated the Ottawa Senators, 4 to 2.

Ottawa penalties led to the Rangers' winning goals in the second period. With Alex Smith in the penalty box, a concerted Ranger attack brought the deciding goal off Frank Boucher's stick and three minutes later, while both Hec Kilrea and Harold Starr were off the ice, Bill Cook added another. Bill also made the first goal of the game with the aid of Allan Shields, who knocked the puck into his own net.

CANADIENS PLAY TIE

MONTREAL, Que., Dec. 29.—(AP)—The Canadiens overcame a two goal lead to hold the Detroit Red Wings to a 3 to 3 draw in a fast National Hockey league game here tonight. The division of points sent the Canadiens into undisputed possession of fourth place in the international section and gave Detroit a tie with Chicago for third place in the American division.

Goals by Voss and Goodfellow gave Detroit a 2 to 0 lead in the opening period, but Morenz counted in the second period and Lepine in the third to tie the score. Four minutes from the end of the game, Goodfellow's second goal gave the Red Wings the lead again, but G. Carson came back to tie it with less than two minutes to play. Lineup:

Rabbit Fever Cases Increase, State Reports

BY BOB BECKER.

A state-wide report on the number of cases of tularemia, or rabbit fever, in the state, Dr. John J. McShane of the division of communicable diseases in the Illinois department of public health revealed yesterday, shows an increase for December.

Up to the middle of the month 29 cases of tularemia has been reported. In November the state had a record of only 13. In January, 1932, the total was 27. If 29 were recorded in about two weeks it appears that December will set a new high.

Dr. McShane's report shows that tularemia is widespread throughout the state. Twenty-two counties had one or more cases by the middle of the month. Carroll county topped the list with four. Cook county had reported three. The preponderance of cases is puzzling, although the principal reason may be that more men are hunting rabbits this fall and more families using them for food than previously.

Although no authentic information on the decrease or increase of the fever among rabbits is at hand it is doubtful whether the rabbit population is more seriously affected this fall than it was last fall.

We went on a rabbit hunt a few days ago, keeping in mind the fact that we might see an infected cottontail. In fact, one of the objects of the hunt was to see if we could find a dopey, inactive rabbit which might have tularemia. We saw six rabbits in about an hour and a half. But every one ran as if he had springs in his legs and enjoyed the best of health.

Possibly the activity of Mike, a springer spaniel that combed the ground ahead of us, put a lot of pep in the cottontails, because a well trained springer certainly does rout a rabbit and send him off at high speed. Although one may go afield and apparently see nothing but healthy rabbits, sportsmen would do well to keep in mind that tularemia is present in our rabbit population. Therefore one should exercise the proper precautions in handling wild cottontails.

BARILLE BOOSTS POINT TOTAL TO 60 IN K. C. RACE

Continuing his pace with six baskets and two free throws in last week's games, Phil Barille of Americus council added to his lead in the race for individual scoring honors in the Knights of Columbus basketball league. another two points from the side a few seconds later. Colan was the mainspring in the rest of the attack.

The smaller McKinley team started running around and under the huskier New Trier outfit early in the game. Ray De Larme, the McKinley lightweight captain, opened the scoring with a free throw on Dahl's personal. Billy Alton added two free throws, and Sides, a guard, sank a long one. Doug Scott scored a field goal for the suburban team and Dahl counted a free throw. Alton and Wendt found the hoop from midfloor and McKinley led at the quarter, 9 to 2.

New Trier Takes Lead.

New Trier used its height to advantage in the second period and was leading, 15 to 12, at the half. Scott sank a pair of field goals and two free throws in this spurt. Williams, who replaced Preston when the latter was ejected on personals, was good for two baskets, and Jack Sinding counted once.

New Trier scored 11 points to McKinley's 10 in the third period. Scott, Sinding, Williams, and Clayton figured in the suburbanites' scoring, while De Larme and Wendt kept McKinley in the game.

Tamblerino, who replaced McKinley's heavyweight captain, Jimmy De Vito, who left on fouls, opened the final rally with a free throw. De Larme also made good his toss for a point. Wendt tied up the game at 26 all with a shot from way out. He sank another long one to give his team what turned out to be the winning points.

COBB POUNDS OUT VICTORY OVER GODFREY

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 29.—(AP)—Walter Cobb of Baltimore won a ten round decision over George Godfrey, giant Leiperville, Pa., Negro, at Convention hall tonight. Outweighed by 25 pounds, Cobb drove in, punishing his 253 pound opponent with a solid right body smash and a stiff left.

Family of Girl Drowned in Park Pool Gets $2,000

The family of Stephania Pupa, 16 years old, who was drowned in a park swimming pool in East Chicago, Ind., last July 21, was granted a $2,000 judgment against that city yesterday in the Superior court at Hammond by Judge C. V. Ridgely. The family charged that the city did not maintain proper safeguards at the pool. Steve Banas, Notre Dame full back, who was lifeguard at the pool, testified that his attention was distracted by another matter when the girl sank in deep water and drowned.

PETITION I. C. C. TO CLOSE GRAIN RATE HEARINGS

10 Exchanges Hold Action Is Hitting Prices.

Ten midwestern grain exchanges yesterday filed a petition with the interstate commerce commission at Washington asking that the commission's reopened investigation of grain freight rates be abandoned. The petition asserted that the uncertainty as to the outcome of the proceedings, which have been in progress since last April, is having an adverse effect on the prices received by the grain producers.

Announcement that the petition had been mailed to Washington was made by Herbert J. Campbell, counsel for the Chicago Board of Trade.

A review of the grain rate case, hearing on which have been held in many grain centers of the country at a cost of thousands of dollars to the railroads and taxpayers, is made in the petition. The hearings originally were started by the interstate commerce commission after adoption of the Hoch-Smith resolution by congress in January, 1925. Following several years of investigation of freight rates, an order was entered July 1, 1930 decreeing various reductions in charges.

Court Blocks Action.

In January, 1932, the United States Supreme court enjoined the interstate commerce commission from putting the reduced rates into effect on the ground that economic conditions had changed during the interval in which basis for reductions had been established and the time when they were to become effective.

The interstate commerce commission following the decision ordered the hearings resumed.

In the petition it is stated "the uncertainty as to the outcome of the present investigation is now, during the pendency of this investigation, a deterrent element detrimental to the interest of producers, carriers and shippers. Your petitioner further assert that the attendant uncertainty referred to above has had and is having a material adverse effect on the prices received by the producers of grain.

More Feasible Rates.

"Your petitions respectfully submit that not only will the dismissal of the present proceeding be beneficial in removing this feeling of uncertainty, but it will also have the added effect of creating a more flexible rate structure.

Saying that while it must be clearly understood the petitioners do not intend to, nor do they express their approval of present rates on grain, it is doubtful if the commission has the power to compel sweeping reductions in view of the "deplorable financial situation of the railroads."

RAPS BIG FEES PAID MASTERS IN CHANCERY

46 Average $34,782; Hurts Home Owner.

BY AL CHASE.

Cook county's forty-six masters in chancery will receive $1,600,000 in fees during 1932, or an average of $34,782 each, in foreclosure cases alone, according to a report on mortgage foreclosure practices just completed by the Northwestern university law school at the suggestion of and financed by the Chicago real estate board. These studies have been directed by Prof. Homar F. Carey of the law school faculty and John W. Brabner-Smith, a graduate law student and member of the Chicago bar, assisted by David V. Lansden, research student.

The report, to be made public tomorrow, not only declares that the investigation indicates an enormous and burdensome expense borne by litigants in foreclosure suits, but it charges that "favored masters have been compensated beyond the limit established by our Appellate courts."

In addition to securing these exorbitant fees, most of them from cases involving considerable sorrow and suffering, the report points out that practically every master in Cook county has other means of livelihood than his court fees and a number of the most prominent have held important political offices while acting as masters.

Hold Political Jobs.

"Thus, Master Arvey is an alderman; Master Behan has been a south park commissioner; Master Gorman is attorney for the south park commissioners, and practically every master is engaged in the private practice of law," the report comments.

A table of fees in certain cases investigated by the Chicago Bar association involving foreclosures of $100,000 or over which were filed in the period from Jan. 1, 1930, to Jan. 1, 1931, show masters in chancery getting as high as $75,642. This total was received by Master George E. Gorman of the Circuit court in nineteen cases. A close second is Master Louis J. Behan of the Superior court, who is listed as receiving $72,540 in thirty-four cases.

It should be added that "since there is little probability of the foreclosure sale in these cases taking place less than a year from the date of the filing of the bill, these fees were allowed in a period of approximately eighteen months. Moreover, these fees in each case are not necessarily the final fees allowed. This table sets forth much less than the full amount allowed to certain masters for an approximate eighteen months period."

Small Home Owner Suffers.

How the small home owner suffers from excessive fees is shown in a table which discloses that "in foreclosures of mortgages of less than $10,000 (mostly home mortgages) the foreclosure reference alone costs the mortgagor almost six per cent of his principal, without taking into consideration attorneys' fees, other court costs, title search and receivers' fees, if there is a receiver appointed.

"This six per cent must be borne by the owner if he wishes to redeem, and, with the other expenses mentioned above, constitutes a principal reason for the improbability of the mortgagor getting back his property."

In addition to criticizing the master in chancery fee situation in general, the report raps both the equity bench for allowing excessive fees and the lawyer who fails to look after his client's interest.

Raps Attorneys.

"Attorneys have not been zealous in safeguarding the interests of their clients by either questioning the propriety of a reference in a given case or in contesting the amount of the master's fees," the report states.

"The equity bench has not been watchful over the interests of litigants whose cases it has referred in allowing masters' excessive compensation upon reports that seldom meet the requirements of law."

The report recommends masters be paid a full time salary instead of fees. "Recently there has been proposed in lieu of the present system of masters in chancery a statute providing for ten masters each for the Circuit and Superior courts, such masters to be full time court assistants on a salary basis," it states. "In view of present reference practice [as distinguished from legal theory] such legislation appears commendable. The trend of legislation in Illinois has been to abolish all fee offices and the office of master is one of the few remaining fee positions."

Stocks Rally Sharply in Heavy Trade

BY FRED HARVEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 29.—The share market braced in the final hour of trading today and put on a rally that ran the shorts ragged for twenty minutes or so. Listed values were boosted from 1 to 3 points over a wide range and the ticker got its liveliest workout in weeks. When the tally was posted at the close of business it was found that betwen 1,600,000 and 1,700,000 shares had changed hands and 863 issues had been traded.

Like so many of the other impromptu rallies that have been started, the market began to provide an exception to the monotonous record of year-end reactions, the upturn lacked anw visible cause of excitement.

Absorbs Tax Selling.

Early dealings had been marked by a heavy run of selling to establish income tax losses, this being the last day on which such sales can be made except on a cash basis, and observers guessed that liquidation of this nature had pretty well run its course by the time the market turned into the final hour. The market's ability to "take" this selling without any appreciable reaction was thought to have encouraged those committed to the upside.

The trend continued steadily upward to the close and final prices were generally the top ones of the session. Outstanding gainers included such market barometers as Air Reduction, Allied Chemical, United States Steel, Public Service of New Jersey, American Telephone, American Tobacco, Case Threshing Machine, New York Central and Auburn Auto, all up from 1 to 2 points or more.

General Motors Sluggish.

One big time pivotal which found itself unable to share in the popular enthusiasm was General Motors. This issue has been under pressure for the last two days and the street has indulged in considerable guessing as to the cause of its disfavor. Gossip today had it that the sale of a block of the stock estimated at 40,000 shares was completed just before noon.

TRADE LEADERS WIDELY DIVIDED ON SALES TAX

The legislative policy committee of the Illinois Chamber of Commerce yesterday announced the continuation of a collection of business opinion on the proposed state sales tax.

"It is doubtful," said Walter Williams, president of the state chamber, "whether any other proposed measure has created such a diversity of opinion. We have in our files statements from executives in many lines of business, each of them presenting a different angle on the sales tax measure.

"We feel that one of the most constructive suggestions is that of a Chicago business leader, who urges that if such a tax is adopted the merchandise, when it passes into the hands of the consumer, shall have the amount of the tax clearly displayed on it.

"This business man feels that only in this way can we make people in general cognizant of the crying need for a worth while reduction in public expenditures. He says that if this can be accomplished perhaps a general sales tax, irrespective of its shortcomings, may well be worth while."

STANLEY FIELD IS LIKELY TO GET REYNOLDS' POST

Leavell Expected to Remain President.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Retirement of George M. Reynolds from the chairmanship of the Continental Illinois National Bank & Trust company suddenly throws into the financial limelight two men who for many months have been actively running the bank's affairs, although remaining in the Reynolds shadow.

James R. Leavell, Continental's president, and Stanley Field, chairman of the executive committee, have both—by their own preference—remained "silent executives" although they have been the directing force in the many changes made by the bank during the last year or two.

On Jan. 13 directors of the Continental will meet to elect officers. It is expected that at that time Stanley Field will be elected chairman of the board and that the office of chairman of the executive committee will be discontinued. Mr. Leavell is expected to continue as president.

Reynolds' Retirement Long Planned.

Mr. Reynolds' retirement, announced Wednesday, was the result of no sudden decision. He had been planning for a long time to withdraw from active participation in the bank's affairs and gradually had been shunting more of the work and responsibility upon other officers. For months his working days had ended at two or three in the afternoon.

It was under the direction of James Leavell and Stanley Field that the Continental was transformed from a state to a national institution. And it was under the supervision of the same two officers that the Continental did its housecleaning job of setting up reserves of $40,000,000 out of surplus to cover losses incurred during the depression, including losses on loans to insull companies.

Organization Is Unified.

Gradually during the last year the Continental has been developing into a more centralized, closely knit organization. Expenses have been trimmed and a new loaning system adopted whereby the loaning officers are divided into regional groups with more direct supervision by the president and other executive officers. Deposits have risen steadily during the last six months.

Stanley Field, nephew of the founder of Marshall Field & Co., has been identified with that organization since 1906, at present being a director of the company. Other directorships he holds include Commonwealth Edison, Peoples Gas Light and Coke, Illinois Central railroad, Chicago corporation, and Mutual Life Insurance company of New York.

During the war Mr. Field was chief

Scale Down of Capital Stock Problem of '33

BY SCRUTATOR.

Wringing water from inflated corporate structures will be one of the principal readjustment problems in 1933, according to the opinion in financial quarters.

Fictitious and out of date values must be erased or revised; losses must be taken and in many instances debt structures must be scaled down.

The movement has already gained headway. Many corporations have effected voluntary capital readjustments. Balance sheets have been revised to reflect present day conditions. Despite the progress made the greatest readjustment remains to be done, it is asserted in informed quarters.

Receivership has already overtaken those corporations whose capital structure were expanded beyond the possibility of voluntary reorganization. Bankers admit that 1933 will see many more receiverships, but the most promising course is that of voluntary readjustment, it is believed.

The alternatives to voluntary readjustment in the pressing situations are receivership and bankruptcy. Voluntary reorganizations will not be possible in all cases. Recalcitrant groups of security holders have already blocked some proposed reorganization schemes. The more serious the situation becomes, however, the greater will be the pressure on the security holders to enter into some sort of compromise.

There is a good deal of talk now in financial circles of the prospects of federal legislation curbing the power of stubborn minorities. Definite proposals have not appeared as yet. Such a measure may prove unnecessary, some observers believe.

It is pointed out that the large creditor group, such as trust companies, insurance companies and foundations, are likely to cooperate in equitable reorganization programs. With a large bondholder group alert to protect its own interests, it is believed that the smaller holders will be willing to go along.

The situation is more acute in the railroad field than in any other industry.

Reports recently have said that some of the leading carriers are preparing plans to be submitted to bondholders.

'POOR WOIKING GIRL' IS CLASSIFIED AS ONE OF BEST CREDIT RISKS

St. Paul, Minn., Dec. 29.—(AP)—There was a time when the phrase "pity the poor woiking goil," would make strong men cry and stern women soften in sympathy.

But no more, for Ralph Walker, secretary of the Mutual Credit Rating exchange of St. Paul, reports she has become one of the best credit risks in the country.

She has attained that rating, Walker explained because she used her credit judiciously, knows what margin she has for spending and for credit buying, is a budget maker, and keeps within her income.

The secret of it all, he said, is the judicious use of credit.

"Women are more cautious, generally," said Walker. "They are the budget makers. They buy wisely, use credit wisely."

Leaving Gold Basis Halts African Trade

PRETORIA, Union of South Africa, Dec. 29.—(AP)—Business was at a standstill today throughout South Africa with the dawning realization that the government's monetary decrees of two days ago were to be accepted as departure from the gold standard for the South African pound.

With the lapse from gold, various government spokesmen made clear, there is no linking up with sterling.

Gen. Jan Christian Smuts at Johannesburg forecast that business chaos would result from the failure of the government to tie the South African pound to English sterling notes.

The finance minister explained the events of the week which had forced the government action.

"To begin with, the withdrawal of deposits was for the purpose of buying sterling," he said, "but as exchange restrictions imposed by the banks began to function, a rush started to convert notes in gold at the reserve bank.

"In these circumstances the only way to prevent a financial disaster of the first magnitude was to release the reserve bank from the liability to redeem its notes in gold and thereby, ipso facto, to detach the currency from the gold standard."

Technocracy Theory False —Economists

Cincinnati, O., Dec. 29.—(AP)—Economists, whose science has been described as the "pathology of debt" by Howard Scott, leader of the technocrats, trained their guns in reply today.

Only a trivial part of the "present unparalleled aggregate of unemployment can legitimately be ascribed to technological improvements in methods of production," Prof. Wilford I. King of the New York university school of commerce said in addressing the American Statistical association.

"Every one knows that the average output per worker employed is now no less than three times as great as it was a century ago," Prof. King said. "If men displaced by machines had not found other jobs, at least two-thirds of the nation's working force would have been idle, even before the present depression began."

Machines End Few Jobs.

The census taken in 1930, he said, found that of all persons reported as usually engaged in factory work, 9.12 per cent were unemployed, and of them, such causes as reductions in labor force, substitution of cheaper labor, advancing age of the worker, introduction of new machines, and other phases of industrial policy accounted for only 96,957 idle men out of a total of 2,686,145 reported as unemployed.

Prof. King said his conclusions were that technological improvements merely cause labor to shift from one industry to another, and that technological unemployment usually is temporary.

Urges U. S.-British Trade Pact.

Immediate coöperation between the governments of the United States and Great Britain to fix monetary policies, raise the price level, and pare down trade barriers was urged before the American Economic association by James Harvey Rogers, sterling professor of political economy at Yale.

Prof. Rogers said a "gentleman's agreement" with great Britain, "however loose, would certainly be taken most seriously by the British."

"International coöperation," he said, "provides the fulcrum upon which the archimedian lever, money, may be applied to world prices," which, he said, "may be expected to slip further downward as returns to the gold standard bring pressing demands for the yellow metal."

Prof. J. F. Ebersole of Harvard university, declared "what we need is some new bankers who will make such unsound loans that present unsound loans will become sound. Apparently the present bankers are not in a frame of mind to lead us to recovery. Sixty per sent of the government securities are in the hands of the banks, and 30 per cent of the assets of the banks are in the hands of the government."

NEW YORK BANK TAKES UP STOCK OF INSULL UNIT

Ends Hope Recovery by Middle West.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The 40 million dollar investment of Middle West Utilities company in the chain of utility properties along the Atlantic seaboard is lost as far as the security holders of the parent company are concerned.

This was the opinion expressed last night by Charles A. McCulloch, co-receiver, following the foreclosure earlier yesterday on $6,000,000 of "Insull" collateral by the Central Hanover Bank and Trust company of New York.

Gradual disintegration of the eastern chain assembled by Samuel Insull under the National Electric Power company was regarded as a certainty as a result of the policy adopted by the New York bank.

Note in Default.

The collateral which the bank "reduced to possession" consists of stock in the underlying operating properties of the eastern system. The stocks were pledged with the bank as security for a note of $5,789,000 by the National Public Service corporation, chief subsidiary of National Electric Power.

The note has been in default since July. Both of the eastern companies are in bankruptcy. Yesterday's sale was technically a public auction, but the bank was the only bidder, being awarded the collateral for $5,750,000.

The sale comes as the result of a breakdown in the negotiations for a reorganization of the eastern properties. For several months Mr. McCulloch and Edward N. Hurley, co-receivers, have been attempting to work out a reorganization plan which would enable Middle West to salvage something of the company's stake in the east. Any such program to be assured required the approval of the bank creditors and the bondholders.

Regret Bank's Action.

The eastern banks refrained from auctioning the collateral until recently, when the Central Hanover announced its intention of disposing of its pledges. The announcement brought sharp criticism from McCulloch and Hurley.

"I regret very keenly," Mr. McCulloch said last night, "that the Central Hanover has seen fit to sell the collateral. It means that the stockholders of Middle West can hope to realize nothing on their investment in the east.

"If similar action were taken by the Chicago bank creditors of Middle West it would mean that stockholders

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Scattered buying of wheat futures, which the trade was inclined to believe represented removal of hedges against sales of cash grain to millers, was a factor in sustaining the market yesterday. Local sentiment was somewhat bearish, owing to the refusal of Liverpool to follow the upturn in North America late Wednesday, but there was comparatively little pressure at any time. Prices held within a range of around ½c the greater part of the day.

According to reports from outside markets, there was also buying of futures there presumably for milling account. While no intimations were received as to the aggregate business in all positions, the purchases of futures suggested over 200,000 bu of cash wheat had changed hands in various positions, including Omaha and Kansas City. Part of the No. 1 hard winter sold brought equal to 3c over Chicago May.

Close at Top.

Wheat futures here closed at the top, with prices unchanged to ¼c higher on the active months, May being 44⅛@44⅝c and July 44⅛@44¼c. December was dull and closed ¾c lower at 42⅝c. Winnipeg led the advance, being ⅝@⅞c higher in Canadian funds, removal of hedges against export sales of Manitobas being a factor. Liverpool finished unchanged to ⅛c higher, with pressure of Argentine offers preventing any upturn. Buenos Aires was up ⅛c for the day.

Normally the holiday season is a dull period in the cash wheat and flour trade, but this year there are indications that the extremely small interior supply of grain has forced mills to turn to terminal markets for supplies on a scale out of all proportions to the size of the crop. As the bulk of the grain held at terminals is hedged by sales of futures, the removal of the hedges has become a factor in the market.

No Pressure on Corn.

A slight increase in country offerings of cash corn to arrive, with purchase of 38,000 bu by local handlers, led to a little selling of futures early, but the surplus in the pit was absorbed by commission houses and local traders, and the close was at the top, with net gains of ⅝@⅞c. December finished at 22c, May at 26⅛c, and July at 27½@27⅝c, selling against offers checking the upturn.

Buying of oats on resting orders prevented a dip in oats to a new low for the season early, and later there was some support as the result of firmness in corn. The finish was unchanged to ⅛c higher, with December closing at 15⅛c, May at 16⅝c, and July 17c. Rye gained ⅜@½c for the day, with December closing at 29⅝c and May at 32⅛c.

A belief that barley was an investment purchase, owing to prospects of the ultimate passage of the beer bill, lifted that grain ¼c, with May closing at 28⅞c.

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—SUGAR—Raw was steady and unchanged today at 2.75c for spots with no sales reported. Refinery showed no particular interest, although it was believed they would pay the last price, or 2.75c, for sugars in January positions, but these were held at 2.77½c, while February arrivals offered at 2.75c found no response from buyers. There was little trading in futures and price changes were narrow. The market closed 1 point higher to 1 point net lower. Sales were 9,000 tons and of these 3,600 were in exchange from January to late deliveries. Prices follow:

WEIGHTY BEEF STEERS DECLINE TO 24 YEAR LOW

Hog Market Continues in Weak Position.

Weighty beef steers were submerged to new 24 year lows yesterday, when only occasional "stickout" consignments of long-fed heavy cattle were sold above the $5.00 line. Many loads of plain but fat steers that showed evidence of having been on a grain ration a long time, cashed slowly at $4.00@4.75. Practically all the important orders called for light steers and yearlings, with the action in this class improved.

Top fancy yearlings are selling $1.00 @2.00 above prime weighty beeves. One string of 47 steers averaging 1,100 lbs to Wilson topped the market at $7.20, this price being within 5c of the week's top. A generous showing of good to choice 700@1,100 lb cattle cashed at $6.00@6.60.

Heavy cattle are closing the week 15@25c lower, while yearlings and light cattle are 15@25c above a week ago. Cows were scarce all week and are 25@40c higher than last Friday. Plain and in-between grades of heifers followed an irregular course, but the high quality kinds and especially the lightest closed 25@50c higher than a week ago.

Hogs Near 54 Year Low.

Hogs slipped another notch at the opening yesterday and closed only 5c above the 54 year low marks established last week. Light and underweights were weakest in the absence of urgent shipping orders and lost 5@10c, the top going down 10c to $3.15. At the low time of last week best sold at $3.10. Light and medium weight butchers also were slightly lower, but heavier weights maintained a steady price basis.

The general average for the day declined 5c to $2.95, comparing with $2.90 Wednesday of last week. Current quotations are unevenly 10@35c under the high close of last week. The movement at country points has been heavier since the middle of the week.

Lambs React Late.

Following a 15@25c lower opening in lambs yesterday, the market reacted and about half of the loss was recovered, but the close still showed a decline compared with the Wednesday close. Larger local packers were slow at the start, but came out later and were among the best bidders for high quality native and fed western lambs. They paid up to $6.00 for several shipments. Eastern buyers were forced up another 10c to $6.10 for closely sorted stock at the finish.

DECEMBER EGGS LOWER

Egg futures did not receive enough support to hold an early gain on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday, December slipping back for a net loss of ¼@c. December corn opened ¼c lower but rallied ¾c on active new buying. Those died out, however. Liquidation carried the market steadily lower, and the close was at the bottom. Butter closed ¾@¾c higher. The American association reported a 9 per cent decrease in production compared with last year, although the storage movement was less than last year. New buying came into the January and February deliveries, with corresponding the January market as well. Sales: Butter, 134 cars; eggs, 88 cars. Deliveries: Butter, 1 car; eggs, 81 cars. COTTON MARKET STRONG; CLOSES AROUND THE TOP

With selling pressure light and a sufficient demand to readily absorb everything offered, cotton prices were advanced 10 points or better and closed at the top. The advance in the stock market and steadiness in grains had a good influence. About the only thing there were reports of a better business in Worth street and lighter offerings from the south.

The top was 50 points above the low point made on the day of the last government crop report. The agricultural committee of congress met in Washington during the day to take up the cotton situation and the cotton interests in Memphis, Tenn., were also on the same work.

Closing prices were at the top after opening around 5 points or better than the previous day and futures at Chicago were up 9@13 points, with other markets up 8@17 points. Spots in New Orleans advanced 20 points to 6.05c; New York up 15 points to 6.15c, while Galveston was 6.00c and Houston 5.95c. Liverpool closed 8@9 points net higher. Export clearances were fair. FRENCH-GERMAN TRADE PACT SEEN AS AFFECTING U.S.

New Treaty Apt to Change World Foreign Trade.

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, Dec. 29.—World-wide effects, which are inevitably going to affect United States trade policies profoundly, are foreseen here by economists with the publication today of the text of the Franco-German commercial agreement signed in Berlin. Just as the former 1927 treaty between the two countries opened a new chapter in European trade, so the present accord introduces new principles which it is expected will set an example for other nations to follow.

What France has really done in this new treaty, it was pointed out today, is to regain virtually complete freedom of action in making her commercial policy adaptable to any situation which might arise from day to day. Instead of a rigid consolidation of nearly three-quarters of her tariff list there is now flexibility, for despite the nominal retention of consolidations there is a clause stating that all but a few can be freely denounced by either side with fifteen days' notice.

Changes Definition.

Even more important is a new definition of the most favored nation clause which inaugurates a principle never before adopted in international trade. Hitherto that clause meant that all nations enjoying most favored treatment automatically received the minimum tariff rates granted by other nations.

It is true that in practice this clause was more honored in the breach than in observance, but nevertheless it represented a solid basis for international trade policies to which there always could be an appeal. Now most favored nation treatment will be graned with many reservations, based as far as possible on a policy of reciprocity. Broadly stated, if other countries grant certain privileges to France, then France will grant them most favored treatment.

Based on Three Changes.

Moreover, certain products will always be kept from such treatment. Bilateral or other regional accords will also be excepted and finally appeal cannot be made against surtaxes or import quotas on the basis of the most favored nation clause.

Thus France's new trade policy has three broad bases, a flexible tariff, a flexible most favored nation clause and reciprocity of treatment.

BRACKEN RETIRES AS VICE PRES. OF BURLINGTON RD.

Starting as construction gang foreman, Bracken served the Burlington for forty-five years. He was an expert in efficiency and safety matters. Bracken had a large part in extending the Burlington's lines in Nebraska, Wyoming, and Texas. He supervised construction of several hundred miles of track in Texas, completed last July.

Eastern Chain Seen Disintegrating.

Mr. McCulloch said that he was informed that several competing companies were anxious to acquire the eastern properties of Middle West.

Watch Bank's Action.

"Stockholders will watch with interest what disposition the bank makes of the properties and what price is obtained," he added.

Middle West's interest lies in the junior securities of National Electric Power and National Public Service. Foreclosure on securities of the underlying properties means that the top companies will be left without assets.

Other New York banks hold the balance of the good assets of the companies for loans totaling approximately $14,000,000. National Electric Power and National Public Service also have debentures outstanding in the hands of the public.

These debenture holders will probably share the fate of the stockholders of whom Middle West is the largest. Counter claims of the banks and the debenture holders over prior rights to assets remain to be thrashed out.

The collateral was offered in four lots. The prices paid were as follows: $650,000 for 10,313 shares of Jersey Central Power and Light 5½ per cent preferred stock; $3,200,000 for 44,491 shares of common stock of the Eastern New Jersey Power company, and 163,350 common shares of Jersey Central Power and Light; $1,800,000 for 501 shares of common stock of New England Public Service company; and $100,000 for 116,000 shares of common stock of the Central and Southwest Utilities company.

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—(AP)—Cotton goods were quiet today in finished and unfinished lines. Combed yarns have been reduced to a basis of 38 cents for sixties 2 ply. Scarcity continues in several sizes of rayon wanted for knitting and weaving. Knitters of full fashioned hosiery continue well sold for some weeks to come and are usin more rayon for low priced numbers for spring. Burlaps were inactive. Inquiries are increasing for worsted dress goods for spring.

NOTICE OF SALE OF $150,000 RELIEF BONDS SERIES 1933

OF DU PAGE COUNTY, ILLINOIS.

Sealed bids will be received by the Board of Supervisors of Du Page County, Illinois, at the County Clerk's office in the Court House at Wheaton, Illinois, until 10 o'clock A. M., January 6th, 1933; for the purchase of all or any part of $150,000 Relief Bonds Series 1933, of Du Page County, Illinois.

Said bonds are dated January 1, 1933, of $1,000 denomination, bear interest at the rate of five per cent per annum, payable January 1, 1934, and semi-annually thereafter and are due in numerical order, $15,000 in December the First of each of the years 1934 to 1943 inclusive. Principal and interest are payable at the office of the County Treasurer at Wheaton, Illinois. Said bonds will be awarded upon the highest acceptable bidder by the County Board. The bonds will constitute general obligations of Du Page County payable from ad valorem taxes levied on all the taxable property in said County.

Du Page County will furnish the printed bonds and approving opinion of Chapman & Cutler, Lawyers of Chicago, Illinois, and all bids must be so conditioned. Bidders must furnish certified check payable to the order of Wm. H. Baethke, Chairman of the Board of Supervisors of Du Page County, Illinois, for one per cent of highest single bid as guarantee of good faith. This amount to be forfeited to the county by the successful bidder should such bidder fail to take up and pay for the bonds when ready for delivery. The right is reserved to reject any and all bids.

County Clerk of Du Page County, Illinois.

SOLUTION TO THE CORPSE SPEAKS

The dead man's heels beat a tattoo on the door TWO FEET from the floor. The overturned stool beneath the body was only ONE foot high. The noose was TIGHTLY drawn. The man could not have hung himself.

THE MURDERER'S CURSE,
THE DEAD MAN'S FIX'D
AND FEARS, AND DEATH'S
COLD SWEAT—
THEY ALL ARE THERE!
